Visit Keynote Friendship

OTTAWA (CP) — A smiling President Richard Nixon opened a 40-hour state visit to Canada Thursday by saying that while there are no walls between the two countries, the United States respects Canada's "separate entity."

Both the president and Governor-General Roland Michener mentioned the differences that currently exist between the countries but emphasized the friendship.

Nixon and his wife, Pat, stepped smiling from the presidential jetliner, Air Force One, into a cold, drizzling evening and cheers from more than 300 invited guests in a VIP hanger decked with flags and bunting for the occasion.

Discards Notes

"The weather may be cool but the welcome is very warm," the president said. He discarded his notes and spoke off-the-cuff after hearing Michener's remarks.

Nixon, wearing only a suit in 34-degree weather, said it is significant the visit to Ottawa is the only one he is taking between visits to Peking earlier this year and Moscow later.

He said the U.S. is seeking a new relationship with its adversaries and realizes the need for better relations with its friends.

He recalled seeing the Great Wall of China during his Peking visit. As he went to the Soviet Union he would think of the Iron Curtain and the Berlin wall.

Canada and the U.S. shared "the longest undefended boundary in the world." But while there was no wall, this didn't mean the countries were the same.

"We have differences," Nixon said. "We are competitors economically in many areas."

But the U.S. respected Canada's separate identity.

Example for World

"The Canadian-American example is an example for all the world to see," Nixon said. He hoped his visit would contribute to the strength and vitality of relations between the countries.

Michener apparently inspired the Nixon thread of remarks. He said an almost invisible boundary "divides us as sovereign nations but not as friendly people."

The two countries are good neighbors, good friends and allies. Their purposes and goals are "broadly parallel," though disagreements occur.

The president smiled as the Governor-General asked him to "bring the message we most want to hear — that of the friendship of Americans for Canadians."

The Nixons and State Secretary William Rogers were greeted by the Michener, Prime Minister Trudeau, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and U.S. Ambassador Adolph Schmidt.

Red Tanks Smash Into An Loc Again

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist tanks for the second time in 36 hours smashed their way into An Loc today in the see-saw battle for control of the provincial capital only 60 miles from Saigon.

Field reports said that three North Vietnamese tanks had entered the town and the battle to drive them out was underway. On Thursday a communist tank force made it to within 100 yards of the provincial hall before being driven back by the South Vietnamese defenders.

Six waves of heavy B-52 bombers struck at communist positions within a mile of An Loc while other allied aircraft helped fight off the assault by 10,000 communist troops backed with an estimated 60 tanks.

Allied reports from the front had said earlier that 34 North Vietnamese tanks had been knocked out of action, but the South Vietnamese command in Saigon said only 18 tanks were destroyed. The command also said 169 communists were killed and two captured in Thursday's fighting, while 23 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed, 55 were wounded and six were missing.

In another battle area far to the north, UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported from Phu Bai that U.S. infantrymen fought two skirmishes Thursday night and early today and captured a wounded North Vietnamese soldier in a third incident at dawn today. No U.S. casualties were reported.

The first skirmish came just after nightfall when the GIs tripped a communist-laid flare and the Americans and communists shot at each other for half an hour before the small North Vietnamese force disappeared.

In the second incident a communist mortar squad tripped a U.S. mine and GIs opened fire on them for half an hour. A patrol sent into the area later found one body wearing a North Vietnamese uniform.

The patrol sighted another man moving in the grass and shot him and a helicopter, with Kellerman aboard, picked him up. The man, shot in the chest and his legs injured by the mine explosion, later died in the U.S. military dispensary at Phu Bai.

About 2,000 Americans are stationed at Phu Bai, most of them army communications specialists. The base is the American outpost farthest to the north in South Vietnam.

Senate Cuts Presidential War Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate passed a bill Thursday to limit the power of the president to commit U.S. armed forces to hostilities without the approval of Congress.

The vote was 68 to 16, sending the bill to an uncertain fate in the House of Representatives.

Senator Jacob Javits (Rep. — N.Y.) said the ability to retaliate is implicit in emergency authority in the bill to repel attack and forestall threat, but the word retaliate was omitted as a caution to the president that the shooting of one guard is not to be "provocation for taking a country or bombing its capital.

Eight Blasts Rock Ulster

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrilla bombers unleashed a chain of eight explosions in six cities across Northern Ireland Thursday, leaving an elderly woman dead and a trail of destruction in the biggest upsurge of violence since Britain's takeover of direct rule in the six Ulster counties.

A woman's death in the Protestant town of Ballymoney raised the fatality toll to 301 in 32 months.

Joker Dies By Shotgun

HUXLEY, Tex. (UPI) — Lonnie Miller and a friend, both in their 20s, were dragging a bale of hay across a road as a practical joke to startle a passing motorist. But the motorist, Levi Wagstaff, mistaking the hay for some animal, stopped his car, got out and opened fire with a shotgun.

Miller was hit and killed. Wagstaff, realizing what he had been shooting at, suffered a heart failure and was in hospital under $5,000 bond on a charge of murder without malice.

'I Smell a Rat' Says Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday he "smells a rat" in financial plans for the 1976 Summer Olympics at Montreal.

He made the comment to reporters after reiterating in the Commons that Mayor Jean Drapeau has not requested any special federal funds for the Games.

Asked by a reporter whether he did not expect Drapeau eventually to seek federal money, the prime minister replied:

"You smell a rat and so do I. . . . I share your suspicions."

He added that he was not going to ask Montreal for a bill.

Trudeau said he would take Drapeau at his public word, and assume for now that no federal money will be needed.

The prime minister said in the Commons March 29 he had told Drapeau in a letter that "there would be no special contribution by the federal government to the Olympic Games."

"This has been agreed to by both sides."

Trudeau repeated in his corridor comments to reporters Thursday that the only federal money that might be used indirectly for the games is that to which Montreal is entitled — as is any other city — from existing transfer programs.

In the Commons March 29 Trudeau said the federal government "will at some point want to know more precisely" Montreal's plans if in fact it is counting on federal aid.

But he suggested Thursday that to seek that information now could be interpreted by Montreal as an offer of funds. To maintain his government's bargaining stance, he would assume no money will be requested, despite his "suspicious" about Drapeau's plans.

TV Webs' Monopoly Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. justice department said Thursday it plans to file civil anti-trust suits against the major United States broadcasting networks.

In a brief announcement, the department said it had advised counsel for the National Broadcasting Co. Inc., American Broadcasting Company Inc., Columbia Broadcasting System Inc. and Viacom International Inc. The suits will charge that the firms monopolized and restrained trade in prime television entertainment programs.

The suits will allege the networks violated the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

Robert Wood, president of the CBS television network, said the government seeks to transfer control of programming schedules to advertising agencies and motion picture producers and to prevent the networks from producing their own programming.

'Host' Cities Reluctant To Roll Out Red Carpet

Cabinet Hungry for Invitations

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial cabinet has invited itself to dinner — more than 10 dinners, in fact — and most of its prospective hosts are less than enthusiastic.

The cabinet is planning a tour of the province later this spring, and mayors of municipalities scheduled to be visited received letters Wednesday asking them to sponsor dinners or luncheons for the ministers.

"I think we should all get them lunch buckets," said Mayor Gordon Nichol of Kamloops. "The last time they were here it cost the city $1,400 and people complained."

Mayor Pete Lester of Prince Rupert said: "Ours will probably be a no-host luncheon."

Penticton's Mayor Frank Laird was philosophical: "Well, you can't kick the gift horse in the mouth. Nor the rear end.

"They'll be handing out $1,000 bills wherever they go," Lester said. "What can you do? After all, the man's the premier of the province.

"I suppose the least we can get for a $350 lunch is between $50,000 and $100,000 — in announcements."

Lester said the letter, from Deputy Provincial Secretary Lawrie Wallace, said:

"I wonder if you and your council would like to host and honor the premier with a luncheon at 12 noon Monday, May 29. The premier will have two presentations to make to you on that date, one of historical significance."

The letter went on to ask for confirmation of the lunch and requested the complete guest list by May 5.

"I suppose they want the guest list because they can make other arrangements if they don't like who we've asked," Lester quipped.

Mayor F. E. Devito of Trail said he wouldn't mind giving the cabinet a luncheon if the announcement had come in a different form.

"The impression was that they were coming and we should do something about it. Normally one would expect we would have been asked in a discreet way whether we would like to have them."

Mayor Harold Moffat of Prince George and H. W. Buckle of Kimberley said they were in favor of the tour and didn't mind giving the cabinet a meal.

Canada's Identity 'Respected'

Two cheers burst forth as they entered the hangar, decorated in bunting and flags. Nixon inspected a 100-man guard of honor as a 21-gun salute echoed over the darkening airfield outside.

Mrs. Trudeau was at 24 Sussex Drive caring for 3½-month-old Justin Trudeau. "She had duties with baby" a Trudeau aide explained.

The Nixons were whisked eight miles from the airport to Government House for a state dinner. Along the route perhaps no more than 300 persons turned out to see the visitor.

At the gates of Government House, about 30 Maoist-oriented demonstrators carrying a red banner, and about 20 other onlookers, one carrying a Canadian flag, watched the cavalcade pass.

Poor weather and advance news that the chances of seeing the visitor publicly would be fleeting may have led to the light public turnout.

Cordial toasts and an intriguing thank you by Nixon to former prime minister John Diefenbaker marked the state dinner.

"I'm very happy to see you," Nixon said as the 76-year-old Diefenbaker was presented in the reception line. "I remember your kind remarks in Parliament."

Diefenbaker smiled and said something that could not be heard. It wasn't clear what remarks Nixon was referring to, but Diefenbaker has been a recent critic in Parliament of anti-American positions.

Standing nearby the receiving line of the Nixons and Micheners were Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife.

Twenty-one of the 29 ministers in Trudeau's cabinet also were present.

"I hope to see you tomorrow," Nixon said in greeting Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield. They have a brief meeting scheduled for the second day of the Nixon visit.

"Did you have a good visit with Morton?" the president asked Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, recently returned from a Washington visit with U.S. Interior Secretary Rogers Morton.

Then he grinned and told the towering Macdonald, who is well over six feet tall:

"You are the same size (as Morton)."

In a formal toast during dinner in the oval dining room at Rideau Hall, Michener said the Nixon visit is an omen of "enduring and advantageous" new relations between the U.S. and Canada.

The governor-general sustained the cordial tone set on Nixon's arrival, paying warm tribute to the president's record in the White House.

"You have given leadership to a long-sighted transformation of America's foreign relations and role in the world," he told Nixon.

"The full measure of your initiative in the military, political and economic fields is just beginning to be recognized, together with their implications for the peace and well-being of people everywhere."

"In the case of Canada and the United States, I have no doubt that they will help us in defining anew the many areas where our desires and our policies converge.

"At a time when both Canada and the U.S. are adjusting to a world in transition," Michener continued, "it is a happy omen to have you and Mrs. Nixon in our midst, an omen of enduring and advantageous new relationships to come."

In response, Nixon cited the U.S. and Canada as two neighbors who settle problems peacefully.

"The world will not be saved by a single nation, but Canada and the United States, by example, can contribute enormously by understanding, maintaining dignity and maintaining their individuality," Nixon said.

More than 100 guests sat at tables in the brocade and crystal of the dining room.

Nixon will address Parliament today, after a morning of talks with Trudeau, then attend an invitation-only gala at the National Arts Centre.

The visit ends Saturday morning with the signing of a Canada-U.S. agreement to clean up the polluted Great Lakes.

Extraordinary measures are being taken to protect Nixon from harm or embarrassment. One result will be less public exposure than any previous president has received in a formal visit to Canada.

Meanwhile, the National Library has refused to allow the Canadian Film Institute to screen the satirical film Milhouse in the library auditorium tonight, and a construction fence on Sussex Drive, a route Nixon may take to Parliament from Government House, has been painted by federal workmen to cover anti-war posters.

In the Commons Thursday Trudeau refused to disclose the specific matters he will discuss with Nixon in private meetings today. Peppered with questions, he replied that the talks will cover "many, many" subjects. There was no formal agenda, he said.

Sweet and Sour

IT SEEMS I am incapable of having a lasting love affair with Premier Bennett. Short, torrid flings, yes, but nothing upon which to build a permanent, trusting relationship.

William Andrew Cecil plys me with the heady wine of wage, price control. I am putty in his hands. Blow that tune in my ear, Cece, I'll follow you anywhere.

He practically has me at the Socred altar. I am ready to plight my undying troth. I am at the point of renunciation of all former political dalliances.

THEN, THE realization that W.A.C. is as chauvanistic as the next political animal. When that sweet talkin' is done, a man is a two-faced, a worrisome thing that leads me to sing the blues in the night. (Sounds like a good start for a song.)

My knight is shining armor proves more political than human. He spends my tax dowry singing his own praises. He opens a propaganda network of radio stations to peddle the Socred party line.

A BLATANT mis-use of public funds — a costly and orchestrated blow-your-own-horn sort of thing. You can rest assured the questions asked of the government ministers involved with the broadcasts, will be carefully screened and fully rehearsed. They will not, I suggest, submit themselves to on-the-spot questioning. They will not take such a chance. Some of the ministers to be involved, have trouble chewing gum and walking at the same time, far less answering spontaneous questions.

I have suggested in the past that government use of newspaper facilities for Socred propaganda was a totalitarian concept that should be viewed with alarm by all taxpayers, be they Socred sympathizers or Socred opponents.

THE MOST charitable denunciation is that the Socreds are not being fair to the other parties. I am not prepared to be charitable, however. To me it is a sleezy, political-machine dodge.

The radio program concept is no less sleezy, no less honest. Bennett's assertion that the media doesn't present the true facts and that therfore his goverment is forced to buy air time to give the 'true' picture, is so much hog swill. This is pure Joseph Goebbels' indoctrination. Does it not seem strange the only time Bennett feels it necessary to present that 'true' picture is immedaitely preceding a call to the polls?

THERE IS another little propaganda bit on the airwaves these days throughout the province as well. But at least this is done through the money of a commercial sponsor, London Drugs.

Ralph Pashley does short, impassioned radio bits extolling the merits of various government departments. It is propaganda but perfectly legitimate inasmuch as private industry and not the tax coffer is paying the commerical rates.

These programs also appear only prior to election time. During the other three years of the regime it is obvious we are not in need of reassurance, in need of facts (fanciful as they might be) about what our government departments are doing.

BUT IS THIS not the way of the Socred government? Has not the department of travel industry been able to siphon off money to plug said industry through such as the Festival of Sports promotions? Ron Worley might argue the point loud and long, but I respectfully suggest his arguments would be hollow.

I agree with Dave Barrett and Pat McGeer that the use of public funds for government propaganda is outrageous and yet another disgraceful abuse of power.

THE SPENDING of public money on such programming, such advertising, is the only facet of the whole thing we need concern ourselves with. Certainly few reasonable-thinking citizens of the province will be taken in by the pap that will be fed out over the airwaves.

I give our citizens more credit for common sense.

Mr. Bennett, the engagement is off.

Quebec Union Chiefs Urge Strikers To Help Hospitals

MONTREAL (CP) Leaders of the 200,000 striking Quebec public service employees issued an urgent appeal Thursday asking strikers to live up to promises to provide essential services, particularly in hospitals.

The union leaders made the appeal in Quebec City as the strike against the government, in its third day, ran into resistance and mounting criticism. Hospital administrators continued to warn of an impending crisis.

Meanwhile Charles Lemoyne Hospital in suburban Greenfield Park, advised the provincial government Thursday that it no longer could provide even essential services to its 200 patients.

Director Gerard Lanque said in an interview he had advised Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay by telegram that the staff of the hospital no longer could cope with the work load.

"Our people are exhausted," he said.

At the same time, union chiefs of three locals of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, representing some 8,500 Hydro-Quebec employees, withdrew from the common front and instructed their members to obey court injunctions.

The situation in provincial hospitals continued to deteriorate and drew criticism from Canadian Red Cross officials and the Human Rights League.

Marguerite Wilson of the Red Cross said "only in Vietnam is the Red Cross prevented entry." She said organization trucks carrying blood had been barred entry to three Montreal hospitals.

The Human Rights League said "the most elementary rights of men have been flouted." It cited the case of a 70-year-old woman forced to walk 1,000 feet to enter a hospital because pickets would not allow the taxi into the hospital driveway.

The strike was called Tuesday by the Confederation of National Trade Unions, Quebec Teachers Corp., and Quebec Federation of Labor who joined in a common front to back salary and job security demands in negotiations with the provincial government.

The strike, which union leaders say will last indefinitely, has forced most Quebec schools, provincial court operations, civil service functions and Quebec liquor outlets to close down.

Jean-Paul L'Allier, civil service minister, said at a news conference Wednesday that the situation was "serious, but not alarming."

He said the government sees no need "for the moment" to call a special session of the national assembly to pass legislation ending the walkout.

Justice Minister Choquette said Thursday that contempt hearings against unions at seven hospitals where injunctions were violated will be held next week.

At isue is the front's demand for annual salary increases of 8.1 per cent over three years and minimum weekly salaries of $100 for all workers within three years.

Cornea Transplants

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is the percentage of success in eye transplants? How soon after death would the eye have to be removed? Transplanted how soon? Could arrangements be made through your regular eye doctor?—J.P.

I omitted the details of your letter as you asked me to. I commend your intentions, but a transplant such as you are thinking about, of a complete eye, is not possible.

The part of the eye that is used is the cornea, the transparent outer covering of the eyeball. There are cases in which because of accident or other hazard, the smooth, clear cornea has been scarred, and no longer transmits light clearly.

The scarred cornea can be removed, and the clear cornea of a good eye transplanted. That method by now has restored good vision for a great many people — but it is applicable only when that type of problem is involved, a defect in the cornea. It does not correct problems involving glaucoma, damage to the eye nerve, detached retina and other defects (although some of them can be helped by other means).

An eye, to be used for a transplant of the cornea, should be removed as soon after the donor's death as possible. It is kept refrigerated, but the transplant also is performed with the least possible delay. Thus an eye, when available, is carried by plane or other rapid means of transportation to the hospital where it will be used.

Anyone willing to leave his eyes for such use should, therefore, make known in advance that he is willing to do so, and make arrangements through his doctor (eye doctor or other physician) who in turn can notify those who must be ready to accept the eyes.

Incidentally, the removed eyes are replaced with artificial eyes, with pains being taken to match the color of the eyes even though the donor's eyes will be closed. There is no external sign indicating that the eyes have been removed.

□

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What do you think about coffee and tea as irritants to the prostate?—W.W.H.

Tea and coffee will not bring on the prostate problem, but they can aggravate an existing one because of their diuretic effect which increases urination, thus unnecessarily irritating the prostate.

As a general rule, persons with prostate problems should minimize their use of such beverages.

Rainier Snowiest Ever –85 Feet, Nine Inches

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP) — Mount Rainier National Park has broken its own record for annual snowfall.

Supt. John Townsley said 14½ inches of new snow measured Thursday morning raised the total winter accumulation to 85 feet, nine inches — two inches more than last winter's record.

Townsley said snowfall records are likely to be shattered daily until summer.

'Big Man' Behind Yablonski Deaths

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Annette Gilly, who confessed involvement in the 1969 Yablonski family murders, says she was told "the union" was behind the slayings and that they had been approved specifically by the "big man."

"To me, that meant Tony Boyle, president, United Mine Workers," the blonde, 31-year-old Cleveland housewife said in a statement read Thursday in Washington County court. She did not explain why she concluded "big man" meant Boyle.

The union's general counsel, Edward Carey, issued a statement in New York denying any complicity of Boyle or other UMW members in the Yablonski slayings. Boyle refused to speak with reporters but in the past has denied involvement.

UMW leader Joseph (Jock) Yablonski, 59, his wife Margaret, 57, and their 25-year-old daughter Charlotte were shot to death while sleeping before dawn Dec. 31, 1969, at their home in nearby Clarksville.

Yablonski had just lost a bitter election for the UMW's presidency to Boyle and was about to testify before a federal grand jury in Washington, D.C., that was looking into UMW activities.

The government has charged that the principal motive for his death was to prevent him from appearing before the grand jury and that his wife's and daughter's killings were incidental.

The statement was read by an FBI agent — Mrs. Gilly was not present — at a pretrial hearing for Silous Huddleston, 63, of LaFollette, Tenn., Mrs. Gilly's father. Huddleston is a retired coal miner and former president of a UMW local within the union's District 19.

Besides Boyle, the statement mentioned the last names of two men, "Titler" and "Owens."

The statement also mentioned two others — Albert Pass of Middlesboro, Ky., a member of the UMW's board and secretary-treasurer of District 19; and William Jackson Prater, 52, of LaFollette, Tenn., a field representative for District 19.

'I've Never Seen Our Parks So Green'

Garbage Bags Burgeon

TORONTO (UPI) — Mounds of green garbage bags burgeoned in Toronto parks Thursday as a strike by 4,000 city workers went into its fourth day.

"I've never seen our parks so green," said a young housewife at the sight of a 20-yard-long, five-foot-high mound of green plastic bags in a downtown park, designated as an emergency dump site.

In addition to garbage collectors, those on strike include ambulance drivers, water filtration and sewage treatment crews, road and sidewalk repairmen, park employees and ferry operators. They walked out at 7 a.m. Monday for higher wages.

Supervisory personnel and private operators maintained services in most areas, but uncollected garbage piled up in the city streets, as well as the emergency park sites.

About 60 per cent of the metropolitan area's 2,050,000 residents were expected to be without garbage collection by today. Three of the six boroughs, including the core city of Toronto, have had no garbage pickup since Monday.

Fire department officials reported at least a dozen fires at the emergency dumps, reportedly set by vandals. Police said no arrests had been made.

Meanwhile, there was no indication when negotiations between metro Toronto and the city and the Local 43 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees would resume.

Wages and a union proposal that 700 part-time public employees be added to the full-time staff have been the issues blocking settlement of a new two-year contract.

Local 43 wants a 38-cent-an-hour — or 10-per-cent — raise in each year of the contract. Current average pay for Local 43 membership is $3.58 an hour.

The city and metro have offered 18 and 15-cent-an-hour increases in each year of the contract. The union termed this "insulting."

Dr. George Moss, a city medical officer, said the strike presented "no imminent" health problem.

"When it will become a problem depends on a number of factors," he said. "Weather, the nuisance factor, and the public co-operation with instructions on how to dispose of garbage will all play a part."

Detroit Bustle Captivates Ping Pong Team

DETROIT (UPI) — The tightly restricted Chinese ping pong players got their first chance Thursday to talk to American workers, visiting a fast-moving automobile assembly line where they were surprised by the lack of women.

The Chinese, in their second day of a two-week goodwill tour of the United States after visiting Canada, were plainly delighted by the chance to talk with the workers in Chrysler's bustling Lynch Road assembly plant.

In groups of four, accompanied by a swarm of newsmen and translators, the Chinese moved along the car-spewing line stopping to talk at every opportunity.

"We are so happy to talk to the working class," said Ho Tsu-Pin to the workers. "We bring you the greetings of the working people of China. The working class is a great class."

One of the young Chinese women said she wanted to talk to female workers, got a chance to visit briefly with two, and was surprised there weren't more women working on the line. In China, she said, "men and women work together in plants like this."

Another player expressed concern that the workers get rest breaks from the tedium of the job.

Although the assembly line never stopped, the workers paused to talk, wave or stare at the visitors. The Chinese presented inexpensive personal gifts to some workmen.

Ho Tsu-Pin gave Robert Dunlap, 28, a lapel pin symbolic of Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace, a large community square.

Brazilian Crash Kills 25

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — The Brazilian air force reported Thursday all 25 persons aboard a Japanese-built Vasp Airline turboprop perished when it crashed Wednesday night on mountainous territory 50 miles north of Rio de Janeiro.

The air force spokesman said a rescue team landed by helicopter in the mountains at the crash scene near the town of Pedro do Rio found no survivors.

The spokesman said the zone of the crash was difficult of access. Firemen and ambulances were on the way to the scene from the nearby city of Petropolis.

Brazilian paratroops who landed at the crash scene said the plane was "badly destroyed."

World Chess Body Cancels Title Play

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — The World Chess Federation cancelled Thursday the world championship match in Belgrade between Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union and the United States challenger Bobby Fischer after a long dispute with Fischer over financial terms.

Belgrade was to have been the site for the first half of the championship match from June 22 to July 8. The second half was fixed for Reykjavik, Iceland.

Terms for the match were originally agreed on March 31, but Fischer was reported to have subsequently sought a larger financial share, including a share of television and film fees.

The Critical Hours

IF THE NORTH VIETNAMESE OFFENSIVE momentum continues, and the provincial capital city of An Loc is over-run, as now seems imminent, it must be expected that a provisional revolutionary government would be established there. Simultaneously, the Communist command would then be likely to propose an "in-place" ceasefire and negotiations for permanent settlement.

Could President Nixon refuse either proposal? It is most unlikely.

The pledge of Secretary of State Melvin Laird that the bombing of the north would continue until Communist forces were withdrawn beyond the demilitarized zone would be seen at this juncture as an empty threat. And with it would go, inevitably, all the rest of the solemn assurances of support for President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime in Saigon.

President Thieu might elect to fight alone, scorning a ceasefire as a surrender. But he could not escape for long the pressures that would force capitulation to a coalition government plan.

Chester Ronning, a retired diplomat, said in Calgary recently that "the United States must negotiate with Hanoi for a coalition government for all Vietnam."

If that occurs — and perhaps it will — the whole American operation, with all its cost in lives and treasure, would be discredited. It would be an admission of much more than failure. It would be a confession of error in policy and planning that would expose more than one Washington administration to censure if not contempt.

Hopefully, however, the South Vietnamese may rally, and thus avoid a political trap now plain to perceive.

Negotiation is certainly the desirable aim for settlement of this tiresome and tragic dispute. But it is only acceptable when neither side is in a position to dictate terms. And that would be the case if the North Vietnamese were in a position of military advantage.

Mr. Ronning refers contemptuously to the Saigon "dictatorship," holding it guilty of making civil war. But all the South Vietnamese have done to earn his verdict is to reject dictatorship by the north. Non-Communists surely have the right to what they consider freedom.

It will be a tragedy if their sacrifice in that cause proves to have been wasted.

'Messrs. Big' Meeting

SO MUCH IMPORTANCE was placed by Prime Minister Trudeau at the time of his visit to Washington last December in the "hands-off-Canada" pledge President Nixon is supposed to have made him that reaction to anything coming out of the "return bout" at Ottawa this weekend is open to suspect.

It would appear that an attempt was made to make something out of nothing, and that, in fact, the December get-together accomplished little if anything. From the way things appear, the Ottawa meeting will be non-productive, too. But an all-out effort will be made, undoubtedly, to give it importance.

It will come from both principals to enhance their images for the re-election bid each faces. Any chance of meaningful talk between the two can be ruled out by the fact that neither will want to make any concessions for fear of home criticism.

Greater co-operation, with more give-and-take, is needed for prosperous co-existence, but there is not much hope that Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon ever will be able to see eye to eye. They are far apart in their approach and thinking to problems, and neither has shown any signs of willingness to give in.

Both have shown, in their own ways, how stubbornly they stand.

On the Canada-U.S. auto pact renegotiation demand of the U.S. treasury secretary, "With friends like Mr. Connally who needs enemies," was Mr. Trudeau's unoriginal but telling offering.

And on the Ottawa visit, "We will find that we have some very basic disagreements, probably, after the meeting is over," was Mr. Nixon's less crude but all-revealing position.

A Land-Transfer Tax

CENTRAL SAANICH finance committee's recommendation to council on a land-transfer tax seems sensible. As explained by Ald. Ted Clayards, the municipal tax of perhaps one-half of 1 per cent of total value would be levied on properties changing hands, at usually fast-rising prices, and the proceeds would be set aside to acquire "green belt" areas.

It is not universally true, but it nevertheless is a valid proposition that increases in land values stem from provision of municipal services, and municipalities therefore are entitled to some return on sales. Ald. Clayards notes that the federal and provincial governments derive benefits in capital gains tax and registry fees.

But there's one flaw in the committee's proposal. Municipalities in British Columbia do not have the power to impose a land-transfer tax, and the recommendation is that the government be urged to allow them to do so if they wish. And the province, if it could be convinced that the tax would be worth collecting and not politically damaging, would be just as likely to make it a source of revenue for itself.

Political Risks in Election Delay

By LUBOR J. ZINK

ALTHOUGH Prime Minister Trudeau hasn't ruled out a June vote, his aides are now dropping hints of growing probability of postponement of the campaign for six months, perhaps even a year.

Opposition leader Robert Stanfield still believes the march to the polls is imminent. He thinks the prime minister is merely trying to get his opponents off the track for a coffee break and then blow the whistle.

The fact is that the pace of election preparations, which has been gathering momentum since January, isn't slackening. Both Trudeau and Stanfield are maintaining heavy schedules of public appearances across the country and their parties are mustering troops and resources for an early battle. Both the material and psychological momentum of the preparations may have already reached the point where a slowdown poses more problems than completion of the run.

Mr. Trudeau has less than three weeks for weighing the relative risks of putting on the brakes or pressing the gas pedal right down. The deadline for dissolution of Parliament for polling day in the last week of June is the end of April.

★ ★ ★

Unlike his easily swayed predecessor (Lester Pearson), Pierre Trudeau is not a committee man. He suspects any consensus of opinion of intellectual mediocrity and obsolescence. So whatever his advisers may recommend, his ultimate decision will depend on his own reading of the political and economic factors.

Right now neither the political mood of the country nor the performance of the economy are favorable to the government.

All the official and unofficials public opinion polls indicate strong disenchantment with the Trudeau regime and the economy reflects lack of confidence in the policies and the intentions of the administration.

The latest survey on the mood of the electorate by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion shows a 10 per cent drop in popular support of the government since an identical pre-election poll was taken in 1968. While the major opposition group, the Progressive Conservative Party, also registered a drop, it lost only 2 per cent.

More ominous for the government than the narrowing of the pre-election gap between the two major parties is an enormous increase of the undecided vote. It jumped from 20 per cent in 1968 to 43 per cent.

While this reflects general uneasiness, and perhaps confusion, of the electorate, it seems to offer a greater chance of gains to the opposition than to the government. The reason for this projection is the simultaneous sharp drop (22 per cent) in Mr. Trudeau's personal popularity. Since Trudeau's charismatic pull was the decisive factor in the 1968 election, the absence of "TRUDEAUMANIA" in the next contest is likely to have a considerable effect on the outcome.

It would be illogical for people who are disenchanted with Trudeau to vote for Grit candidates, because Trudeau has transformed the Liberal Party into his personal instrument of autocratic rule.

Assuming that the swelling of the undecided vote is largely due to the big drop in Trudeau's personal following, the temporary fence sitters who may find it difficult to declare their intentions will probably come down in the polling booth on the side of Trudeau's opponents. If so, the bulk of the huge undecided vote is likely to go to the Tories, for the two other opposition parties have no chance to form a government.

This may look like a good reason for Trudeau's decision to postpone the election, but it isn't. The obvious and growing decline of the prime minister's personal following has already resulted in prominent desertions from the government side of the House and within the Liberal Party hierarchy. Postponement of the election would increase the probability of more such spotlighted flights.

These political risks in election delay are compounded by bad news from the economic front. With the exception of the U.S. market, exports are dropping sharply, unemployment remains around 6 per cent, cost-price inflation is escalating and the investment outlook is bleak. Figures just published show that the increase in capital investment is likely to fall from 11 per cent last year to 5 per cent. That means stagnation of the productive base of the economy. The reason for it is the Trudeau regime's anti-business thrust which is scaring off potential investors and pushing the country into a chronic state of economic uncertainty.

Postponement of the election would aggravate this sorry state of affairs and hasten the erosion of Trudeau's political position.

Ban Cars In Park

I HEARTILY endorse the suggestion that cars be banned from Beacon Hill Park. In fact I made that same recommendation to the mayor and council of the city of Victoria in a letter last year.

I also suggested a form of pedicabs for those unable to walk through the park.

At the present time it is almost an impossibility for pedestrians to enjoy the beauties of Beacon Hill Park because of the plethora of cars, and the lack of sidewalks. We do not want more blacktop, we do want fewer automobiles.

One wonders how people managed to get around before the day of Henry Ford.

By all means ban cars from Beacon Hill Park and let the people enjoy it, without having to leapfrog out of the way of cars, and without having to inhale the fumes of car exhausts.

R. M. MacDUFF.

Brotherly?

It was very interesting during the recent troubles over the hockey telecasts, to see so-called staunch trade-unionists in their true colors.

Everyone I ever ran into was grumbling and complaining, and breathing all sorts of oaths, but most of all calling on the government or somebody to do something about it. Most of all however, many of them were saying that either such strikes should not be allowed, or they should be made to work on such occasions.

It is really fantastic to see such brotherly feeling towards fellow unionists who are trying to get, what they consider to be, a fair shake.

These people don't care how much they inconvenience the public when it suits their purpose, but let someone do it to them, and that is a horse of a different color.

I cannot help wondering just how the NABET members feel right now towards their union brothers.

HAROLD MORTON,
P.O. Box 1701,

Shoplifting

Your editorial on shoplifting is correct in saying it is encouraged by "modern methods of merchandising," in plain English by the tempting display within easy reach of goods not adequately supervised. It is no accident that the vast majority of cases involve a limited number of large stores which pursue the impulse-buying sales method, or that this should be attended by a rise in "impulse-stealing."

You then go on to resign yourself to the "fact" that this kind of selling (and presumably, stealing) is here to stay. No doubt it is as long as business is allowed to operate in any manner it pleases, regardless of the cost to the public, but it is not inevitable that it should be allowed to.

One appropriate measure would be, in addition to fining the shoplifter, to impose a penalty on the store for "inciting to crime." Alas, this is impractical, since the public would pay the fine and the store would continue business as before.

A more promising approach would be measures to increase the number of clerks so that all customers would be under proper surveillance and unable to yield to temptation. This would require an increase in salaries and produce howls of anguish from store operators. The public pays in any case and it should be up to the stores to prove that any addition, less the saving from reduction of theft losses, would be greater than the electrical and other surveillance which do so little to prevent them.

Not only would this provide new employment, it might bring the further advantage that the non-thieving public could find a clerk when needed without having to conduct a search of the store.

JAMES R. HENDERSON,
3364 Doncaster Dr.,
Victoria.

Chest Salary

I heard over the radio that the director of the Community Chest is to be paid $15,000 a year, by way of salary. I have always supported the Chest since I helped to initiate it in Kelowna many years ago but there is no way that I will contribute to the Chest under these conditions. If, in all Victoria, there is not a man who will do this task for the good of what the Chest accomplishes; if there is not a man retired but still able who will volunteer — then, for me, there is just no way that I will give of my fairly meagre means to pay someone $15,000. I won't save my usual contribution for myself but will send it to CARE of Canada. No way, Mr. Editor; just no way!

The huge steamship Titanic struck an iceberg on her maiden voyage 60 years ago today — in 1912 — and sank before dawn April 15 with the loss of 1,503 of 2,207 lives. Then the largest vessel afloat at 45,500 tons and 882½ feet long, and costing $7.5 million, the Titanic was believed unsinkable and had not enough lifeboats. The iceberg stripped off the ship's bilge from end to end and she sank in less than three hours.

Unusual Accomplishment

By FRANK LOWE

IT isn't every day, let me tell you, I get a letter that opens with this sentence:

"You are an individual of unusual accomplishment."

Mind you, I have occasionally expressed that thought myself, but generally speaking other people have been very successful up to now in suppressing any urge to agree with me.

★ ★ ★

Naturally, after wallowing for a few delicious moments in that opening sentence, I couldn't help but read on.

While in it's way it was equally flattering, it left me a mite puzzled. This sentence read:

"It is my pleasure to inform you that your biography is being considered for publication in the Eighteenth Edition of Who's Who In Finance And Industry."

Finance and industry?

Now, I could understand it if I was being considered for inclusion in the Eighteenth Edition of Who's Who in Belle Letters.

After all, I have written more forewards to other people's books than any man since George Bernard Shaw.

But in industry and finance I am not exactly big. I mean, I'll take a flyer now and then —five bucks that the Rangers beat Canadiens this year, for instance — but an E. P. Taylor I am not.

However, the letter did nothing to clear up my puzzlement. Particularly the last paragraph which said cryptically:

"On behalf of the board, let me congratulate you on the accomplishments that have led to consideration of your name for inclusion in Who's Who In Finance And Industry."

★ ★ ★

Frankly, I'm willing to accept congratulations from anybody, anyhow, any time, anywhere. But I wish the writer of this lovely letter would let me in on what accomplishments I am supposed to have achieved.

It is pretty difficult, you know, to tell people, "Just got congratulated by the editor of Who's Who in Finance And Industry for my accomplishments," without being able to answer that inevitable question:

"What accomplishments?"

★ ★ ★

True, some people might get away with this by acting slightly mysterious and referring to back-stage dealings which can't be mentioned at this time. As I said, some people might be able to get away with this, but not me.

The crowd I run with would laugh me out of the bar.

The form attached to the letter which I am supposed to fill in and return is not much help, either. It wants me to list my directorships and trusteeships.

I wonder how it would sound if I put down, "former director, Montreal Men's Press Club"?

It also suggests that I mention the "style in which principal occupation is to be listed," for example, "Banker, steel company executive."

Do you think a four-month stint as a junior in the Royal Bank really qualifies me to list myself as "banker"?

After puzzling over this strange letter which came to me all the way from Chicago, I could come to only one conclusion.

Those people think I am the real Howard Hughes.

PERKINS — by John Miles

Hitler and IRA Leader 'Created' by Childhood Influences

Youthful Hatred Motivates Rebel

By HAROLD MORRISON, from London

The stern disciplinarian who dominates the Irish war against British troops reveres the memory of his Ulster mother and resented his English father and stepmother.

MacStiofain

In fact, each time Sean MacStiofain barks out an order to keep the Ulster war boiling, he may in part be expressing a deep inner hatred linked with his early life in East London.

For Sean MacStiofain, the so-called chief of staff of the Provisional Irish Republican Army, was born in London John Stephenson, the son of an Ulster mother and an English father who fought in the two world wars.

Sean was about 10 years old when his mother died and a year later his father, a solicitor's clerk, remarried.

"He didn't like me and told me so," says the stepmother who found her stepson headstrong and self-willed.

But until Daily Mail reporters traced the stepmother, now 63, she had kept silent, uncertain that the boy she knew as John Stephenson had become the unbending IRA leader who rejected an Ulster truce and ordered his IRA men to continue bombing, burning and assassinations without letup.

'I Never Thought . . .'

"I never thought he would have turned out to be like this," says the stepmother who remarried after Sean's father died in 1959. "I wonder what his father would have thought about him. Thank God he never lived to see it."

At the age of 14, when his father was in the Second World War, Sean left school and drifted from job to job. At 17, he was still drifting but determined to learn Gaelic and to live in Ireland.

He joined the non-violent Gaelic League in London and the Daily Mail says that it was about this time that he met IRA men. At 19, he married an Irish girl from Cork.

After a national service stint with the RAF, he got a rail job in London. His associations with IRA extremists came to the attention of the police who were investigating arms smuggling info Ireland.

Police found that one of his associates was Cathal Goulding, now head of the Official IRA in Dublin which competes against the Provisionals for Roman Catholic loyalty in Ulster. The two became close friends and tried to establish a construction firm which later went bankrupt.

Two years later, in 1953, Sean — who was still known as John Stephenson — and Goulding were caught by police as they stole a quantity of arms and ammunition from an Essex cadet school. They were sentenced to prison for eight years.

It was while in prison that Stephenson became determined to become completely fluent in Gaelic; to change his name to the Gaelic version and to leave England.

With his wife and their two children, he settled in Navan near Dublin. Sean became a paid organizer for the Gaelic League in Dublin and later gained promotion within IRA ranks.

To many critics he is a total enigma — an Englishman who became fanatically anti-English. But The Daily Mail suggests the remarriage of Sean's father was for the boy a traumatic experience.

Loyalty to the memory of his dead mother led him to become enamored of Ireland and everything Irish," the newspaper said.

"It was a classic case of a child revolting against a new stepmother."

Nazi Fuehrer Magically 'Killed' Father, Brothers

By BENOIT HOULE
From Paris

Jacques Brosse, a French psychoanalyst, claims that Adolf Hitler's emotional development stopped at the age of six. Brosse, author of Hitler Before Hitler, found an explanation for the Nazi leader's behavior not in his political actions but in his childhood.

"I believe," he wrote, "that the true secret of Hitler has never been found because investigators contented themselves with studying his public carer, while in psychoanalysis everyone knows that the first years of life determine what follows.

"If I had to establish my diagnosis, I would say that Hitler kept the mentality of a child of six for his whole life."

In a postscript to the book, Albert Speer agreed.

Speaking of Hitler, Speer, the Nazi leader's architect and armaments minister in the Third Reich, said:

"He had the fierce obstinacy and will of a child of six.

"My own grandchildren, with the mulish stubbornness which they use to get what they want, often remind me of Hitler, whose wishes could not be denied by anybody."

★ ★ ★

Brosse said there was no real sexual link between Hitler and Eva Braun who is quoted as having once said to friends:

"He brings me nothing that a man can give a woman."

Eva was above all a kind of housekeeper, a secretary, a sweet and peaceful presence,

Hitler

Brosse said, "who held Hitler's hand through his siestas and his sleepless nights."

★ ★ ★

Historians do not agree on the number of brothers and sisters Hitler had.

His father Alois was a tall, hard man, his mother Klara had a delicate and fragile profile.

Little Adolph always had a great passion for his mother and feared his father to the point of hating him, Brosse said.

★ ★ ★

A new, little brother, sickly and frail, arrived in the Hitlers' home, requiring all his mother's attention. Adolph felt frustrated and dispossessed by the newcomer whom he wished to disappear. The miracle happened.

Little Edmund died. Adolph's older half-brother Alois, named after his father, was imprisoned at the age of 18 for theft and disappeared in time from the family circle.

The father himself, an irritable customs officer, died leaving Hitler alone with his mother who overprotected him and with whom he led an idyllic life.

"In a way," Brosse wrote, "he assumed the place of his father whom he denied to the extent of later destroying all memory of him.

"He saw himself as his own sire who owed his existence to himself with his mother. But especially, because of the series of deaths, he experienced a powerful and dangerous feeling of deliverance and strength."

By the time Hitler was 11, he had put to work what he believed all his life were his magic powers to eliminate mysteriously his rivals.

It was at that time, in his childhood, that Hitler became obsessed with the idea that all his wishes would be transformed into reality.

Able to kill his father and brothers simply by wanting to, Hitler believed he could, in the same way, conquer the world solely with the strength of his psychic powers.

U.S. Firms Give Blacks A Break --In Africa

By PAUL DOLD
From Cape Town

The Polaroid experiment launched 15 months ago to better black wages and working conditions in South Africa is snowballing.

Top executives of two of the largest U.S. corporations — IBM and General Motors — were in the country April 10 to probe conditions at their local subsidiaries.

A senior IBM team led by T. J. Watson, executive chairman, and Gilbert Jones, chairman of IBM's world-trade division, had slipped unannounced into South Africa. Members of the team had talks with local IBM officials.

★ ★ ★

IBM is tight-lipped over the visit and is clearly displeased that news has leaked out. Watson will be assessing IBM's market position in South Africa as well as progress made toward advancing black workers.

General Motors chairman Richard Gerstenberg is expected to meet Watson in Johannesburg where both are to talk with Fred Van Wyk, director of the influential South African Institute of Race Relations.

The institute recently set up a special division to help companies introduce enlightened employment practices. Both the top U.S. executives will have the opportunity to question Van Wyk on black advancement within South Africa's legal framework.

★ ★ ★

This visit of executives reinforces rising interest in South Africa over the wage gap — the widening chasm between black and white workers.

In a remarkably frank interview on his arrival in Johannesburg, Gerstenberg confirmed he was visiting the country to check whether GM was making sufficient progress toward racial equality.

He said General Motors, along with other U.S. corporations, is concerned over campaigns in the United States to force them to withdraw from South Africa. The GM chairman contended that his firm was making great strides in bettering the lives of its black workers.

★ ★ ★

GM will stay in South Africa and grow with the country, Gerstenberg says, and he has pledged to do anything in his power to better the lot of the blacks.

Such developments are starting to show the benefits flowing from Polaroid's experiment — confirming its catalyst effect here.

In an interview, the managing director of Pepsi Cola's South African subsidiary, Sam Desch, told me his group would soon announce plans for its own plan to help black workers.

The soft drink firm has been working on projects for several months. It is committed to the rate for the job, regardless of race, and already many blacks are employed in the same categories as whites.

★ ★ ★

By announcing its intention to introduce its own racial equalization, Pepsi has taken the lead over several more prosperous U.S. groups.

The president of the Association for the Advancement of the African People of South Africa, M. T. Moerane, says he hopes other countries such as Britain will follow the enlightened policy of Americans.

"We want American investors in South Africa to be agents for positive change in this country by enabling Africans to get to higher levels of employment," Moerane explained.

Nations Urged To Think Small

Economic Expansion Kills Quality of Life

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
From Oberhausen, West Germany

Think small. This is one message emanating from city hall here, where 1,250 guests from 23 nations are this week pondering "the quality of life."

Statesmen, such as West German President Gustav Heinemann, politicians like Swedish Premier Olaf Palme, and hundreds of professors, philosophers and trade union officials from both sides of the iron curtain are participating. That they are merely making a start is widely understood: as one speaker noted, not long ago there were few people who didn't automatically equate progress with prosperity.

The world-wide threat of pollution and the perseverance of old types of social unrest plus the appearance of new ones have rapidly disillusioned people. "Are we headed for a catastrophe?" President Heinemann asked the delegates.

He didn't answer the question. Erhard Eppler, West Germany's minister for economic development, indicated there was no answer yet. "We talk today of the quality of life, but we don't know exactly what this is and — even less — how to improve it," Eppler said.

Eppler launched the "think small" thesis by expressing doubts about traditional sacred cows of civilization. He doubted the benefits of bigger streets for more cars, bigger power plants for greater consumption, bigger airports for faster airplanes, more pesticides for richer harvests and last but certainly not least, more people on a shrinking planet.

★ ★ ★

He was seconded by Palme, Sweden's young Social Democratic prime minister. "Economic expansion means new problems and doesn't solve old ones as we once thought," he said. Palme, in a variant on the think small approach, called for greater emphasis on better quality products which last longer, and better recycling of used goods.

Eppler, Palme and Anthony Wedgwood Benn, chairman of Britain's Labor Party, all drew similar political conclusions: neither the present economic institutions nor the existing political bodies could solve the burgeoning problems of human survival.

"More and more people are coming to see that our present political structures are not capable of giving them the quality of life they want, said Wedgwood Benn. Referring to present-day political leaders, he said "Many are still dressed up as generals and wondering why the troops have mutinied."

★ ★ ★

Both he and Palme saw increased democratization as the only way out, and the Swedish politician warned: "Already there are increasing calls for order, stability and strong men" as the only means of solving the problems facing mankind.

"What we lack is not administrative ability of technical brilliance but community influence over technology and production," he added.

The communist speakers occasionally appeared to be fish out of water at this conference. Where Wedgwood Benn talked of problems of leisure time and hypothesized that "even absenteeism can be interpreted as opting for leisure against money," the deputy president of the Soviet trade union organization remained mired in antiquated concepts.

"The communist ideal is that of the harmoniously developed personality, the industrious human being for whom work is the prime need in life," said Pjotr Pimenov.

Prof. Stewart Blake of the Stanford Research Institute spoke on management of environment protection. He pointed out that only seven per cent of America's workers are employed by industries which are major polluters. Closing these industries down would affect only a small proportion of the employed population, he suggested.

Fiesta Mexicana Complete Delight

By ERITH SMITH
Colonist Staff

"Complete delight" might describe audience reaction Thursday evening to Fiesta Mexicana — but at that it would be a weak description.

The sellout house didn't want any number to end in the varied, exciting program, and when I had to leave to keep a date with a typewriter they were still applauding full force and there was still colorful activity on stage.

Mexican dancers and Mexican music are not unknown in Victoria; but surely the full flavor of both was never savored as fully as in this program, presented by the Victoria Symphony Society.

Javier de Leon's company of more than two dozen artists is now in its fifth season and has won acclaim in tours of its own land, the United States and Europe.

They bring all the color, gaiety and romance of their homeland, ranging from the ritual dances of the ancient Mayans and Aztecs to the flirtatious folkdances of Mexico's various provinces, developed in the years since Spanish occupation.

The ancient dances opened the program, and authenticity was the keynote from music to costumes.

Featured here was Lino Segura, himself an Aztec who is a real tribal chief. Using pipe and drum, he plays the ancient music which has descended through the centuries — and, amazingly, manages to dance the feathered snake ritual while still piping his music.

A highlight of the first half was provided by Danial Armas, playing the zither-like salterio with a backing of treble, melody and bass guitar.

Armas is surely without peer in his mastery of this instrument, upon which he can make music laugh, cry, dance, whisper or peal out at will.

He played a half-dozen selections, both Mexican and North American and if the audience had its way might never have left the stage.

Balance of the dances were from the post-Spanish period in Mexico — from Veracruz, a state noted for the gaiety of its people; from Michoacan, a wealthy state which jealously guards its old traditions and from Chiapas.

Throughout, the five young women and five young men dancers performed with an obvious enjoyment that carried out to the audience. Their costumes, especially those of the girls, brought gasps of admiration.

Bursts of laughter greeted the dance of the Old Men, in which the five, masked and tottering on canes, barely managed to get on stage yet indulged in a brisk, if teetery and tangled step-dance.

Two more soloists made notable contributions — Charro Valentino with his rope tricks and singer Victor Manuel Sosa.

Rope tricks are rope tricks, but wait till you see them on a blackened stage with rope and costume trim picked out in phosphorescent paint.

Sosa took a microphone downstage for his sons, but I don't know why. He certainly didn't need it, with a true, strong voice that could if need be rock the back row of the balcony.

Here was another example of the real flavor of familiar Mexican songs provided through the talent of a true Mexican.

Music for all the "modern" dances was provided by a mariachi band of eight musicians: three violins, two trumpets and the three guitars already mentioned.

Dance Critics Baffled

LONDON (CP) — The Toronto Dance Theatre performed its second program here Wednesday night and the critics continue to be generally impressed by the group though somewhat baffled by its more complex offerings.

The Times suggests it was rash of the company to tour abroad at this stage, although it has a "sound professional level of dancing ability," but adds that the experience probably will do it good.

Philip Hope-Wallace of The Guardian says he was glad to see the 250-seat theatre full because the company's avant-garde work, while commanding respect for its style, might be dismissed by some as solemn and pretentious.

"It is not so, but story-lines are not at all easy to follow, except in the most considerable of last night's offerings, A Thread of Sand."

The Guardian critic says this account of the life of Christ contained "some beautiful things," with a "most moving crucifixion" and choreography by David Earle that proved "spare and effective."

But Hope-Wallace says the two earlier offerings, Encounter and Rhapsody in the Late Afternoon, baffled him. A similar reaction comes from Times critic John Percival, who found the opening tableau of Encounter promised more than it fulfilled.

"It has an air of wanting to mean something — but I cannot imagine what."

The Daily Telegraph calls this ballet an "original and intelligent version of the life of Christ" which makes its impact through bold groups and "roughly expressive gestures well performed by the four main dancers . . ."

The electronic music of Ann Southam set the mood for each scene and supported the dance patterns with "a fine feeling for theatrical effect," says The Telegraph.

Pianists Compete at Festival

By BERT BINNY

It was piano day at the Greater Victoria Music Festival Thursday with 132 performers listed on the program, of whom just over 20 failed to appear.

Of these 20 or so the vast majority were in the senior classes. Two were ill and one had a broken arm which is nothing if not a handicap when playing the piano.

But festival officials had no expanation of why the others did not perform as scheduled.

The interesting open concert group class was won by Allen Reiser with 271 points while Kwok May-Ling was close behind with 266. But it was a class full of artistry, technical ability and feeling on the part of the performers.

Competition in speech arts ended with two non-competitive classes and three more in which there was no competition because of single entries.

The speech arts honor performance takes place tonight: 8 p.m. at St. Ann's Academy auditorium.

At the evening piano session in Fellowship Hall Walter Prossnitz scored a handsome 94 in the under 13 to under 15 20th Century Music class. This Twentieth Century material seems to breed high scores.

But Walter had already scored a 91 in the Romantic class so that his overall record is enviable.

More piano classes culminating in the City of Victoria Medallion and provincial championship competitions take place today. These latter start at 7:30 p.m. at Fellowship Hall of First United Church.

"Most impressive!"

This was the description given by adjudicator John Simons to the piano performance of Angela Brigden in the Twentieth Century Music (senior) class.

Angela received 92 points for her effort, the highest mark awarded in the piano division up to that point. Both Susan de Burgh and Walter Prossnitz have earned 91 and three other performers, Allen Reiser, Kwok May-Ling and Roger Scobie, have had 90s.

Club has membership of 2,366 employees who have served with Hydro for 25 years or more.

Government Must Decide

Who Buys Computer?

TORONTO (CP) — Ownership and financing of computer communications are critical questions facing the government, Science Minister Alastair Gillespie said Wednesday.

"With respect to computer networks, the really critical decision is whether the networks, should be owned in Canada," he told a meeting of the Canadian Information Processing Society.

"This country in the past deliberately took steps to ensure that the vital railway, airline, broadcasting and banking institutions remained in Canadian hands and a computer communications network falls naturally in the same class."

Executives Named

MONTREAL (CP) — The appointment of three executive vice-presidents of Canadian National Railways was announced today by N. J. MacMillan, company chairman and president.

R. A. Bandeen, former vice-president of the Great Lakes region, becomes executive vice-president of finance and administration; Jean H. Richer, former vice-president of the St. Lawrence region, becomes executive vice-president of passenger, express and non-rail services and Pierre Taschereau, former vice-president of the law department becomes executive vice-president of corporate affairs.

Pollution Team

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will send a four-man delegation to the Soviet Union in June to study pollution control in the Russian pulp and paper industry.

Fern G. Hurtubise of the environment protection service of the environment department will head the delegation.

Loans Decline

OTTAWA (CP) — Loans to businesses by chartered banks declined slightly in January, but the expansion in business activity indicated by last year's rapid growth in business loans kept its momentum.

Statistics in the latest issue of the Bank of Canada Review show chartered banks had $10,999 million in business loans outstanding at the end of January, compared with the record $11,068 million of December.

Stocks Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thomas Dohm, president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, said Wednesday he hopes to have the VSE recognized in Alberta as the stock exchange for that province.

The Vancouver exchange now processes the Calgary Stock Exchange trading in its computer and publishes the Calgary quotations in its daily bulletin.

Insurance Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Life insurance in force in Canada at the end of 1971 totalled $121.9 billion, an increase of $10.8 billion or about 10 per cent for the year, the superintendent of insurance reported today.

It was almost equally divided between individual and group insurance. Canadian companies carried $84.9 billion, British companies $6.3 billion, and other foreign companies $30.6 billion.

Hollinger Down

MONTREAL (CP) — Hollinger Mines Ltd. reports a slight drop in 1971 profit following a change in financial reporting practices to reflect the company's share of earnings of Iron Ore Co. of Canada.

Hollinger profit last year was $12.2 million or $2.48 a share compared with $12.4 million or $2.52 a share during 1970.

Air Fares Pared?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board ruled Wednesday airlines must offer joint fares in all markets, a move which could trim up to $40 million from the cost of air travel.

Under the present system, a passenger who uses two airlines to reach his destination often must pay the total cost of the two tickets, plus a $4 dollar "handling charge" for the so-called interline ticket.

Dear Mr. Clarke;
The joint-venture programme has proven to be a very successful retail plan. As a Radio Shack operator, I enjoy the security of my own business backed by a trusted reputation that no amount of advertising could provide. Any risks normally found in most small business operations are not found here.
Under the joint venture agreement, a competent manager enjoys excellent prosperity. The company provides excellent inventory control, good supervision and accurate training to ensure even those with limited electronic knowledge will succeed in an excellent, lucrative investment.
No other opportunity offers the challange, the security and the prosperity proven by Radio Shack's tremendous expansion.
Regards,
John Rendall

Thanks for the Crane Ride

Old horsedrawn carriage comes down hard way — by mobile crane — after being squeezed out of now boarded up opening 2½ floors up. Carriage has been in storage in Eugene, Ore., ever since horseless models became popular. Building, built in 1912, once had freight elevator—now sealed up.

'Injustices to My People'

Hijack Motive: Tell Grievances

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Mexican determined to tell his grievances to the world hijacked an airliner over Arizona Thursday, diverted it to Los Angeles and then held a tearful interview with Spanish-speaking newsmen aboard the craft before he surrendered.

It was the fourth hijacking incident in the United States within a week.

Ricardo Chavez Ortiz, 37, a cook and the father of nine children, released the 27 passengers and three stewardesses from the Frontier Airlines Boeing 737 in return for the "interview" with one radio and one television reporter. The flight crew of three remained aboard.

He rembled for two hours and 45 minutes about "injustices to my people." Then he told Capt. Willie Hurt, "I want to surrender my gun. As you can see, it's empty."

Ortiz demanded no ransom or amnesty, saying the issue was "one of justice in our society."

In Denver, Frontier Airlines president Al Fedman disclosed that Ortiz was questioned when he tried to board the plane in Albuquerque, N.M., because he matched the "profile" of a hijacker. Fedman said he was interrogated and asked to produce identification, but was not searched.

The drama began when the gunman seized control of the regional airliner on a flight leg from Albuquerque to Tucson, Ariz.

Police artist Ector Garcia spoke with Ortiz in Spanish. At one point, the hijacker told him:

"I don't want to bring harm to anyone. Look, Garcia, what I want is radio and television newsmen aboard. This is a problem of all the sons of Los Angeles and the republic. For my part, I don't care. What is important is that I have an opportunity to explain my reason for my action. After that, when the reporters board, explain to the passengers I did not want to harm any of them."

We don't expect you to buy Pinto just because it is priced under VW, Datsun & Toyota.

A nice price is only the beginning of value in Pinto.

In the box at the right you can see Pinto is priced well under the leading imports. There's more. It's what you get for that price that really completes the definition of value. With Pinto you get some things that the imports mentioned above don't have.

Rack-and-pinion steering, for instance. The rack-and-pinion system is used by some of the world's great racing cars. It makes for precise, responsive handling. To you, that means you should be able to get your Pinto into that tight little parking spot a little easier.

Pinto also has a wider stance than any of the imports mentioned above. Pinto was built with a wider stance to give you greater stability. Which should come in handy on windy days on Canadian expressways.

Now some of the imports have recently been talking about the features you get in their basic price. Well, with Pinto, you get a choice of extra features. We've taken some features that a lot of people seem to like with their Pinto, and we've put them together in a group that offers particular value. Priced as a group for only one hundred dollars you can now order front disc brakes, bodyside molding, whitewalls, wheel covers, and a rear window defroster on the 2-door sedan. Pinto will then cost $2393. And that means Pinto will still be priced below all three of the leading imports.

| VW SUPER BEETLE $2464 | DATSUN 510 2 DOOR SEDAN $2595 | TOYOTA COROLLA 1600 2 DOOR COUPE $2568 |
|---|---|---|
| PINTO PRICED LOWER BY $171 | PINTO PRICED LOWER BY $302 | PINTO PRICED LOWER BY $275 |

Of course, if you decide not to order this group of features, the price for Pinto is then $2293. The choice is up to you. You see, with Pinto, you don't have to pay for what you might not want. These Pinto advantages simply add up to the fact that we are trying to make sure that Pinto offers you a little more value than the competition.

Another example of this effort is our new Pinto wagon. We figured if you are interested in buying a wagon, you'd probably be most interested in the amount of cargo area you get. That's why we designed our Pinto wagon to offer you more than sixty cubic feet of cargo space. Which is more cargo space than the VW, Datsun, or Toyota wagons offer you.

Even with all the cargo space, the Pinto wagon is still only about ten inches longer than our Pinto sedan. Which means that it still offers small car maneuverability.

And our Pinto wagon at $2628, as you might expect by now, is priced under the VW, Datsun and Toyota wagons.

A nice price.

And a lot of value.

Taken together, all these facts lead us to feel that our Pinto offers you a little more. But don't just take our word for it. Take a closer look at Pinto for yourself. At your local Ford Dealer.

This is an explanatory paragraph. It is rather lengthy, but we want to be as clear and accurate as possible. The comparison of prices in the box above, is based on manufacturers' suggested retail prices and does not include destination and delivery; preparation and conditioning charges (included for Datsun 510); license and provincial tax. When we refer to Pinto 2-door sedan prices of $2393 and $2293, and the Pinto wagon price of $2628, these are also based on manufacturer's suggested retail prices not including destination and delivery; preparation and conditioning; license and provincial tax. And when we refer to the $100.00 group option price the figure is, once again, based on manufacturer's suggested retail price.

Expect more from Ford.

Sound Ranger Display Eliminates Canadiens

MONTREAL — Montreal Canadiens, surprise winners of the Stanley Cup last year, were dethroned Thursday night by a club winning a playoff series for only the second time in 10 chances dating back to 1956.

New York Rangers, who scored the last of their three Stanley Cup victories in 1940, ended the season for the Montreal club by scoring a 3-2 victory which gave them the best - of - seven quarter - final four games to two.

The Blueshirts, owners of the second-best record in the National Hockey League this season, won the first, second, fourth and sixth games. In league play this season, they won three and tied two of six games with Canadiens, losing only the meaningless last game of the schedule.

CHICAGO NEXT

Winners over Toronto Maple Leafs in last year's quarter-finals but semi-final losers to the Black Hawks, the Rangers go to Chicago Sunday to start a best-of-seven rematch.

It looked for a while on Thursday as if they would have to go back to New York for a Sunday game against Canadiens.

Showing considerable desire and some of their old-time form, the Canadiens swept to the attack as the game opened and came back with the equilizer two minutes after Rangers had opened the scoring against the run of the play.

THINGS CHANGED

And when things changed in the second period with the Rangers almost completely dominating play, Canadiens fought back again to tie the score a second time. But they could never get back the goal starry Walt Tkaczuk scored in the first minute of the third period and were outshot, 16-9 in the last 20 minutes as Rangers left only die-hard Montreal fans doubting that they were the better club.

Star of the series finale was the husky Tkaczuk, who led the game's most effective line.

NO ANSWER

Canadiens had no answer for Tkaczuk and his wingers, Gene Carr and Bill Fairbairn. The combination not only scored all of the New York goals, Fairbairn getting the other two, but it put a damper on the Henri Richard - Frank Mahovlich-Yvan Cournoyer line, which had been expected to be the biggest danger.

Mahovlich was always a threat but he came away pointless, and while Cournoyer did get away for a goal on a brilliant solo effort, he was well shadowed by Carr, a fleet rookie from Nanaimo, B.C., having his best playoff game.

DEFENCE SOLID

Rangers again got a solid performance from a defence once more led by the Rod Seiling-Jim Neilson pairing, and there was excellent goaling as usual from Ed Giacomin, who included in a number of brilliant stops an incredible save on Mahovlich just after the 3-2 goal and a fine skate save on a blast by Jacques Lemaire in the last minute.

Fairbairn opened the scoring after Montreal-defenceman Guy Lapointe hesitated when he got the puck near the centre line and became trapped when the alert Tkaczuk poked it away to get a partial break.

Tkaczuk was stopped by Ken Dryden on his close-in try but Fairbairn followed up unchallenged to get to the rebound and lift the puck over Dryden.

The goal scarcely halted the Montreal attack, and Cournoyer brought the 18,196 fans to their feet with his contribution. He beat Vic Hadfield at the Montreal blue line, sped down the right boards, left Dale Rolfe flatfooted at the New York line and, partially off balance, went right on to flip the puck over Giacomin before Brad Park could recover.

Terrific Ranger pressure in the second period didn't pay off until the 10th minute, when the hustling Fairbairn made his scoring shot possible by getting to the puck first and avoiding an icing call. After that, he positioned himself to wait for the pass from Carr, who fled around inside the Montreal zone with the puck until he found the opening.

Giacomin, firing the puck into a corner without looking, got the play started for the 2-2 goal.

Marc Tardif was there for it first and passed it off to Guy Lafleur, who made amends for his failure to check Carr by making a clever backhand relay to Jacques Lemaire. Uncovered, Lemaire beat Giacomin with a backhand shot.

Tkaczuk, swinging from the right side towards the centre as he beat J.C. Tremblay, got the winning goal by teeing up about 45 feet out. Dryden seemed to move too soon and in the wrong direction and missed making the catch as he was going to his knees.

Needless penalties taken by Claude Larose, who had a misconduct added when he slammed his stick to the ice, and Pete Mahovlich slowed the comeback attempt by Canadiens, but they did get a power-play opportunity late in the game.

It came when Neilson got a penalty for putting the clutch on Frank Mahovlich not long after Park and Pete Mahovlich had gone off together to the penalty box.

There were 77 seconds left but Giacomin stole the scene. After his great stop on Lemaire, he just missed becoming the first goalkeeper to score an NHL goal his clearing shot going about a foot wide of the empty net. And then he closed things out with another great stop 10 seconds from time.

Mt. Douglas Holds Lead In Colonist Shield Race

Mt. Douglas, the Greater Victoria school dominating the track and field scene in recent years, looks ripe to pluck the Colonist Shield from inaugural-winner Victoria.

Only the 26th annual inter-high school city track and field championships, on May 12 at Centennial Stadium, is left in the battle for the shield which goes to the school in the Greater Victoria Senior Secondary Athletic Association with the best record through the whole academic year in a variety of sports.

Mt. Douglas, fourth in the competition in 1971 and currently leading Victoria by eight points, is favored to retain the track and field crown they have won the past four years. Although 50 points are available, 25 each to the boys and girls team champions, any reasonable finish by coach Stan Gill's squad would assure Mt. Douglas of the coveted award.

Showing uniform strength, Mt. Douglas has picked up 92 points in boys' sports and 91 in girls' competitions for 183 points. Victoria, with a strong boys showing of 107 points, has 175 points, 18½ more than third-place Oak Bay. Victoria won the shield in 1971 with 165 points, 1½ more than Oak Bay and four more than Claremont. Mt. Douglas finished with 121½ points.

Rules of the competition stipulate that, in league sports, only the final regular-schedule standing counts, not playoffs. In sports such as track and field and swimming, it has been established that a single meet or tournament would determine the distribution of points for the shield. First-place finishes in each competition were given 25 points, with a 20-15-10-8-6-4-2 breakdown for second through eighth positions.

Maximum points for the leaders this season were earned by Mt. Douglas' provincial champion girls basketball team, girls' cross-country runners and boys' swimming squad. Three boys' squads collected 25 points for Victoria — soccer, volleyball and badminton. Victoria and Reynolds split 45 points (25 for first and 20 for second) for a first-place tie in girls' volleyball.

Fourth-place Claremont and fifth-place Belmont have two 25-point efforts each, Claremont in boys' cross-country and rugby and Belmont in boys' and girls' basketball. Oak Bay, which has four seconds, gained top points in girls' swimming.

If Mt. Douglas finishes second in both boys and girls divisions in the track and field events at Centennial Stadium, Victoria would have to come in on top in both sections to win by two points. Two third-place finishes for Mt. Douglas would knock Oak Bay out of the running for the shield, donated by The Daily Colonist to help increase interest in high school sports.

Boxing Club Protests West Win

Defending-champion Victoria West could be out of the Victoria and District Soccer League's Jackson Cup competition.

London Boxing Club, beaten 3-1, Wednesday night, lodged a protest Thursday claiming Wests used two ineligible players — juveniles Steve Forsland and Wayning Lee. Forsland scored the third goal.

The B.C. Soccer Commission is expected to rule on the protest before the weekend.

Castaways Face Meralomas For Rounsfell Cup Saturday

Castaways will try on Saturday to become only the third Vancouver Island club to win the Rounsfell Cup, symbol of B.C. club rugby supremacy, since the Second World War.

Coached by Allan Rees and captained by strong-running centre Tom Browne, Castaways edged James Bay Athletic Association, 18-13, last Saturday to win the Victoria Union's Barnard Cup.

But the supreme test will come at Macdonald Park Saturday when Castaways meet Vancouver Meralomas at 2:30 p.m.

University of Victoria Vikings prevented Vancouver Kats from winning the Rounsfell Cup for the third year in a row when they upset the Kats in last season's final.

Only other Island club to win since the War was Oak Bay. The Wanderers won in the 1959-60 season and tied for it again in 1961-62.

Castaways' main strength this season has been in its classy backline of Cliff Yorath, Rick Price, Browne, Rees, Craig Dalzeil, Gillie Greig and Dave Slater.

But the forwards will be strengthened considerably with the return of Peter Gallagher and Mike Walsh from the injured list. Making up the forwards will be Paul Bayliss, Melvin Jones, John Money, John Garvie, Mike Ohman and Wayne Gundrum. Terry Williams is reserve.

Meralomas, the Vancouver champions, will rely heavily on the mighty boot of former Canadian fullback, Barrie Burnham, but several other former national players could worry the Castaways.

Most dangerous of these are winger Jim Ryan, a former Cowichan and James Bay player, and forwards Dick Layzell and Fred Sturrock.

UVic Saxons play Vancouver Red Lion in a Dvision II game for the Province Cup at 1 p.m. Kats edged Saanich Velox in the final last season to take the Division II crown.

United Coach Confident Team Will Win Crown

Coach Frank Grealy has his worries but he's confident Victoria West-United will carry off the Pacific Coast Soccer League crown and the $750 that goes with it on Sunday.

United plays Vancouver Firefighters at 1 p.m. at Empire Stadium in a match the league executive ruled had to be played following an earlier mixup in scheduling.

Paul's Canadians, who beat United, 2-0, last week, lead by one point.

Grealy said Thursday night centre-half Jim Irvine and winger Dean Stokes were both doubtful starters, hampered by leg injuries.

But Grealy said he was "more worried" about the Firefighters than about injuries.

"Although they don't play such good soccer, the Firemen are a bruising team and use the same kind of tactics that Paul's used to upset some of our younger players last week," Grealy said.

"Still, we are concentrating more on mobility and are going into this vital match with far greater confidence than we did last week," Grealy added.

Sunday is also a vital day for Victoria Gorge Molsons, who play Westminster Blues in a special playoff after the United game to decide fourth place.

First-place team plays fourth and second meets third in sudden-death semi-finals. Winners meet in a two-game, total-goal playoff final.

The United squad will catch the 9 a.m. ferry and fans wishing to make the trip should contact Gil O'Malley at 382-0553.

Snooker Champ Adds to Lead

VANCOUVER (CP) — World snooker champion John Spencer of England edged Vancouver's Cliff Thorburn, the North American champion, 8-7, Thursday in their marathon exhibition series.

Spencer now leads 26-19 in the best-of-75-game series, scheduled to continue through Sunday. Best games of the day, both Spencer's were 117 and 114 out of a possible 147 points. Thorburn's best was 110.

Lions Sign Canadian

VANCOUVER (CP) — Defensive-halfback Bob Friend, 21, has been signed on by British Columbia Lions, Western Conference club of the Canadian Football League. Friend, the club's second-draft choice in last year's Canadian college draft, played for Simon Fraser University for the past four years. He weighs 188 pounds and is five feet, eleven inches tall.

Roberto Brilliant

Blues Square Series

ST. LOUIS — Another big contribution by a surprise series hero has propelled St. Louis Blues into a seventh game in their Stanley Cup quarter-final battle with Minnesota North Stars.

Phil Roberto, a 190-pound rightwinger who came to the club in a mid-season trade which sent Jim Roberts to Montreal Canadiens, provided a goal and two assists Thursday night to spark a 4-2 triumph which made it 3-3 for the series.

The three points made Roberto the leading playoff scorer. After a season in which he had 15 goals and 15 assists from 76 games, he has had six goals and five assists in six cup games. He scored 14 goals in 39 games for Canadiens last season but had only one point in 15 playoff games.

A home-ice affair in which neither club has won on opposition ice, the series concludes Sunday afternoon in Bloomington. The survivor carries on to a semi-final meeting with Boston Bruins starting next Tuesday.

Roberto got the scoring started with an unassisted goal at 3:04 of the first period. And then he helped set up scoring shots by Bob Plager, at 6:21 of the first period, and Garry Unger, at 11:07 of the second period, after Bill Goldsworthy had brought the outplayed North Stars to 1-1.

J. P. Parise put his team in challenging late in the third period but Jack Egers got the fourth St. Louis goal only 12 seconds later and the Minnesota threat subsided as quickly as it started.

North Stars may have to play the deciding game without goalkeeping veteran Lorne Worseley.

He started Thursday and was a 1-2 trailer when he was carried off the ice 14 minutes into the first period. He was conscious at the time but had been knocked out when he collided with Bob Plager as the St. Louis defenceman came in to go after a rebound.

The extent of Worsley's injuries was not immediately known. He was taken to hospital for observation.

Semi-Final Rights Released by CBC

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC announced Thursday it has released its television rights to the Stanley Cup semi-finals so that arrangements can be made to permit the CTV network to carry the hockey series.

A CBC spokesman said the publicly-owned network has also agreed to release its affiliated stations so that they may join the CTV in carrying the games.

He said the arrangement with MacLaren Advertising Ltd., which owns the broadcasting rights to National Hockey League games, was made without prejudice to the CBC's right to carry the Stanley Cup finals.

CBC hockey coverage has been disrupted since January by rotating strikes by members of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians.

The CBC spokesman said the arrangement regarding the semi-finals was made after consultation with NABET officials, who refused to give any guarantee of uninterrupted coverage of the games.

Wheaties Top Blades In Marathon Series

BRANDON — Brian Coates' overtime goal Thursday night sent Brandon Wheat Kings into the Eastern Division playoff finals of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Coates flipped in a rebound of Ron Pronchuk's point shot at 5:49 to give Brandon a 4-3 victory over Saskatoon Blades in the eighth game of their best-of-seven Eastern Division semi-final series. Both teams had won three games and one ended in a tie.

Wheat Kings will meet the winner of the Regina Pats-Flin Flon Bombers series which is also even at two wins each and one game deadlocked. Winner of the Eastern final will meet the winner of the Western final between Calgary Centennials and Edmonton Oil Kings.

Glen Mikkelson, Robbie Neale and Rick Blight were the earlier Brandon scorers. Dennis Abrall, Bryon Jackson and Doug Manchak scored for Saskatoon, which had had a 2-0 lead in the series.

Island Pointer Club will hold its big annual licenced field trial Saturday and Sunday at the Wallace Drive farm in Brentwood, with 66 of the top Pacific Northwest pointing dogs competing.

Vancouver Island handlers, flushed with a clean sweep in Vancouver trials last week in puppy and derby stakes feel they will be top contenders in those classes this weekend.

They took the first five placings in the puppy stakes last weekend with Cliff Cox taking first with his English pointer Cypress Belle Sue. Bob Green placed first in the derby stake with his German short-hair pointer Wolfjaeger's Rebel Von Spee.

Both handlers and dogs will be on hand to try to repeat their wins.

The dog to watch in senior competition will be the Seattle Britanny, Pacolet Cheyenne Sam, owned and handled by Ken Jacobson, who needs just half a point to qualify his dog as a Canadian Field Champion. Already it is a National American Dual Champion and a Canadian Show Champion. Any placing will win him his Canadian Dual Championship, but Jacobson will be out to win it in style, with a first placing.

Field trials will start at 8 a.m. both days and spectators are invited to attend.

Spring weather has got to come sometime soon and the nice fishing conditions with it.

Meanwhile reports for the past week are mostly all the same . . . snow, gales and just plain unpleasant conditions for all but the most determined. Outlook is for a warming trend, cloud and rain, which might mean better fishing, if not ideal conditions.

One encouraging thing is that the March run of steelhead has shown later than usual and there is still some fairly good fishing in the rivers for fresh-run fish, although naturally there are numbers of kelts.

The Cowichan has been good below Skutz Falls. The Koksilah has been producing in the Bright Angel Park regions. The Chemainus has been starting to produce. San Juan has been on the low side, but producing a few bright steelhead. Herman Vanderbyl has been picking up steelhead on the Englishman, Campbell, Oyster, Salmon and Gold have all been good bets.

Fresh snow — up to 26 inches in the hills above Port Renfrew and Cowichan Lake — is still hampering access into the off-the-beaten-track lakes, but the more accessible lakes are producing. Shawnigan has been fair on lake troll and paste. Flatfish and Cowichan Spinner and worm has been taking them in Somenos Lake and in Quamichan it has been lake troll, Flatfish and paste.

Cowichan Lake has been cold and miserable and the lake level rose again, although Thursday it was starting to drop again. As soon as the weather warms a little paste at the mouths of the creeks or a troll across the creek mouths should again be a good bet.

Boomerang and Kidney Lakes have been producing in the Nanaimo area.

The Chinook Club will hold its first Sunburn Derby of the year in Saanich Inlet Sunday, from dawn until 2 p.m., and it looks like they just might get some action.

Frank Jenvey went to Bamberton area Sunday afternoon and hit into seven chinooks, and landed four, biggest 10.5 pounds. He was using minnow and strip, 200 to 250 feet of wire line and planer.

Federal fisheries reported Saanich Inlet fair, until Sunday when the chinooks arrived, with catches averaging three to a boat.

There has been a decrease in effort and catch in Victoria-Oak Bay waters, with the catch mainly small chinooks. But in the Sooke effort there have been chinooks taken to 29 pounds, although they have been few and far between.

Cowichan Bay, Sansum Narrows, Crofton, Thetis, Kuper and Tent Island have all been giving up a few chinooks.

It had been almost too windy to fish Nuttall Bay-Northwest Bay waters, but the wind had dropped by Thursday and first boat into Claytons brought in three blues to 3½ pounds, all on different lures . . . a green and white Flashtail, a red and chrome Interior spoon and a silver Tom Mack spoon, and six ounces of weight.

Lambert Channel, between Denman Island and Hornby Island is giving up chinooks and Menzies Bay off Campbell River is giving up grilse and chinooks.

Mid-morning low tides this weekend are ideal for those who like to dig clams, gather oysters, or explore inter-tidal zones.

Shortened Baseball Schedule Will Get Underway Saturday

By The Associated Press

The baseball strike ended in its 13th day Thursday when the owners and players agreed to start the season Saturday without rescheduling any of the 86 games postponed by the player walkout.

The end of the strike came after day-long discussions between the owners, meeting in Chicago, and the Major League Baseball Players' Association, in New York, that resulted in a three-part proposal made by the owners and accepted by the players.

The proposal was that the season start Saturday, none of the postponed games be replayed and no money be paid the players for the games postponed during the first general strike in the 103-year history of the sport.

Announcement of the settlement was made simultaneously in New York, by Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association, and in Chicago by commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Miller immediately hailed it as a triumph for the players.

"Clearly the players have triumphed in something that few people thought they could or would do," Miller asserted. "They have stood together."

Miller also insisted that "this could have been settled last Sunday," emphasizing that there never was a "back pay issue."

"It all came about because the owners wanted to reschedule all the games. The players never asked for back pay."

"I'm delighted to have this over," said Kuhn. "I hope we've all learned a lesson. I will work with people in baseball for procedures to prevent this sort of thing in the future. Nobody wants it again — neither the players, the clubs nor the fans.

"It's inevitable that there will be hard feelings," Kuhn acknowledged. "My job is to hold them to a minimum. I did so in this meeting and will do so with the players. Who won? Nobody. The players suffered. The clubs suffered. Baseball suffered."

Because of the fact that games postponed will not be rescheduled, the season now will range from 153 games for some teams to 156 games for others. Division winners will be determined on the basis of won-lost percentage.

Under terms of the over-all settlement, the owners will contribute $500,000 to the players' pension fund and $490,000 to the health care fund in addition to the annual $5.4 million contribution they already had been making.

The losses involved for the parties concerned are difficult to estimate, but best guesses place the owners' loss at more than $5 million from gate receipts, parking, concessions, and so on, and one cancelled national television game.

The compromise that led to the end of the strike actually was made among the owners in Chicago, where the National League bowed to the American League and agreed to the shortened schedule. Previously National League owners had been adamant about rescheduling the postponed games.

Hill Scrambles to 64 Weary Trevino Quits

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Dave Hill shot a 64 he said he didn't deserve and Lee Trevino withdrew after taking a 74 he didn't want in the first round of the $150,000 Monsanto Open golf tournament Thursday.

"I'm absolutely exhausted," Trevino said. "I just want to go home and rest up for the Tournament of Champions."

"All I can figure is that the good Lord had nothing else to do today but look after ol' Davy," Hill said after posting his leading, seven-under-par total on the 6679-yard Pensacola Country Club course.

Despite the low figure, it was anything but a classic round for the wiry Hill, who missed nine greens, was in the woods, in the sand and once missed a fairway by 100 yards. He did it all with his putter.

Bob Smith, seeking his first victory in five years on the tour, was just one stroke off with a 65. Kermit Zarley followed at 66, with Chris Blocker and former Monsanto champ Jim Colbert at 67.

STARS STAY HOME

Jack Nicklaus, who won the Masters last week, Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, Gary Player and Gene Littler are not competing. Littler, the 1971 Monsanto winner, is recovering from surgery.

Trevino was the only one of the superstars on hand in this run for a $30,000 first prize — and now he's gone.

"It's been coming on for some time," Trevino said. "Then last week, at the Masters, I was under tremendous pressure. I came here just drained.

"I wasn't myself out there. I know I can't play winning golf again until I get some rest."

Three Canadians were well off the pace. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg shot 37-36—73; Ben Kern of Toronto 39-37—76; and Gary Bowerman of Toronto 40-41—81.

West Germans Outscore Swiss

PRAGUE (Reuter) — West Germany scored its first points of the world hockey championship, beating Switzerland, 6-3, in Thursday's only game.

The first of the competition's two rounds ends today with Finland playing Czechoslovakia and Sweden meeting the Soviet Union. The Czechs and Russians are tied with seven points. Sweden has six points and Finland, West Germany and Switzerland two each.

A Diamonair simulated diamond may be just putting on an act. But what an act! The most exacting gem critics are amazed at the scintillating brilliance of the Diamonair performance. Only your jeweler will know that you're not wearing diamonds (and even he may not be sure until he looks very, very closely). Diamonair comes with written warranty against loss of colour or brilliance and against scratching under normal wear. But don't wait for the critic's reviews of Diamonair's performance. Come in and see for yourself!

Diamonair is unbelievable... darling, you can't help loving it.

B.C. Rugby Union Meeting Here

Classy Touring XVs Coming

Partly as a tribute to Vancouver Island's increasing dominance in the sport, the B.C. Rugby Union will hold its first full-scale meeting in Victoria "for several years" tonight.

Main reasons for the Island venue are the fact that the provincial club final for the Rounsfell Cup will be held here Saturday and that Peter Clarke, vice-principal of Quamichan Secondary School, this season replaced Bob Spray of Vancouver as president of the B.C. Union.

Island dominance in rugby shot to the forefront three weeks ago when Victoria Crimson Tide stunned the rest of B.C. by downing the UBC Thunderbirds and then the Vancouver Norwests to take the McKechnie Cup.

The Victoria Union has completed its schedule and Saturday's Rounsfell Cup match signals the end of regular play but there is more excitement in store for fans as visits by top-rated teams provide a gala end to the season.

Oak Bay Wanderers, who play Peninsula Ramblers of San Francisco in their first game of the annual Portland Invitational Tournament Saturday, take on the classy Limerick Bohemians of Ireland at Centennial Stadium on May 18.

Bridgend, current club champion of Wales which last weekend scored its 1000th point of the season, will play Victoria Union champions, Castaways, on Saturday, May 20 at Centennial Stadium.

The Victoria Union hopes Bridgend will field two teams in a special seven-a-side tourney at St. Michael's University School on Monday, May 22.

Bridgend, which will be lining up with at least four current Welsh Internationals and present national sprint champion, John Williams, on the wing, will end its Island visit with a match against James Bay Athletic Association under lights at Royal Athletic Park on May 24.

Eskimo Trial

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos have announced that Steve Pelot, 23, a running back from the University of South Dakota, has been signed to a tryout contract. Pelot is six-foot-one and 215 pounds and was a Little All-American.

Knicks Win

BOSTON (AP) — New York Knicks, led by guard Walt Frazier, opened up a 20-point lead in the second quarter Thursday night and went on to defeat Boston Celtics, 116-94, in the opener of their National Basketball Association best-of-seven semi-final playoffs.

WHA Bonds Due on Weekend

CALGARY (CP) — The position of Calgary Broncs in the World Hockey Association remains unclear despite the presence of two western owners in the city.

Bill Hunter of Edmonton and Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg, both franchise holders in the proposed league scheduled to open play in October, said they had not talked to Scotty Munro since he and two other Calgary backers announced they were withdrawing.

"We have no rights to interfere with Scotty's operations nor do we care to infringe upon it," Hunter said. "Simply, we are here to assure you that the WHA will become a reality at the Chicago meetings."

Hunter told a news conference the Broncs still possess a franchise and will until at least this weekend when the WHA owners meet in Chicago to fulfil certain obligations showing they intend to operate. Heading the list is the posting of a $100,000 performance bond.

"Naturally, we are immediately concerned about the situation in Calgary," said Hunter, general manager of the Edmonton franchise and executive director of the league.

"As far as we're concerned Calgary is a key centre, a major league city all the way. When I first heard of Scotty's withdrawal, it dropped like a bomb.

"I had no idea he was even considering such a move . . . you can imagine how this sudden move has affected our planning."

Hatskin hopes Calgary will be a member of the league even if the Broncs don't meet their financial obligations during the weekend.

"We need a Calgary team in with us. We'll have to make certain some way there's a team operating out of here."

See the all-new Sunbeam Lawn Champ Electric Mowers with more features, more choice, and a free Annual Pre-Season Check-Up.

VACUUM ACTION:
New unique inner-wall construction wind-tunnel deck design creates a powerful vacuum action which lifts up matted grass to be cut evenly, forces cuttings and leaves into back of bag.

NEW TWO-SPEED MOTOR:
Exclusive with Sunbeam. "Low" for normal grass and quieter operation; "High" for heavy or extra thick grass.

AIR COOLING:
A constant supply of cool air is fed to motor. Eliminates heat build-up, extends motor life by up to 65%.

SUPERIOR DRIVE SYSTEMS:
Direct interlocking cogs and cog belts instead of friction belts eliminate slippage, stalling on twin-blade models. Single blade models feature exclusive direct drive. All models have slip-clutch blade protection.

LIGHTWEIGHT CONSTRUCTION:
Deck is cast from strong, rust-free aluminum. Manoeuvres far easier than heavy-weight machines.

NEW FINGERTIP HEIGHT ADJUSTERS:
Cutting height of blade can be adjusted with one hand, in seconds, from ¾" to 2¾". No bolts or screws to fiddle with.

SINGLE DISCHARGE:
Improved discharge system means every Lawn Champ can be fitted with a grass bag to end tiresome raking, sweeping.

IMPROVED GRASS BAG:
Larger capacity, designed to fill fully from the back first. With zipper and end-opening for easier grass removal.

SAFETY FIRST:
Every Lawn Champ meets or exceeds COPEA safety qualifications. Not all competitive machines can qualify, so look for the COPEA seal.

INSTANT FLIP SWITCH:
Instant, sure starts with a more durable, more dependable flip switch instead of less reliable buttons or pull-cords.

TOTAL BUYER PROTECTION PLAN:
(A) A full, two year parts and labour warranty. Longer than most, and more comprehensive. (B) Free Annual Pre-Season Check-Up, (Jan. 15—April 15) at all Sunbeam Appliance Service Company (Canada) Ltd. Stores for the lifetime of the machine. Includes cleaning, lubrication and electrical check.

Jet Stowaway Freezes to Death in Flight

NEW YORK — A runaway U.S. Marine recruit was found frozen to death in the wheel well of an American Airlines 707 jet that arrived at New York's Kennedy Airport Thursday morning from Los Angeles.

The youth, described by police as about 18 years old, apparently stowed way in the landing gear compartment of American Airlines flight 10 which left San Diego, Calif., Wednesday night enroute to New York by way of Los Angeles.

The victim's identity was not immediately disclosed but military police at the airport said he was listed as absent without leave from his base at the U.S. marine corps recruiting depot at San Diego.

Police said the jet flew at 37,000 feet during the more than four hour flight from Los Angeles to New York. At that altitude, the temperature in the unheated compartment housing the jet's landing gear could fall to 50 degrees below zero, they said, and the youth was clad only in a light marine utility uniform.

□

KANSAS CITY — Transportation Secretary John Volpe warned of the dangers motorists face from drunk drivers, and minutes later narrowly missed becoming the victim of one himself. "We must get the drunk driver, the alcoholic, off the road before he kills himself or others," Volpe told the annual dinner of the National Council of Alcoholism here. Then, en route to Municipal Air Terminal a limoupal Air Terminal and limousine in which Volpe was riding narrowly escaped a head-on collision with a car driven on the wrong side of a highway median by a driver who police said was intoxicated.

□

NEW YORK — Hedy Lamarr, film sex goddess of the 1940s, has filed suit for $1 million against a cosmetic firm for allegedly using her name and photograph in advertisements without her permission.

□

WASHINGTON — The White House has announced that President Nixon is sending his deputy national security adviser to South Vietnam to measure the impact of the current communist offensive. Nixon told Maj. Gen. Alexander Haig "to go to South Vietnam to undertake an on-the-spot assessment of the situation there for the president."

□

WORCESTER, Mass. — Joseph Robert Bohn, 38, a former Worcester cab driver alleged to have impersonated a U.S. psychologist to gain an appointment to the faculty of Brandon University in Brandon, Man., was arrested by Worcester police and the FBI for Canadian police.

□

LONDON — Britain's top spy chaser — the man known enigmatically as "D.G." — is due to retire shortly at the age of 60, informed sources said. D. G.'s full name is Sir Martin Furnival Jones, and for the last seven years he has been head of Britain's counter-espionage service known as MI-5.

□

PRINCE ALBERT — This city is without a mayor following the surprise resignation of Val Longworth at a council meeting.

□

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau will visit Edmonton April 27 to 29 on another of his recent series of regional visits.

□

MONTREAL — A national campaign has been launched to establish memorials to the late Dr. Norman Bethune, a chest surgeon who won worldwide fame for his work in Spain and China in the 1930s.

□

OTTAWA — Thomas Ward, a former Canadian Labor Congress official who has been a member of the Unemployment Insurance Commission since 1964, has been appointed acting chairman of the commission.

Hydrofoil Decommission May 1

Bras d'Or Soon 'Hulk'

HALIFAX (CP) — On May 1, the tempestuous saga of Bras d'Or, reputedly the world's fastest warship, reaches another stage.

There will be no ceremonies marking the occasion, but that day the navy will decommission the controversial ship, a 200-ton aluminum hydrofoil craft, taking away her warship status. Then she'll be just a "hulk," property of the Queen's harbormaster in the dockyard here.

It's all part of the mothballing process for the hydrofoil, forecast by the defence department last November. Plans call for her to be laid up for five years before a further decision on her future.

A floating slave-dock on which the hydrofoil was towed to Halifax in 1968 from the builder's yards at Sorel, Que., now is her pedestal as she sits out of the water here.

Bras d'Or has been out of the water since last June when she returned from a record-setting high-speed endurance run to Bermuda and Norfolk, Va.

She went up on the slave dock for repair work and inspection, and it's there she'll probably stay until at least 1976.

Designed for anti-submarine work, Bras d'Or claims the world speed record for warships, a blistering 72.3 miles an hour set in 1969 at the mouth of Halifax Harbor. Developed and built in Canada, she lifts her sleek hull above the water on wing-like foils or fins to attain her tremendous speed.

But changing defence department policy, which now makes protection of sovereignty and surveillance of Canadian territory top priorities, cut off the money needed to continue the hydrofoil project.

When she returned from Norfolk, it had been hoped that the go-ahead would be given to fit her with fighting equipment, the final step in the research project. But there was not enough money in the defence budget.

Model of B.C. government building in Vancouver

B.C. Office Skyscraper

Early Start Eyed

Excavation work should begin on the new 55-storey provincial building in Vancouver by early summer, Public Works Minister William Chant said Thursday.

Chant said he hoped the department would meet with Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell and the city council sometime next week to obtain the final approval of council for the building. Details of the meeting are being arranged now, he said.

Thursday morning a detailed scale model of the building went on public display at the Provincial Museum. The model will shortly be taken to Vancouver and put on display in the library here.

Chant said the building which will be about 700 feet high, will probably take about four years to complete. When finished, it will house almost all the government offices for Vancouver and many of the surrounding suburbs.

When it is first completed there will probably be some space to rent out to private business, he said, but within 10 years from now, it will be entirely occupied by government workers.

July 1, Federal Help or No

Victims' Aid on Target

B.C.'s program to provide aid to victims of crime will come into effect on schedule July 1 whether or not the federal government decides to share in the cost, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Thursday.

But the government is "still hopeful" that Ottawa will come through and begin to share in the provincial costs of helping victims of crime.

Peterson said that the federal government had stated in its most recent throne speech that it would move toward becoming involved in this field. But since, the province has not heard a word from Ottawa on the subject.

The fact that the provincial government will begin the program itself even without federal help should "silence the critics in the Legislature" who said the bill was only window dressing because it would not be implemented, he said.

He described the benefits to victims of crime as the most generous in Canada. The largest lump sum payment that could be made was $15,000 but medical and rehabilitative benefits are also available.

The program will be administered by the Workmen's Compensation Board and the benefits to be paid out will be on the WCB scale.

The reason the program is not being implemented until July 1 is to give the WCB a chance to get organized and prepared to handle the new job, Peterson said.

Having the board administer the program would help the victims, in that their claims could be processed through WCB staff and no formal hearing would normally have to take place to decide if they qualified to receive benefits, he said.

It had also saved the government the cost of setting up a whole new agency to administer the program.

Pilot Project

Prison Work To Be Done For Wages

Because a punitive approach to prisoners isn't working and "there's nothing to loose," about 20 inmates of the William Head minimum-security institution in the Metchosin area are going to work at the federal minimum wage in a pilot project for Canada.

The project will be construction of a vocational centre containing workshops and classrooms. It will employ five men at first and 20 at the peak during the six months of building, which are due to start early in May.

The workmen will be chosen from "quite a few applications" already made to William Head superintendent Gamaliel Milner. They will be paid $1.75 an hour compared to the maximum of 85 cents a day for prisoners.

They will in turn pay the prison for room, board and clothing at a rate of $17.30 a week which is based on $25 a month for room and $50 for board and will be charged $2 a week for work clothing.

Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said Wednesday in Windsor, Ont., that "a punitive approach to inmates has proven to be a failure" since more than 80 per cent of released inmates return to jail and therefore, "there's nothing to lose."

Goyer said it costs $10,000 a year to keep a prisoner in a federal institution and the pilot project will mean some money back to Ottawa while the workers get money for use on release.

The workers will pay income tax, Canada Pension Plan and unemployment insurance premiums and will be able to collect unemployment benefits if they can't find jobs when released.

Jobs on the $278,000 building were advertised among prisoners from Manitoba west. Inmates will do all the work except for excavation, high-voltage electrical installations and two supervisory positions.

The workers will be mostly non-skilled since prisons get few skilled tradesmen and will receive pre-job training in the institution. Any who are unsatisfactory will be fired and returned to normal prison routine and pay. Long-term prisoners will not be eligible

Fishermen Raise Petition

Herring Disposal Opposed

By BROCK KETCHAM
Colonist Reporter

A petition which calls for an end to current methods by herring roe plants of disposing of herring carcasses, is being circulated among sports and commercial fishermen in Campbell River.

Meanwhile, tourists, conservation, sports fishermen and commercial fishermen groups are in the process of forming a united front against the herring roe industry.

The petition mentions "a possible repeat performance of the fisheries department mismanagement prior to the 1967 closure (of the herring roe industry) resulting in decimation of our herring stocks.

"Only one out of six herring are utilized for roe purposes — the balance of male or immature fish being sent to reduction plants or a dump, both practices of which had been disapproved by the fisheries department," the petition said.

Campbell River fisherman Bob Ware, in an interview Thursday, said circulation of the petition began Monday. There are three herring roe plants on the Island and a total of about 11 in B.C.

Ware, who is one of the organizers against the herring roe industry, was unable to estimate how many signatures have been received by Thursday. He said the petition will be forwarded to the fisheries department.

In a separate interview, Bill Le Chasseur said he discovered a pile of herring carcasses deposited by the Campbell River-based West Island Fisheries Ltd. herring roe plant.

The carcasses, Le Chasseur said, had been dumped at an experimental farm, manned by University of British Columbia personnel, 12 miles south of Campbell River. They had been lightly covered with sawdust.

Le Chasseur said he immediately got in touch with sports and commercial fishing groups and won the joint support of both groups against the herring roe industry.

"This is the first friendly alliance we have had in this part of the country between sports and commercial fishermen."

Le Chasseur said the north Island local of the B.C. Motels and Trailers Association, the Vancouver Island Wildlife Association, the Pacific Steelhead Society, the Campbell River Guides Association and commercial fishermens' groups are in the process of uniting.

"It's the crime of the waste that I'm interested in," Le Chasseur said.

He added that letters are being sent to the provincial and federal government by sports and commercial fishing groups.

Reasons mentioned in the petition why the existing herring roe industry should be closed:

- Herring stocks are being depleted for roe purposes. The roe cannot be classified as general food because it is consumed as a luxury by gourmets in Japan.
- The herring roe industry could deplete existing coho and spring stocks in B.C. coastal waters "which has improved greatly in the past two years since the 1967 herring closure."
- Herring harvest as a "true food" would be acceptable if a select method as to maturity could take place. "Desired results, we feel, could only be obtained by the gillnet method." (Herring are currently scooped up by seiners.)

Lawrence Foort, operator of the herring roe plant in Campbell River, agreed the herring carcasses should be used as food rather than be shipped to reduction plants.

He said about 95 per cent of herring carcasses from his plant have been trucked to Tofino Marine Services reduction plant in Tofino where the carcasses are converted to such products as cattle feed and fertilizers.

Only a small portion of the 600 tons of herring handled at his plant was taken to the experimental station, which wanted to use the herring as fertilizer.

Foort said his plant is still in operation. A few areas around Vancouver Island have been closed by the fisheries department and the season has closed in other areas. A total of 48,000 tons have been taken from B.C. waters so far. The season ends in about 10 days.

Bail Reform Law Pushed by Ostler

Canada's new bail reform laws are "enlightened" in their attempts to reduce detention for accused persons, Judge William Ostler said Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court, but parliament meant them to be obeyed.

With that, he convicted Gino Vogrig, 27, of 906 Gordon, on a Victoria charge of failing to appear in court — the first time that part of the new laws had been the subject of a trial in the Victoria court.

Vogrig was charged early last Saturday with obstructing a peace officer, a Victoria constable, after he entered the police station at 625 Fisgard, stopping police from dealing with a friend of his and then refused to leave.

He was advised to appear in court at 10 a.m. Saturday and promised to do so after the officer in charge warned him a warrant for his arrest would be issued if he didn't show up.

Vogrig testified Thursday before Ostler he phoned at 10:30 to say work had delayed him, then arrived at 11 and was arrested.

Ostler praised police for "taking great care" to make sure the proper procedure under the new laws was followed and said Vogrig had "permitted the immediacy of his employment to cloud the necessity" for obeying the appearance advice.

The judge said parliament had passed the laws so detention of accused persons could be reduced "within the public interest" but had indicated it wanted the laws obeyed by making the penalty for failing to appear a maximum of two years in prison.

He said Vogrig deserved leniency because he was "over-engrossed in his work" but added: "It must not be felt these provisions are to be lightly treated, not so far as this court is concerned."

Ladinig Inquest Thursday

An inquest into the March 21 death of 19-year-old Karl Wolfgang Ladinig of the unorganized area north of Durrance Lake has been set for 7:30 p.m. next Thursday in the Victoria Law Courts building, coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre announced Thursday.

The inquest was ordered by Attorney-General Peterson after Ladinig's father asked for a "full and open investigation" of emergency ambulance service to remote parts of Greater Victoria.

In their world, we're No.1

Among fishermen, no other outboard outsells ours. Maybe that's because no other fishing outboard outperforms ours.

Take our 9½. We made it whisper quiet because you'd rather hear the sound of the outdoors than the outboard. We gave it a stylish, low silhouette so you can fish over it, not around it. We added an automatic trolling adjustment, so you can concentrate on fishing, instead of navigating. And we built in 8 separate tilt-out positions so that your outboard can take you everywhere the fish go, including the weeds and shallows.

If you take your fishing seriously, you'll appreciate what we've put into the 9½. And with speeds up to 20 mph., you'll get a lot of fun out of it too!

The Evinrude 9½ is just one of the outboards in the world's No. 1 fishing line. See it along with our 2, 4, 6 and 18 hp. models at your Evinrude dealer's.

Duke Ellington
. . . no greed

Honored as Composer

Duke Joins Classy Trio

NEW YORK (AP) — "Ah," mused an obviously pleased Duke Ellington as he looked at the pictures on the stamps. "Debussy, Bach, Beethoven — and Duke."

The occasion was a concert this week at the Whitney Museum's spring festival, which also features poetry and dance evenings.

Ellington had just been presented a block of stamps by Togo's ambassador to the United States, Epiphane Ayi Mawussi. The stamps bore pictures of the four composers.

Ellington, usually seen by the public as the leader of his band, made a rare appearance as a pianist. The music was written by Ellington and the late Billy Strayhorn.

He played Soda Fountain Rag, but did not mention that he wrote it when he was 13.

One of his longer explanations during the two-hour concert came for A New World Coming.

Ellington said that for 10 or 11 years his band gave an annual concert at Carnegie Hall, the highlight of which was a work of strong social significance. The first was Black, Brown and Beige and the second, in 1944, A New World Coming.

"Of course the place is in the distant future where there will be no greed, no war, no categories, where love is unconditional and no pronoun good enough for God," the Duke explained.

Family Rates Highest

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The top-rated television series, All in the Family, garnered highest honors Thursday in the television academy nominations.

The CBS comedy scored 11 nominations. The closest series were the Flip Wilson Show, the Mary Tyler Moore Show and the Sonny and Cher Comedy Hour with eight apiece.

Among the specials and movies-for-television, Brian's Song won the highest number of nominations — 11. It was the story of the career and early death of pro football player Brian Piccolo.

NBC's Mystery Movie, Columbo, was nominated 10 times and the Hallmark Hall of Fame's The Snow Goose, scored with nine.

The nominations were boiled down from 10,000 individual entries through 14 separate ballots, the TV academy said.

The final Emmies will be handed out May 14 at the awards show on CBS.

Scots' Toes A-Tingle For the Ball

Friends and supporters are coming from as far away as Los Angeles and there is a lengthy waiting list for tickets.

The occasion is the annual ball of the Victoria Scottish Dance Society to be held Saturday at Holyrood House. Dinner is at 6:30 p.m. and dancing continues from 8 to midnight.

A Scottish dance team from Vancouver, led by Mrs. Paulina Barnes, will perform during intermission.

Copeland Surprised over Telepak 'Fuss'

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Reporter

Clare Copeland, key figure in the last two days of controversy over a new government advertising program and a commercial legislative news service, returned to Victoria Thursday and said he couldn't see what all the fuss was about.

In a lengthy interview, Copeland, president of radio station C-FAX which owns the news service, B. C. Radio news, made these points:

● There is no conflict of interest between his role in B.C. Radio News and the work he is doing for the new advertising program, Ask Your Provincial Government;

● B.C. Radio News is completely independent of C-FAN editorially and has nothing to do with the government program;

● The idea of Ask Your Provincial Government was conceived as a public service to give citizens better access to both the media and the government;

● Ask Your Provincial Government will result in extra publicity for the opposition as well as the government because they'll be able to answer the government's statements all week as news;

● He will not receive a commission for his work with the government on the program but will get "a nominal fee" and have his expenses paid;

● Taxpayers are not subsidizing B.C. Radio News when the service makes frequent long-distance calls on the government's free telpak lines because the government pays B.C. Telephone Company the same amount for the lines no matter how many calls are made on them;

● If the service did have to pay for all the long-distance calls it makes, it would be forced to close down immediately, leaving some small communities with no way of getting daily news from the Legislature.

Copeland is credited with being the originator of the Ask Your Provincial Government series in which cabinet ministers will answer, in one-minute spots, selected questions from listeners.

He said he and Mel Cooper, of radio station CKNW in New Westminster developed the idea from the report of the Senate committee on mass media in Canada. That report, commonly known as the Davey Report, was handed down in late 1970.

The report criticized the public's lack of access to both the media and government, and Copeland said he believed a show like Ask Your Provincial Government would increase that access.

At present the public really only has two ways of access to the media, he said — writing letters to the editor or phoning in to radio hotline shows. Ask Your Provincial Government would be a whole new way.

'Gives citizens better access to media, government'

If a large number of people wrote in questions about one topic, this would show the government that something needed to be done in that area, Copeland said. And all questions will be passed on to the cabinet minister involved so they will all get an idea of what the people are thinking about.

Copeland emphasized that he was "not a political animal," that his interest was in using radio to communicate with people in the best possible way. He felt the show should continue no matter who the government was.

He felt that with government ever-increasing in complexity, it was important the citizens should be kept informed with what it was doing, and this show would also help in that effort.

He would not disclose what the projected cost to the government for the ad series during its first four month trial run would be. Previous estimates have placed it about $200,000.

Copeland

CKNW would be handling the mass reproduction of tapes used in the program and their distribution to individual radio stations once the program got going, he said. But neither he nor Cooper were working as advertising agency for the government and would not be paid as such.

All their expenses would be paid, however, and in addition they would receive "a nominal fee."

Copeland said he couldn't undertand why B.C. Radio News had been dragged into the affair of the ad program, because the service had not had anything to do with Ask Your Provincial Government.

Since its inception less than a year ago, the service has expanded from 11 subscribing member stations to 28, he said. He believed this was because it was providing a badly needed service to small communities which previously had had difficulty finding out what was going on in the Legislature.

But it would be impossible to run the service without using the free long-distance service provided on the government's leased telpak lines.

Now each station pays between $100 and $150 a month to receive the news service, he said, but this would be at least doubled if they also had to pay the long-distance charges to phone each story out to them.

The current charges are almost more than some stations can afford and if the long-distance charges were to be added on he doubted if any station except C-FAX and CKNW could afford the coverage.

The government provides typewriters and paper to the legislature press gallery, he said. There is no difference in providing phone lines for radio services.

He considers it part of a government's duty to keep its citizens informed about what it is doing, and the equipment for the press is part of the cost of keeping them informed.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

2,500 Buses Defective

GMC Truck and Coach Division of General Motors Corp. in Detroit Thursday began notifying the operators of about 2,500 GMC buses built in 1963 through 1965 to have their vehicles inspected for a problem that could lead to loss of power steering.

But B.C. Hydro transit operations in the Victoria area will not be affected because the buses, although made by General Motors, do not have power steering, transit manager Rowland Halls said Thursday.

The inspection of the 2,500 buses will determine if power steering booster housings need replacing, a company spokesman said. The buses are used in city and suburban transit systems.

Chevy Nova.
The reasonable alternative for small car buyers.
Here's why.

The small car is a big thing in B.C.

Yet people are starting to look for a car with the economy/handling advantages of the small car plus the stability/space advantages of the larger car.

That's what Chevy Nova is all about.

Not-too-big.

Nova is about a couple of feet longer than your average small car. Which isn't much. So you'll find Nova quite simple to wheel around and easy to park.

Nova doesn't cost that much to buy or to run. Calling it reasonable is being modest.

Not-too-small.

On the other hand, we did build Nova to offer relief from small-car cramps. Those couple of extra feet mean there's room for six adults (or two adults and a pack of children), and a trunk big enough to take all their stuff.

Out on the road, Nova sits tight on corners and holds steady in crosswinds. And on long highway runs or long hills, Nova has no problem keeping up with the big ones.

Very dependable.

Nova has an enviable reputation for dependability. And that was convincingly confirmed by a survey carried out last year among independent garage owners/managers and servicemen. These car professionals voted our Chevy Nova, "The car with the least mechanical problems."

Compare the value.

Good value is made up of many things. Proven dependability is one of them. See how it pays off at trade-in time.

But Nova's value is much more.

You have the opportunity to take the basic car (quite something as is) and add other extra-cost features to suit your own personal taste. You can get power steering if you want it. And power brakes, too. Or a sun roof on the coupe.

If you like the idea of a small car but don't like the limitations, Chevy Nova could be for you.

To be sure, see your Chevrolet dealer.

GM
Buckling seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with.
Some of the equipment illustrated is optional at extra cost.

'Smart-Alecky' About Jobless Cure

Grits Cool to Taunts

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and a string of Liberal ministers turned aside opposition questions on unemployment Thursday with statements that the government plans no extraordinary action.

The exchanges during the Commons question period sparked some cross-floor heckling and the comment from Max Saltsman (NDP — Waterloo) that government members are being "smart-alecky about the whole thing."

Spur for the debate was a rise in March unemployment over that of February, announced by Statistics Canada Tuesday. The percentage of the work force unemployed, seasonally adjusted, rose to six per cent in March from 5.8 per cent in February.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield asked whether the government still feels there are plenty of jobs around or whether it will take new action to meet the unemployment situation.

Prime Minister Trudeau said the answer to both questions was no.

Stanfield then asked Finance Minister John Turner whether a government budget, announcing taxing and spending programs, would be presented soon.

If there is going to be one, Turner said, sufficient notice will be provided.

Saltsman, calling the rise in the jobless rate a serious one, asked whether the increase had been predicted in government forecasts, but he was ruled out of order. He then asked whether the government has taken any action in anticipation of the latest figures.

Turner said he has neither the foresight nor hindsight of Saltsman, drawing the "smark-alecky" comment from the NDP member.

John Burton (NDP — Regina East) asked whether the latest figures are consistent with government forecasts. Would the government give MPs its forecasts for coming months.

Turner, while saying there are too many unemployed, said he is "not in the business of forecasting."

The minister was confident that a strengthening economy would reduce the jobless level.

Earlier, Burton tried unsuccessfully to have Turner called before the Commons finance committee to explain the government's forecasting procedures and the reason for the "latest unpredicted increase" in unemployment. His motion required unanimous consent and it was denied by the Liberals.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said unemployment in the Atlantic provinces is far above the national level and asked whether economic assistance agreements with those provinces would be renogiated to give them further help.

School Bums

YOUNGSTOWN, Alta. (CP) — About 200 high school students will move into the town hall and the elementary school today after fire destroyed the high school early Thursday.

Full Time Jobs Down In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — There were an average of 34,800 jobs vacant and available for full-time employment during the final three months of 1971, down 10 per cent from the previous three months, Statistics Canada and the manpower department reported Thursday.

In B.C. and Yukon Territory, number of jobs open in all occupations for the last three months of 1971 was 2,900, 4,600 and 1,900 respectively.

The figure compared with 38,500 job vacancies in the third quarter of 1971, and 21,500 vacancies in the last three months of 1970. While the number dropped 36 per cent between the third and fourth quarters of 1970, it declined only 10 per cent in the same period last year.

The statistics are based on a semi-monthly survey conducted by the statistics bureau and averaged over a three-month period for analysis by the manpower department.

In addition to the 34,800 full-time jobs available in October, November and December last year, there were 5,000 vacancies for temporary and part-time workers, adding to a total of 39,800.

Unemployment was estimated at 530,000 in December, 1971, rising from 503,000 in November and 447,000 in October.

The job-vacancy total for blue-collar workers declined slightly to 19,600 in the last three months of last year, from 20,000 in the previous quarter.

Gangland Deaths 'Spring Cleaning'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The mounting toll of underworld executions in New York city is "apparently just some spring cleaning" within individual mobs and not open gangland warfare, a high police official said Thursday.

"I'm not saying there were no underworld overtones to the killings," said the official, who declined to be identified. "But they do not constitute warfare.

"Open warfare," he said, "involves members of one gang shooting it out with members of another gang. This is apparently just some spring cleaning" by the individual Mafia families.

Seven men with known underworld connections have been slain in a two-week period, and 15 have died since the assassination attempt last June on Joseph Colombo Sr.

"The only real 'name' to get rubbed out," the official said, "was Joseph (Crazy Joe) Gallo, and many of us strongly feel that this was no professional mob rubout."

Following Gallo's assassination last Friday by a lone man who shot the gang overlord as he celebrated his 43rd birthday with his family and friends in a restaurant, authorities theorized the killing was in retaliation for the assassination attempt on Colombo. Gallo and Colombo were longtime rivals and at one time Gallo was considered the prime suspect in the Colombo shooting.

Sharp Tells U.S. TV

Anti-Americans Will Lose

OTTAWA (CP) — "Any Canadian government that follows an anti-American policy loses the next election," says External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

He also told an NBC television interview there now is "a more realistic appraisal and understanding" of Canada-United States relations than in the recent past.

"On the whole, the relations between our two countries are very healthy indeed."

The comments were made during the Mohday taping of an interview for release Thursday night.

Asked what he expects President Nixon's visit to Ottawa will accomplish, Sharp replied:

"First of all it's an indication of how important we consider one another — Canada and the United States. This visit is both ceremonial and will also, I expect, deal with matters of substance, but it is, I think, first and foremost an indication of the important relationship our two countries have to one another."

Sharp denied the interviewer's suggestion that Canada-U.S. relations have worsened.

He said that since Trudeau and President Nixon came into office, "both countries have followed rather parallel policies."

"There is a very great similarity, for example, between the Nixon doctrine and the Trudeau doctrine," he said. "We have felt and the United States have felt that the time has come for a redistribution of the burdens of defence and so on.

"We have also said that we are going to limit our commitments to our capacities and discharge them, just as President Nixon has said.

"So I don't really think that there has been a worsening of relationships."

He also denied that there was significant anti-Americanism in Canada.

He was asked if it is possible "for Canada to reach an agreement on changing the auto pact in any way before an election takes place in this country — Canada — without giving the electorate the impression that you have knuckled under to the United States?"

"It would be very difficult, I agree," replied Sharp.

CTV To Carry Nixon

OTTAWA (CP) — A union bid to strike down an injunction forbidding picketing on Parliament Hill during the visit of U.S. President Nixon was rejected Thursday by County Court Judge C. F. Doyle.

The ruling leaves the way open for technicians employed by CJOH, the privately-owned television station in Ottawa, to supply live coverage of the Nixon visit.

The CJOH broadcast will be carried by the CTV network and will be supplied to U.S. networks but not to the strike-bound CBC.

The injunction was obtained Tuesday by CTV to prevent members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians on strike against the CBC from picketing Parliament Hill and Ottawa International Airport during the visit.

Suddenly, Nelson, B.C. As Amnesiac Awoke

NELSON B.C. (CP) — William Robert Sloan, 24, insurance salesman missing from his home in Griffin, Georgia, for two weeks, is on his way back, recovered from an amnesia attack.

RCMP said Sloan had been directed to them after he became aware of his proper identity and tried to call the state police, not realizing he was in Canada. He was standing before a Chamber of Mines window display at the time.

He complained of a headache and a doctor who examined him found a large bump on his head which he judged to be about two weeks old.

Sloan had first called his wife and had no idea where Nelson, B.C., was when informed by the operator. He then called police.

Sloan told the RCMP he had picked up hitchhikers after leaving home on a couple of insurance calls. One of the two hitchhikers climbed into the back seat. He said he drove for a while, then recalled nothing until he "woke up" in Nelson.

Accused Anonymous Under Proposed Law

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The state senate passed legislation Wednesday prohibiting the news media from identifying persons arrested or indicted until after their cases are disposed of in court.

The measure now goes to the House for consideration.

Attorney-General Richard Israel said the law "would hamper law enforcement and deprive the public of its right to know."

Sen. Joseph Rodgers said it would protect accused individuals who are later acquitted.

Pay Raise Peanuts—Frampton

Members of Victoria city council didn't show a great deal of enthusiasm Thursday when they cleared the way for a 6.5 per cent mayoral and aldermanic salary increase.

With some reluctance council instructed the city solicitor to prepare a bylaw for the pay increase proposal.

Council was hesitant not out of consideration for the taxpayers, but because aldermen felt that 6.5 per cent wasn't enough.

Ald. Percy Frampton told council the raise would come to $19.50 a month for the aldermen which was "peanuts."

Aldermen said, however, they would go along with the small increase because of a provincial government's order-in-council restricting pay increases for elected representatives to 6.5 per cent.

Peter Pollen
. . . moral argument

Indications that council's willingness to accept such a small pay increase may be used as a moral argument in contract negotiations with city hall staff employees came from Mayor Peter Pollen.

"As your mayor, your chairman and chief magistrate, I think it's ridiculous. Changes in an alderman's job have been so drastic that, I think, citizens would improve on the amount of the increase," Pollen said.

"It's an opportunity for us to show that we are law-abiding and it may be a beacon to other organized groups in our community to also accept a 6.5 per cent salary increase," he said.

If council approves the proposed increase following the bylaw's preparation, aldermen will be paid $3,834, an increase of $234. The mayor's salary will go to $15,975 from $15,000.

Forest Firms Fire Salvoes on Paper

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Labor Reporter

The guns may be silent, but the bombardment goes right on.

That's the way it looks these days as the coast region negotiators for the forest industry and the International Woodworkers of America continue to avoid each other. At the same time, both sides have been telling their stories in print.

It seems to be a bit of a one-sided war.

The IWA press releases are few and far between. But Forest Industrial Relations, which bargains for the forest companies, has been unloading large numbers of leaflets on the rank-and-file union members, the news media and politicians.

The two sides couldn't agree at the bargaining table before talks broke off last week and they can't apparently agree on what may be and may not be new in the leaflet war.

For instance, Weldon Jubenville, president of the 4,500-member IWA local at Duncan, said Thursday: "There's nothing new about sending leaflets to the members, but what is new is that they are mailing them to civic officials this time. All the members of the council at Lake Cowichan have received copies."

Said John Billings, president of FIR: "There's nothing new about this. We have always sent out regular newsletters."

Murray Drew
. . . good shape

But Billings can't say exactly how much material is going out this time.

If each IWA member involved in negotiations got a single leaflet at any one time, the total would be about 28,000. But if the members are getting the same treatment as the Colonist, the number would multiply quickly.

One Colonist reporter has been receiving two and three copies of each release.

"It's the age of the computer," quipped an IWA official. "The forest industry's propaganda computer is running wild.

"It looks like they might be sending out enough paper to keep a pulp mill in business."

Another IWA spokesman, Murray Drew, president of the 2,100-member Victoria local, said the leaflets "are not having the effect on the membership" he feels has been intended by the industry.

"In fact, they are having an opposite effect. The members are determined this year they are going to get the best increase they have ever had," Drew said.

He says figures show the industry can well afford this, even though it has said it can't.

The last FIR leaflet (it is called a bulletin) says:

"Coast Woodworkers. Sure, you'll get a pay increase this year. But it can't be an increase costing $3.20 an hour.

"Here's why . . .

"Your union's demands would cost $150 million in one year. This is more money than the industry made in 1971. Obviously, the money doesn't exist. Something has to be done to scale these demands down to a realistic level."

The two sides are awaiting the services of a mediator. The coast contract expires June 15.

The actual wage increase demand is $1 an hour. The industry names $3.20 an hour as the total cost of the demanded package.

"The industry is in good shape, contrary to what John Billings says," Drew said.

He said the union wants to return to the bargaining table (the dispute is going to a mediator) and that "we don't want it to run past June 15."

"John Billings could be in trouble if it does."

Bay Village Legalities Favor City?

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Victoria has a good chance of winning a possible court battle involving the controversial Bay Village proposal, a Victoria lawyer has told the city.

It was learned Thursday that, in a 10-page document being kept confidential by city hall, D. M. Gordon has evaluated the city's position in the clash with developer J. A. Mace who stated several weeks ago he would take the city to court over its refusal to sign a development contract for his James Bay project.

Aldermen declined Thursday to comment on Gordon's legal opinion which was solicited by city council some time ago.

But Mayor Peter Pollen said the lawyer's report was "very, very encouraging for the city."

The mayor said he couldn't discuss details of the document until council had seen it.

Ald. Mike Young, chairman of the city's planning committee, also refused to divulge details of the report.

"As far as I'm concerned, it's classified information until council has a chance to look at it," Young said.

Mace was not available for comment Thursday, but he said several days ago he hadn't abandoned plans to take legal action against the city.

The controversy is about a proposed 29-storey apartment tower with adjacent shopping centre on a three-acre site at Simcoe and Menzies.

The project is to be built under section 702-A of the B.C. Municipal Act which requires both parties, the city and the developer, to enter into a land-use contract.

The project was approved by council last June, but Mace waited until December before he signed the contract.

When he submitted the contract to the city for its signature, council refused on the grounds that Mace's application for a development permit was defective.

At the time of the application, the city said, Mace didn't own the complete parcel of land on which the project was to be built. Mace said he was and is sole owner of the land.

Gordon's report on the city's legal position is also believed to include detailed information on possible complications inherent in the land-use contract scheme.

The section enabling municipalities to enter into such contracts with developers was added to the B.C. Municipal Act two years ago. Its purpose is to give municipalities tighter control over zoning and development.

Under the amendment, municipalities may request certain concessions from a developer. These concessions become part of the contract and are binding on both parties.

As long as a developer builds within existing zoning restrictions, he doesn't have to enter into a land-use contract. It's only when he wishes to build outside the restrictions that the municipality can insist on a contract.

Alaska Pipeline

Ecology Fight Rule Weighed

Decision on an appeal by pollution-fighter MP David Anderson and the Canadian Wildlife Federation for the right to join a lawsuit against the proposed trans-Alaska pipeline was reserved Thursday by the United States court of appeals.

A ruling by the three-judge court in Washington, D.C. is expected within two weeks.

The wildlife federation and Anderson, Liberal MP for Esquimalt-Saanich asked the court Thursday to overrule a decision last January in district court in Washington which denied them the right to intervene on the grounds that the lawyers for American conservation groups would adequately protect Canadian interests before the courts.

David Anderson
. . . private citizen

Anderson is acting as a private citizen, joined by the 150,000-member wildlife federation and financed by public subscriptions.

Their lawyer, Edward Berlin of Washington, argued that in some circumstances, Canadian environmental and economic interests would be antagonistic to American interests, and thus the Canadians needed separate representation.

If Interior Secretary Rogers Morton approves an application to build an oil pipeline across Alaska, seagoing tankers will threaten the British Columbia coast enroute to refineries on the U.S. mainland, he said.

At least 80 giant tankers a year would be traversing the narrow straits near southern B.C. and at least one major accident a year seemed inevitable, Berlin said.

Lawyers for the interior department and the consortium of oil companies seeking to build the pipeline replied that Canadian interests could be represented by submitting briefs directly to Morton or through diplomatic channels.

Chief Judge Skelly Wright commented that if the tankers "are going to weave their way . . . all around Vancouver Island, there's a great danger that there will be significant damage to the environment."

Victoria Hospitals Win Praise

Victoria's two general hospitals were cited by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Thursday as examples of efficiently-run institutions which have maintained good standards of patient care while remaining within their budgets.

Loffmark said Royal Jubilee had a surplus of about $50,000 last year and Queen Victoria Hospital, formerly St. Joseph's, also had a surplus.

(Royal Jubilee's surplus was announced at its annual meeting earlier this year. Loffmark did not give figures for Queen Victoria, which holds its annual meeting later this month.)

The health minister was commenting on statements made Wednesday by Opposition leader Dave Barrett that government financial policies were restricting hospitals to the point where they were having to lay off staff.

Grants Frozen Pending Rules

When Victoria city council approved a $5,000 grant Thursday for the Victoria West Neighborhood Centre, aldermen made one thing clear:

Ove Witt
. . . firm policies

No similar grants are to be paid to any other community organization until council has established definite policy guidelines for the inclusion of "human values" in its municipal responsibilities.

No such policies exist now. Grants to neighborhood centres have been approved or turned down on an individual basis.

Approval of the $5,000 grant marked a departure from city council's past practice. It was the largest amount ever given to such a group and was approved within one week from the day it was requested.

Approval Given Swiftly

Approval came a little faster than most aldermen liked, including those who voted in favor.

Ald. Ove Witt told council the city should have firm policies on "just how far we get involved in such things." If, as a matter of policy, the city started to concern itself with services other than the traditional physical services, including sewerage, road construction and parks maintenance, "we should probably have a say about how the money is spent."

He suggested that the city should, perhaps, "have a hand in who's running them (the neighborhood centres)."

The city might also consider having a full-time program co-ordinator who would see to it that community and neighborhood centres get the best possible value for the city's money.

The Victoria West Neighborhood Centre operates out of a house at 519 Craigflower Road, adjacent to Banfield Park. The group has leased the city-owned building for five years.

More than 3,000 people a month take part in the various programs offered by the centre. These include preschoolers, teenagers and senior citizens.

At first, the centre was operating on a part-time basis only, but with the help of a $16,000 federal grant under Ottawa's local initiative program, it has been open six days a week for the past five months.

The grant expires May 31 and to date there is no indication that it will be renewed.

Chores May Be Curbed

Computer–Great Liberator

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The computer may well become the greatest women's liberationist of them all.

It helped to get our men to the moon. It already is keeping track of your bank deposits and withdrawals, your billings at a department store.

But as marketing expert Frank Masi projects one of the computer's roles in the future, it will eliminate many of the time-consuming chores around the house. In years to come (before the end of this century), Masi says the computer will be as much at home as the dishwasher, the television set, the telephone.

New homes will have built-in "terminals" taking up no more space than a typewriter and television screen.

The terminals will be connected to a master computer at, say, a bank or supermarket, which stores all the information that the householder feeds into it for a feedback on call either on the screen or printed page.

Masi believes the home computer will come into action simply because women will be conditioned to its uses in offices. "Some 80 per cent of the office users of computers are women," he said.

Masi is vice-president for marketing of Cascade Data, Inc., a Grand Rapids, Michigan-based firm which specializes in tailoring computers for smaller businesses.

Masi described what could be the way the home computer operates to do the supermarket shopping. The market would offer the householder a membership for a fee. Say it gets 200,000 members and installs its own sending and receiving equipment. It compiles each day a food and other items directory, price, brand name, et al.

The market does away completely with the decorated store next door or within driving distance. Instead, it sets up a warehouse system, where decor doesn't matter.

It also changes its policy so that the housewife can expect delivery instead of hauling her own grocery cart around traditional aisles.

Merely by sitting at a console in the kitchen (or elsewhere), she can "call up" to check prices, specials being offered, place her order and even ask the computer whether she's within her weekly allotment for food spending. At every month or quarter, she can ask the computer what she's spent on any item.

From the warehouse, the supermarket's fleet of trucks — "grocery stores on wheels," as Masi calls them — can deliver within two or three hours after she's ordered.

The way Masi sees it, the computer will take over a lot of other of the household routines — "but maybe not the shopping for clothing or furniture, what I'd call the esthetic items," he said.

The computer can keep track of bills due, what regular payments are coming up on such things as the car or the mortgage so the budget-maker can plan for them, tell you how much mileage you're getting in gasoline for the car, remind you of the children's school holidays, even store the family's medical record for instant call-up.

But can the computer clean house — one of the more onerous jobs of running a home?

"If the new homes are built with a central vacuum system just as they now come with central heating, central air-conditioning, yes," he said. "The computer could be programmed to suction off dust when the housewife wishes . . . could be told when to spray a deodorant in bath or kitchen."

Does Masi have a computer in his home in Grand Rapids? "Not yet," he said, "but the time will come."

A baptismal service in St. George's Anglican Church at Ganges recently was quite a family affair.

Archdeacon George Hedley Holmes, long-time rector of the Anglican parish of Salt Spring Island, now retired, conducted the Easter service for two of his great-grandsons, 16-month-old Jamie Douglas Thornton and 10-month-old Warren Scott Smith.

Jamie is the son of Douglas and Maureen Thornton of Port Alberni and Warren, the son of Roy and Elaine Smith of 615 Raynor, Victoria.

Warren's paternal great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nevers of Chilliwack were there and both children's paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thornton of Chilliwack and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Smith of Ucluelet, and Arthur Holmes of Richmond, grandfather to both children, also were on Salt Spring for the christening.

Cheryl Buswood of Port Alberni was godmother for Jamie and Doug and Maureen Thornton are Warren's godparents. Both little boys wore white outfits with white sweaters which had been knitted by their great-grandmother, Mrs. G. H. Holmes of Ganges.

Others present were Mrs. A. H. Holmes, Christina Holmes and Beth Chatwin from Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Chan and family from Kamloops; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Tombs and Laura Tombs from Duncan; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Dargatz and Mrs. T. Thornton from Sardis; Mr. and Mrs. Colin Nicholson from Victoria and Mrs. Joyce Parsons and David Parsons, Ganges.

A buffet luncheon followed the church service at the home of Archdeacon and Mrs. Holmes.

The LaLacheur Trophy went to First, Elin Petch, Helen Yoachim, Helen Dickout and Eleanor Dalrymple. Second, Ruth Jackson, Amy Champion, Jessie Brown and Muriel Mayhew.

The Fun competition was won by Dorothy Mather, Anne Dance, Ella Hovey and Betty Clynick. Second, Joyce Horsley, Dorothy Pitt, Telma Cooper and Agnes Parmenter.

The Scurrah Trophy, presented by Elsie Hamilton went to Jean Chaudler, Muriel Mayhew, Bernie Morriss and Betty Clynick and Second to Helen Yoachim, Sadie McArthur, Hazel Janes and Jennie Bennett.

The lucky door prize winners were Edith Leach, Eleanor Dalrymple, Lillian Groves, Bertha Lister and Mary Cleland.

A lovely plant was presented to Eleanor Dalrymple, the retiring president.

Dorothy Mather is the new president, Amy Champion and Doreen White, first and second vice-presidents; Sadie McArthur, treasurer and Jennie Bennett, secretary.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know who else to complain to so I am writing to you. Maybe you can help.

My next-door neighbors are a lovely couple. Last week they had four children. Today they have three. Their baby, the only boy, died mysteriously in his sleep. He wasn't sick a day. The autopsy showed that the baby died from what was termed "crib death," the cause of which is not known. Some physicians say it's a mysterious virus that strikes suddenly; Others say it's suffocation from too much covering.

The parents are heartbroken. But what I am writing about is this: What can be done about the inhumane treatment the parents received when they brought the baby to the emergency room of the hospital and again, when they were interrogated by police? Even the people at the morgue viewed them with hostility and suspicion. These grief-stricken people were treated as if they had killed the baby. Can you imagine subjecting distraught parents to a third degree? What can be done about such gross callousness and brutal insensitivity? — Outraged Friends.

Dear Friends: Several hundred young children die every year as a result of being battered by parents. This, of course, is what the questioning was about. There is no excuse, however, for such inhumanity as you describe — especially when the baby bore no signs of having been abused. A better system must be devised.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter, from "Kissless-Bride" whose groom didn't kiss her after the minister said, "I now pronounce you man and wife." After 20 years she was still so unhappy about it she had to write to Ann Landers.

I have a view on the subject which my husband shares. We feel that a kiss is an intimate expression of affection and should be a privat affair. We decided not to kiss at our own wedding and several people complained — as if they were cheated out of something.

When this letter appears in print (if it does), it may move some young couples who are contemplating marriage to rethink the matter. — No Show.

Dear NO.: The important thing is not whether the bride and groom kiss at the alter — but that they continue to express affection throughout the rest of their lives.

Law and Criminal

System 'Failing' In Deterrence

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

Laws that prevent a guilty person from giving evidence that may incriminate him, and preliminary hearings should be done away with, says W. H. Kelly, retired RCMP deputy commissioner.

He also wants to see the return of the death penalty, particularly for those who kill policemen or prison guards.

In a speech Thursday before the Women's Canadian Club, Kelly referred to the new Bail Act as a "noxious act."

The crime rate is rising at an alarming rate, with police and courts handicapped in dealing with the criminal, said Kelly.

Retired RCMP officer Kelly

"If necessary changes are to be brought about, said Kelly, "then the control of our criminal justice system must not remain the prerogative of the legal profession."

Kelly's speech on Law and the Criminal brought murmurs of approval and applause at various points.

He will speak again today to the Men's Canadian Club.

On hanging Kelly said:

"I believe hanging is a barbaric practice, but when the punishment of any crime is not as great or greater than the injury inflicted on the victim, then there is no deterrent and that crime is encouraged.

"To me that is just plain logic.

"I am forced to the conclusion that the punishment for premeditated killing must be as great as that visited on the victim, especially for those crimes perpetrated on the police and prison guards who are in the front line defending us against the most vicious elements of our society."

Kelly said that it appears that he is a voice crying in the wilderness on the need for reform of the entire system of criminal justice.

Law Changes

"What," he asked, "is so sacrosanct about our laws that we won't change them?"

The measure of a criminal justice system is whether or not such a system is meeting the desired objectives — the deterrence of crime, restraining those who might commit crime, and the rehabilitation of those who have, he explained.

"In my opinion we are failing in all three," Kelly said.

"Let us face the fact that there are so many conditions and circumstances under which modern crime is committed that all the police can do is prevent a very small portion of crime.

"The police, for instance, can do nothing to prevent fraud committed by officers of financial institution or the many crimes in the general field of so called white-collar crime," he said.

Kelly suggested that the police could be more effective in the detection and prevention of crime if they had a greater certainty of obtaining a court conviction.

Certainty of conviction, he said, would be a greater deterrent to the potential criminal than fear of heavy punishment.

Some of the forces working against the police, he said, were restrictions placed on police in questioning a suspect, some of the rules of evidence, leniency of sentence and the emphasis on rehabilitation of a criminal as opposed to the security of the community.

Evidence Rules

Kelly said today's criminals are better educated than before, they commit crimes more efficiently using more efficient techniques. They work more in groups, and with present-day transportation can commit crimes hundreds and thousands of miles from their own homes and get away often before the crime is detected.

"It is also true that conviction of the criminal is made more difficult by his knowledge of his rights and the rules of evidence," said Kelly.

"Furthermore, neither he nor his counsel — provided by legal aid in many instances — is required to assist the police or the courts at getting at the facts on which a judicial system can be based."

"There is one rule, however more than any other, which I think prevents the police and the courts from being effective in the deterence of crime."

That rule prevents the court from obtaining all the possible facts concerning a crime with which an accused person is charged," he said.

"This is the rule against self-incrimination, and it permits the criminal in effect to thumb his nose at the police, the court, and through them at society," said Kelly.

Defence Counsel

In addition, he said, the attitude of a defence counsel is to see that a client is fairly convicted, and he has no other responsibility.

"He can attempt to, and often does, discredit witnesses he knows to be telling the truth enough to create doubt in the mind of a judge and jury even when he knows his client has committed the crime for which he is charged," Kelly said.

He suggested that rules of evidence be changed to make sure that an accused person may not escape giving evidence to police.

In order to get away from any threat of physical or mental force being used on a suspected person, Kelly suggested that those who refuse to give evidence could be brought before a court for interrogation by magistrate.

Prosecution Case

Preliminary hearings should be abolished because they serve no other purpose than to lay out the prosecution case in all its strengths and weaknesses before the suspected person.

Instead of holding preliminary hearings the court's time could be used for interrogations of people who refused to give evidence.

He suggested that rules of evidence also be changed to avoid any court questioning of an accused person who gave evidence about his previous record.

This is done in England and enables the court to comment if an accused person refuses to give evidence.

Kelly also said that accused people who wished to produce an alibi in court should have to give seven days notice. At the moment, he said, a witness could be produced in the dying minutes of a trial to give a defendant an alibi, which the prosecution would have no opportunity to investigate.

Jury Tampering

Jury tampering could be prevented, he suggested, if the idea of a unanimous verdict were done away with, and the decision of 10 of the 12 jurors be accepted.

Such a move would mean that anyone wishing to tamper with a jury would have to sway at least three people, a more difficult and hazardous undertaking.

The criminal trial, said Kelly, has often been referred to as more of a game or sport than a serious effort to get at the truth.

"The judge is not in court to get at the truth, but only to adjudicate on what kind of truth the rules will admit and then only on the truth that the prosecution and defence choose to admit.

"The judge is just a referee to apply the rules to whatever is put to him and make decisions on the result. It is not his duty to get to the truth, but only to see that the evidence submitted is in accordance with the rules."

"If the enforcement of the criminal law is a game, then I suggest that the public is losing that game," said Kelly.

Many high judicial figures, he said, feel that the public is paying too high a price to ensure that no innocent person is convicted.

Those who are interested in the reform of the criminal should extend that interest to the reform of the criminal who is presently getting away with crimes under the present laws of evidence and is still free to prey upon society.

Kelly said that sometimes a kind of "legal trickery" is used in courts.

Client's Interest

"It is obvious that when the police and the defence counsel talk about justice they are talking about different things," he said.

"The police talk about justice the way you talk, but that is not the way lawyers talk.

"Lawyers talk about justice within the rules while the police talk about fundamental justice for those who have committed a crime and those injured by it."

The legal profession, said Kelly, has been concerned about rules which permit a defence counsel to "consider only the interests of his client, and the community be damned."

But apparently nothing had been done about it.

The new bail bill he said is commendable in its idea that no one should spend time in jail for a crime for which he has not been found guilty.

The effect, however, has been poor for police who can no longer arrest criminals as they did formerly and take them in for fingerprinting to see if they are connected with other crimes.

Instead they must release people on just a ticket until it is time for later fingerprinting or for court appearance.

Major Crimes

Since non-appearance for the ticket is a summary offence, anyone guilty of other major crimes is not going to bother to put in an appearance, said Kelly.

There are also, he said, too many concurrent sentences given.

This means that once someone has committed one crime he may as well continue until he is caught because he will probably get concurrent sentences, meaning that he will not do extra time for additional crimes.

Too often, he said, the courts seem to vie with each other to see who can be most lenient.

Economic Controls Called Farce

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of union "price watchers" opened a shopping bag of what they called overpriced groceries before the price commission Thursday and told the panel that its economic controls were "a farce."

Six AFL-CIO members from around the U.S. — part of a monitoring team set up by the union to check on prices — rattled off a long list of increases they had found during inspection of local grocery stores. They said the internal revenue service did not respond to their complaints.

Violet Waggoner, a Denver housewife, exhibited boxes and jars of grocery items to the price commission during the second day of public hearings on rising food prices.

For example, she said, in the past four months, instant tea had gone from 89 cents to $1.03 and coffee from 90 to 95 cents. She also said dishwashing soap was advertised at 10 cents off its normal price but the price tag remained unchanged.

Mrs. Waggoner added: "I am a mother of seven children. Imagine my horror when I found peanut butter had gone from 57 to 69 cents."

She said she did not know if the increases were legal because of complex "off-again, on-again rules."

"But we do know they are taking a big chunk out of workers income, especially those on fixed income."

Charles Johnson, a United Steel Workers Union member, recited a similar list of increases he said he found in Tacoma, Wash., stores. "This whole program is a farce," Johnson said. "Phase II is for big business."

Robert Lanzilotti, a commission member, challenged the union members' argument.

"There isn't a single item on that (display) table that hasn't increased" in price, he observed. "Mrs. Waggoner, I'm sure you found some item that's gone down."

Dorm Director Fired

Coeds Stag Education Attacked

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (UPI) — Some 400 coeds living in Hamilton-Whitten Hall at Illinois State University decided a well-educated girl should know what stag films are all about. The dorm director agreed.

So the girls spent an evening watching one.

The the word got out. The criticism came. The dorm director was fired.

"Poor judgment," was the outcry.

Mrs. Jane Waldvogel, whose husband stood guard at the door during the March 8 movie, was relieved of responsibility for domitory educational programs.

School officials said she had been scheduled for termination anyway. They also barred Mrs. Waldvogel from any future employment at ISU.

Last week, 70 dorm residents, returning from the Easter break to learn of Mrs. Waldvogel's termination, fired off a letter to ISU president David Berlo and told him the students had planned the film showing — which was not a mandatory viewing.

"How then can our director be persecuted for poor judgment?" the letter asked.

"Many women go throughout college, perhaps even through life, wondering what these films are like," the girls wrote. "Pity the unsuspecting woman who ends up at a party and suddenly a stag film is pulled out and shown."

Mrs. Waldvogel, who said she cleared the matter with her superior before the showing, didn't even attend the movie.

Designer Sells Sea Shells In Paris Fashion Show

PARIS (UPI) — Swiss designer Elaine Schenk collected seashells on the seashore of the Philippine Islands and made them into resort outfits displayed during the Paris ready-to-wear shows.

"But how can one sit down?" murmured journalists and buyers in the audience as the mannequins paraded by in crocheted white dresses on which were sewn white and brown shells.

"You can't sit," replied one mannequin. "Also they're heavy."

Nonetheless the audience applauded boleros and tunics made of colored shells cut in circles or squares or butterfly or flower shapes and held together with little metal links. The mannequins wore them over plain skin, teamed with black trousers, but ordinary mortals could don such shell outfits over dresses or trouser outfits for resort wear.

Miss Schenck also edged some crocheted dresses and linen trousers and tops with the wood-like spikes of Philippine sea urchins. One could scarcely be stealthy in these outfits since the sea urchin spikes rattled and the shells clanked when the girls walked.

Coroner Rules

Falling Snag Death Cause

A well-known Sooke resident died accidentally March 21 in a logging mishap about 25 miles northwest of Sooke, district coroner Eugene Murphy ruled Thursday after conducting an inquiry.

Murphy said a falling snag was the cause of the death of Peter Fulton Hill, 62, of Sooke Road, and added he was attaching no blame to anyone in the incident.

Hill, who was second in length of service among employees of the Tripp Creek Logging Co., died instantly when a dead tree fell on him at a logging company operation. He had been watching another man work on a second tree which was hung up on a third.

The top half of the dead tree, which was not touched by either of the others or any machinery, suddenly fell on him.

Chou Rejects Super Status

HONG KONG (UPI) — China will never be a superpower, Chinese Premier Chou En-lai said Wednesday.

"At no time, neither today nor ever in the future, will China be a superpower," he said at banquet honoring visiting Mauritians.

Before you open your wallet, open your mind.

Next to buying a home, the largest investment you make is a car. It is a major investment. That's why it pays dividends for you to examine everything with an open mind before you open your wallet.

One car to be sure to examine is a Peugeot. It's built to last.

For one thing, a Peugeot paint job is the toughest you can get. A special "Electrophoresis" process puts paint where sprays can't reach—and an ordinary dipping process leaves air pockets. So, your Peugeot retains its bright, youthful look for many a year.

Then, upon arrival in Canada, your Peugeot gets still another anti-rust treatment—that you would normally have done at an extra cost to you.

You'll like the ride too. When you hit a bump, only the wheel moves up and down. Peugeot's four-wheel independent suspension gives you a much more comfortable ride.

Other big pluses are Peugeot's pre-heated carburetor that helps warm up the engine faster even in sub-zero weather. And Peugeot's new oversized starter, alternator, and battery. All special equipment for Canada.

Peugeot has been building cars and winning the affections of car-owners since 1889. Compare Peugeot with any other car. Then, with an open mind, open your wallet.

PROVINCIAL COURT

The world may have too many gloomy people and not enough high-spirited ones, Judge William Ostler said Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court, but that shouldn't stop a 17-year-old from knowing the difference between a prank and a theft.

He was speaking to Patrick Kevin Smith, 17, of Nanaimo, who was given a suspended sentence and a six-month probationary term after pleading guilty to a Saanich charge of theft involving less than $50.

The charge followed the removal of a fireman's $11 dress hat March 16 from a vehicle on Canterbury Street in Saanich, where firemen were battling a blaze. Smith called it "just a prank."

"Everyone likes to see high-spirited young people," Ostler told Smith. "There probably aren't enough . . . there may be too many gloomy people."

But this was theft rather than a prank and a 17-year-old should know the difference, he said, adding: "The worst punishment is you've given yourself a record. What a pity . . . it does seem a shame."

□

June 15 was set as the trial date for Marion Elizabeth McClaughry, 20, of 891 Brock in Langford, on four counts of a five-count Victoria charge of setting fire.

Miss McClaughry pleaded guilty to one count of setting fire to tires April 4 at Francis Batteries and Tires and pleaded not guilty to setting four fires April 1, 3 and 4 in three garbage containers behind various Victoria businesses.

The count which she admitted was also put over to June 15 for disposition.

□

Charles Henry Gaddes, 20, of 1514 Foul Bay, was fined $250 by Ostler after he was found guilty following a trial on a Victoria charge of obstructing a peace officer. The charge was laid after an incident early March 2 in the 1100-Block Blanshard when police were delayed in their attempts to check a driver who had been stopped for a traffic infraction.

□

Heinz Friedrich Leuder, 45, of Shawnigan Lake, was fined $250 following his plea of guilty to a Saanich charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of a $27 item March 6 from Woolco.

□

A suspended sentence and a six-month probationary term were ordered for Colleen Williams, 21, of Duncan, who pleaded guilty to a Victoria charge of theft involving less than $50 — the shoplifting of a $1.69 item March 8 from the Little John Discount store, 1322 Douglas.

Quilt Probe 'Tidied'

Further investigations are being made into the Fred Quilt case, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Thursday.

Peterson said that he had now read reports submitted to him by the province's chief coroner Glen MacDonald on the first inquest into Quilt's death and by a special investigator into the whole incident.

But on reading both reports he had found "some loose ends I wanted tidied up" so he had asked both MacDonald and the unnamed special investigator to acquire further information about the death.

He wanted the investigation to be as thorough as possible and to cover all possible aspects of the case, he said.

Target date for completion of both investigations is the end of April.

Quilt, a 55-year-old Indian from the Stone Reserve in the Alexis Creek area of the Interior died Nov. 30 of peritonitis.

Broadcaster Named Radio Station Head

By BRUCE LOWTHER
Colonist Reporter

A well-known western Canadian broadcaster who started his career as an announcer at Victoria radio station CJVI almost 27 years ago was named manager of the station Thursday following the resignation of his predecessor in a policy disagreement.

The new manager is John Ansell, 46, who began at CJVI June 1, 1945, and arrived Thursday evening in Victoria from Calgary, where he had been manager of radio station CFAC for four years.

He succeeds Kenneth Goddard, 46, who resigned Wednesday after being manager of CJVI for almost six years.

William Speer, president of CJVI owner Island Broadcasting Co., said a policy disagreement was the reason for the resignation while Goddard said in a separate statement that "we could not resolve our policy differences." Both men declined to elaborate.

Ansell, spent much of his radio career with Vancouver radio station CKWX, where he was production manager and later operations manager. He and his wife Daphne have three children.

CJVI, CKWX and CFAC are alll stations in which Selkirk Broadcasting has an interest, part of which comes from the former radio chain of Taylor, Pearson and Carson which was a postwar broadcasting power in the west.

Goddard had spent 21 years with Selkirk and TPC.

Speer said any other changes at CJVI in programming and other fields would be up to the new manager, who would "take over immediately."

Trio Date Postponed

If it's not one thing it's another!

As noted in the Colonist of Thursday, the Trio Victoria concert scheduled for today was postponed to the following day. The pianist had a prior engagement and could not attend.

Word now is that a further postponement has taken place: to Monday: still 8 p.m. at Craigdarroch Castle.

No Lockouts Unless . . .

Unions Hold Key

There will be no lockout called by the construction industry unless one of the unions takes strike action, a Victoria vice-chairman of the Construction Labor Relations Association said Thursday.

George Wheaton, president of G. H. Wheaton Ltd., was responding to a statement made the day before by John Schibli, president of the carpenters' union local in Victoria and secretary of the Vancouver Island Building Trades Council.

Schibli said it was obvious CLRA, which bargains for 800 contractors in the province, was "pushing" for a lockout.

A lockout vote is being conducted by CLRA in response to strike notices served on four major Vancouver area contractors last week by the plumbers. Since then the electrical workers have served strike notices on 44 Lower Mainland electrical contractors.

"I want to make it clear that the Construction Labor Relations Association is not going to lock out anyone unless they strike one of our members," Wheaton said.

"But if they strike just one member the whole industry is going to be shut down.

"It is entirely in their (unions) hands," he said.

Wheaton said no worthwhile progress could be made in negotiations until the unions dropped the demand for the 35-hour work week.

He said the present 37½-hour week is shorter than that worked by construction workers in any other largely populated area of North America.

Wheaton also criticized wage demands which he said ranged from 33 per cent upwards.

Meanwhile, Jim Kinnaird, president of the 60,000-member B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council said from Vancouver no headway at all was being made in bargaining attempts.

Talks with a number of unions have broken off altogether and are awaiting the reports of government mediators. Five unions are still meeting with mediators and CLRA.

Involved are 17 unions. Their contracts expired at the end of last month.

Several hundred Lower Mainland carpenters will stay off the job today for a rally in Vancouver. Contractors from CLRA will be holding a mass meeting at the same time.

On Monday night 800 to 900 electrical workers from all over the Lower Mainland will be in Vancouver for the same kind of meeting.

Reds To Barter Rubles on Debt

Colonist - Los Angeles Times Service

MOSCOW — A Soviet government delegation left Moscow for Washington Thursday to reopen negotiations for paying Russia's long-standing Second World War debt to the United States.

American sources in Moscow are optimistic that a settlement on the debt issue can be reached opening the way for a considerable expansion of trade between the two nations.

When negotiations on the debt broke off in 1960, the United States asked that the Soviet Union pay $800 million for lend-lease goods which were received in Russia at the end of the war. The Russians offered to pay $200 million for the goods.

"The debt has earned a lot of interest since 1960," one American official observed.

A possible compromise suggested Moscow would have the United States accept part of a compromise payment in rubles that could be used to operate the U.S. embassy here, finance a planned new embassy building and help pay for official visits to Russia by U.S. government delegations and cultural exhibits.

The Soviet Union has only a small supply of dollars and other hard currencies. Its own currency, the ruble, cannot be exchanged outside the Soviet Union. The Soviet government has been making regular dollar payments on another lend-lease debt covering goods which were actually used in Second World War fighting.

The only announcement about the Soviet delegation's departure was a short statement by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, that a group headed by Deputy Foreign Trade Minister Vladimir Alkhimov had left to "have talks on currency problems connected with the development of Soviet-American trade and economic relations."

American sources confirmed that the delegation's assignment was lend-lease negotiations.

Both the U.S. and Soviet governments have expressed interest in expanding east-west trade.

Uniform Defies Protocol

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — A Chinese military delegation has finally arrived at the United Nations but nobody here knows who's who because the Chinese army has no rank.

UN protocol is finding it difficult to determine the status of the three men, who have been seen walking through UN corridors in civilian clothers. And even when they don military garb for their first sitting on the next UN military staff committee session, scheduled for April 20, their status still won't be visible — all army uniforms look the same.

The only hint as to their importance comes from biographies supplied by Peking, which indicate that Lin Fang, 54, who has commanded divisions, will be their leader. The other two members of the military delegation are Yang Ming Liang and Chia Shun-Yang.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

Our thanks to all our friends whose declarations of sympathy have helped ease the pain of our recent bereavement. To those nurses, student nurses, orderlies and aides of the 4th Floor West, Royal Jubilee, who were kind and considerate, to Dr. A. H. Ibrahim and especially Dr. H. J. Heimlich, our heartfelt appreciation. — The Harris Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ROBINSON — In loving memory of Rita, who passed away April 14, 1967.

"Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,
For memory keeps you ever near us
Though you died five years ago."

—Sadly missed by Mother, June and Marlin.

ALL SORTS: Variety, the show-business bible, says the movie The Godfather may become the biggest money-maker in film history. A rundown of its revenues includes $8,787 for the first three days at Victoria's Capitol Theatre, a figure described as a record for Victoria.

In Saskatoon, the theatre company that was fined $1,000 Feb. 29 for showing obscene entertainment when it presented The Stewardesses has appealed the conviction and fine. You may remember the movie was withdrawn in Victoria midway through a visit from police and other authorities.

The CTV variety series Rollin' on the River has been renewed for next season . . . in Hollywood, well-known 1930s actress Isable Jewell has died at 62.

□

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Thursday's answer — Lines from two popular songs were "Women do get weary wearing the same shabby dress" from Try a Little Tenderness and "Couple of jiggers of moonlight and add a star" from Moonlight Cocktail. Which is more than 30 years old now.

Today's question is the last of lines from well-known pop songs and is quite difficult. Name the comedy song in the musical Bandwagon in which three people sing, "Gee I wish I had a gun, a little gun, and then I'd shoot the other two and there would only be one." The answer Saturday.

"That so-called 'Paris Original' you bought the other day? Flip Wilson is wearing the very same thing."

Friday Highlights

NOTE: Channel 8, and maybe Channel 6, expects to broadcast President Nixon's speech in Ottawa today. The time is not known.

● C 7:00 p.m. — Third game of the exciting NBA basketball playoff between Los Angeles and Milwaukee — 4.

C 7:00 p.m.—Another of The Comedians series of specials features the comments of Carl Reiner, Mel Brooks, Totie Fields and others on Love and Marriage. If Phyllis Diller had her face lift, what can they lift for Totie Fields?—7.

C 8:00—Laugh-In repeats a funny Liza Minnelli show — 2, 6.

C 9:00—I Regret Nothing, a special about French singer Edith Piaf — 2, 6.

C 11:30—A TV bingo of 2½ hours to help the retarded — 6, 8.

CABLE 10 — 7:00 p.m., a film entitled Foxhunter, Champion Jumper; 7:30, Exploring Family Problems; 8:30, Music Victoria; 9:00, Arts Calendar; 9:30, Project Travel; 10:00, Old Country Soccer: Hibernian vs. Aberdeen.

Friday Movies

9:30 a.m. — My Wife's Best Friend (dreary 1952 romanticomedy), Anne Baxter. Any movie made today with that title would have an all-female cast—4.

12:45 noon — Make Mine a Million (passable 1958 English comedy) —6, 8.

4:00 p.m.—Stranger in My Arms (1959 June Allyson). Need you be told it's a soap opera?—7.

6:30 — Prairie Pals(1942 westernothing) — 13.

7:30 — Profile of Terror (1963 no-names suspense). Another zero — 12.

C 8:00 — Secret Ceremony (1968 nasty-people drama), Liz Taylor, Mia Farrow, Robert Mitchum. They cut out the spice for TV and added new scenes to explain the plot but it's all hopeless either way — 8.

C 8:30 — Hour of the Gun (so-so 1967 western), James Garner, Jason Robards, Robert Ryan, Jon Voight. Another of the Earp type — 5.

● 8:30 — Cabinet of Dr. Caligari (1919 silent classic), Conrad Veidt. Recommended only for fans of the unusual or historic in films, this being the first horror movie to be considered a classic — 9.

C 9:00 — Three more CBS plots of undetermined nature. Since these usually are poor, who cares? — 7.

9:00 — Is Paris Burning? (good 1966 history-relived), Gert Frobe, Orson Welles, scores of cameos. This was critically panned but it seems to tell the story well and rarely drags — 12.

11:00 — Fugitive of the Plains (1943 Buster Crabbe). A fugitive is a person who is looked for and nobody's looking for this dog — 13.

11:30 — Terror from the Year 2000 (1958 yawn) —7.

C 11:35 — The Journey (1959 Hungarian-revolt drama), Yul Brynner, Deborah Kerr, Jason Robards. What's Hungarian for lemon? — 12.

C 11:50 — Emperor Waltz (tedious 1954 musical), Bing Crosby, Joan Fontaine, One of Billy Wilder's few flops — 2.

12:30 — Fuzzy Settles Down (1946 western asininity), Buster Crabbe, Al (Fuzzy) St. John. Not even Fuzzy Knight — 13.

12:50 — Teenage Caveman (1958, another disaster), Robert Vaughn — 7.

1:00 a.m. — War Hunt (only fair 1962 Korean war drama), John Saxon, Robert Redford. A good idea but bad execution — 4.

2:05 — Sanctuary (1961 stinker), Lee Remick, Yves Montand, other losers. One of Hollywood's best examples of how to make a good book a terrible movie — 12.

Friday Radio

7:00 p.m. — Debut of a series, if strikes permit, entitled The Life of Beethoven. It used his letters and books as well as his music — CBU-FM (105.7).

●—Recommended; C—Color.

BEAUTIFUL SEAVIEW

In this age of instant houses, this home STANDS UNPARALLELED. In QUALITY of construction, convenience of floor plan design and highest and best use of its prime location. This home, although it is sizeable, would best suit the smaller family or a retired couple. The house features a large, bright modern kitchen, a full size dining room and a large warm living room with a fireplace. Two of the three bedrooms are on the main floor and the third is in the basement. Most of the oak floors are covered with expensive wall-to-wall carpet. In addition to the built-in conveniences, is its location — being close to shops, schools and transportation. Because this home was not cheaply built, nor thoughtlessly designed, it has been priced in the mid-forty thousand dollar category. If quality is your desire, contact Mr. W. Clough to view the house and the view.

Qualicum Beach Budget

Village Holds Line

By JOHN LANGTON
Colonist Correspondent

QUALICUM BEACH — Village council has managed to hold the line in its 1972 budget adopted recently at $330,550.

The mill rate for general purposes will be 20.8 the same as last year.

However, the Qualicum school board has not yet announced school taxes for the current fiscal year. News of the state of school costs is due next Thursday when the board publishes its budget.

The village budget includes an estimate of $166,000 for school district taxes. This will be adjusted Thursday. School taxes are levied on property and the village acts as a collection agent and turns the money over to the school board in monthly instalments. Last year the board received $147,327 from village property owners.

Last year's revenue totalled $298,212 an excess of $6,738 over expenditures.

This year one mill raises $4,850 in Qualicum Beach.

The budget for the water works is kept separate and this year is for $45,000. Last year total expenditure amounted to $40,117. Excess revenue over expenditure was $2,857.

Main sources of revenue for general purposes are taxes of $92,090 on property, and conditional transfers from the provincial government of $37,110. Last year's figures were $82,142 and $31,186 which included a centennial grant of $1,006.

General government of the village will cost an estimated $24,300, up $820 from last year. Public works, which includes street maintenance and lighting, will cost $34,000, an increase of $4,488. Capital expenditures of $3,100 for the sea wall extension, $1,500 for fire department equipment and $33,000 for roads are planned.

Recreational cultural activities have been budgeted for $15,850, a decrease of $1,174 from 1971. The anticipated cost of park maintenance is less this year because $2,200 was set aside last year for a centennial project of improving the playing field.

In 1971, Qualicum Beach contributed $5,512 to Nanaimo Regional Board. This year $6,500 has been budgeted for the contribution to the district and to other government bodies.

School Board Merger

Ladysmith To Pressure Department

LADYSMITH — Representatives of the Ladysmith school board will meet with officials of the education department April 25 to press amalgamation of the district with a neighboring school district.

The decision was made at a special meeting of the board Wednesday night.

Although the question of amalgamation has been under discussion for several months, steps to speed up the process were initiated last week when it became apparent to trustees that failure of a $97,000 school operating referendum would result in serious cutbacks in instruction programs, particularly to students at the senior high school level.

A committee of education department has been studying the question for the past few months.

The Ladysmith delegation will attempt to learn the findings of the committee and will suggest that any positive recommendations be implemented in time for the beginning of the new school term in September.

The decision was taken by the board after a motion by trustee Beattie Davis, that the board await the government's report, was defeated.

It is planned the delegation will include district superintendant D. H. McKirdy, secretary treasurer R. W. Ovenden and as many of the seven trustees as possible.

SAFE WAY

MAHATTA RIVER — The Rayonier Canada logging operation, at Mahatta River on northern Vancouver Island has marked 555 days without a lost-time injury — one of the best current safety records in the forest industry.

B.C.'s Key Fighter To Speak

Drug Battle Focus Planned

NANAIMO — The newly appointed drug co-ordinator of the province, Peter Battison, will be guest speaker at a meeting of Nanaimo's drug committee May 3.

Mayor Frank Ney said Thursday Battison wil speak to the meeting on the work he is doing in the fight against drug abuse and the ways in which his department can help local committees. It is also planned that Battison will show the most recent government-produced film dealing with heroin addiction.

The Nanaimo drug committee was formed abut two years ago. Initiated by the local Council of Women, it now boasts representation from more than 40 local clubs and oranizations.

To date, its main function has consisted of dissemination of information and literature in a campaign to stem the increase in the number of peope involved with illicit and dangerous drugs.

The public will be invited to attend the meeting free of charge. It will be held at the Nanaimo and District Credit Union auditorium.

Alberni Ratepayers Eye More Muscle

PORT ALBERNI — The Alberni Valley Rural Ratepayers' Association will contact and attempt to affiliate with other ratepayers' groups throughout B.C.

The decision was made at a meeting of the group in Cherry Creek Hall this week after the Long Beach Ratepayers' Association delegate asked to affiliate with the Alberni Valley group.

Joe Pullen, representing ratepayers in the Parksville-Qualicum area, told the meeting the government is trying to get rural residents "under their thumb."

Problems are the same in all rural areas, the group decided, and province-wide organizations would provide "a good lever."

Originally scheduled as a nominating meeting to select persons to run for the Cherry Creek and Beaver Creek water boards, the group decided finally to let all nominees run on their own merit with no definite decision to back any specific candidates.

Talk of the Town

Judy Hill, 17, is girl with lot on her mind and with voice and confidence to say it well. In fact she won Rotary-sponsored Adventures in Citizenship speaking contest held Wednesday at Chemainus. Judy, a Grade 11 student at Chemainus high, will represent Cowichan Valley in Ottawa May 8 in national public speaking competition.

No One Blamed

LADYSMITH — No blame has been attached in the death in a house fire March 25 of an 18-month-old Ladysmith district girl.

A coroner's jury handed down this decision Thursday night after hearing evidence that the girl, Martina Melissa Bernadette Joe, was found dead in the living room of the home in which she had been staying overnight.

Four other children in the house at the time of the fire escaped unhurt.

There were no adults in the home at the time.

The owner of the house, Alfred Louie suffered burns on his hands and arm as he attempted to rescue the child from the inferno.

The house was completely destroyed.

The jury's findings were that the girl had died in the fire, the origin of which is not known and that blame could not be attached to anyone.

The inquest was held before district Coroner C. F. Newcombe of Nanaimo.

Banker Back From Cuba Without Cash

MIAMI (UPI) — Wealthy Puerto Rican banker Jose Luis Carrion, kidnapped and forced to fly to Cuba by a disgruntled former church official, was permitted to return home Wednesday — but the Cuban government confiscated the $290,000 ransom he had paid.

He offered no details of his abduction or his three-day stay in Cuba.

However, a Havana radio broadcast identified Carrion's abductor as Jose Luis Lugo Rodriguez, 42. The broadcast said Lugo had been jailed and that the $290,000 Carrion paid in ransom had been confiscated.

Questioned by newsmen as he rushed to meet his plane, Carrion said: "I'm just happy to be home."

Hees Booms Through Commons

Curses—Fouled Again

OTTAWA (CP) — Amid some confusion over a cancelled meeting between the cabinet and foreign business executives, George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) was caught with a microphone open Thursday and a loud "for Christ's sake" boomed through the Commons.

Prime Minister Trudeau, criticized for using the term "God-damn" in the Commons recently, lost no time in drawing attention to the Hees slip. He asked Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield mockingly to ensure that "the profanity of the honorable member" remain in the written record of proceedings.

At issue was the meeting arranged by a U.S. firm, Business International Executive Services. For $600 each, executives would meet the federal cabinet to discuss, among other things, Canada's foreign-ownership policies, the company had said.

The meeting was cancelled after government spokesman said its purpose had been misinterpreted.

But when Hees asked about the reasons for the cancellation of the Monday meeting, the prime minister said it had not been cancelled.

The Conservative MP sat down, and without realizing that a microphone behind him was on, told his colleagues that the meeting had been cancelled "for Christ's sake."

The House erupted in laughter, as a red-faced Hees took it on the chin from shouting Liberal members.

Later, the prime minister told Stanfield there was obviously a misunderstanding. international executives had been scheduled for next Tuesday, not Monday, but there was another Monday meeting with businessmen which will go ahead as planned.

He said the Tuesday meeting had been cancelled by the U.S. firm organizing it.

Dutch Treats

One thing which has puzzled me ever since the end of World War II is how Holland managed to bounce back so quickly into the world bulb market.

Much of their planting stock must have been lost during the time their country was occupied. Moreover, in the final year of the war the dikes were breached and the sea admitted to flood the bulb fields, in the hope of impeding the allied advance. Yet, after only two years of peace, Dutch bulbs were again being exported to all parts of the world.

The Dutch have picked up quite a few modern merchandizing stunts, too. Nowadays you can buy your bulbs at the supermarket along with your week's supply of groceries, all done up in a fancy carton with a picture of the flower on the cover.

In looking over one of these supermarket displays of packaged bulbs the other day, I was particularly impressed with the smart packaging of the Persian and Turkish buttercup corms, or to give them their proper name, Ranunculus, pronounced ra-NUN-kew-lus. These are lovely things, blooming all through the early and midsummer months, and are well worth the price of a package of the small bulbs.

The flowers are shaped rather like fully-opened roses, borne on stems 9 to 12 inches long, and are especially good for cutting. Flowering is profuse, with a medley of colors mostly in shades of yellow, orange and red.

You can buy the bulbs in separate colors or in a mixture; personally, I prefer the mixture, as you get so many interesting variations in the shades and markings.

The Persian buttercup is not particularly fussy as to where it is grown in the garden, but if there is one thing it detests, it is a bitter cold wind at ground level. For this reason it is best to select a site with a bit of shelter from the wind, or to arrange some sort of temporary windbreak to protect the plants during their critical budding and flowering phases. Ideally, the site should be in full sun, although like their cousins, the peonies, the ranunculus will tolerate light or partial shade.

The site for the bulbs should be dug over to the full depth of the spade, mixing in as you dig about half a bucketful of mellow old rotted manure per square yard. If you have any trouble getting your hands on a good supply of manure, a good substitute is peat moss dampened with a liquid fertilizer.

If you have any wood ashes from your fireplace or incinerator, by all means mix them into your buttercup planting site.

This isn't just a fancy refinement in their culture, for like the peony, the tomato plant and the gooseberry bush, the ranunculus is a hound for potash and always performs better when there is an ample supply in the soil.

About six cupfuls of wood ashes per square yard will do nicely. If there are a lot of bits of charred wood and charcoal in the ashes, so much the better.

★ ★ ★

Technically speaking, the roots you buy and plant are neither bulbs nor corms but actually small tubers, and they have a very peculiar appearance. There are a number of little "claws" growing downward from a central solid piece containing a sunken crown, and in planting, these claws must point downward.

It is best to plant with a hand trowel, setting these curious little tubers two inches deep; that is, with two inches of soil over the top of the bulb.

Spacing between the tubers should be about eight inches, but don't be too exact in this, for the plants make a much more natural-looking colony when spaced and arranged in a somewhat irregular fashion.

Vhtnngization Works

It was the 43rd year of the lightning campaign to wipe the dread Viet Narian guerrillas out of West Vhtnnng. The enemy had launched sweeping offensives.

Our loyal ally, General Skaloo U Thieu, dramatically asked every West Vhtnnngian to do his duty, particularly on the home front where the danger was greatest. On hearing these words, half the Loyal Royal Army bravely charged — to where the danger was greatest.

Despite obfuscations, denials, explanations and other little lies by the U.S. military spokesman, it was clear things were in a terrible mess.

★ ★ ★

The U.S. president was deeply concerned, not only about the growing loss of credibility, but about his pledge to withdraw American troops from West Vhtnnng.

His brilliant aide, Dr. Hughes Kissingernow, came up with the solution: "We've got to stop telling little lies."

"What!" cried the president. "And break with tradition?"

"What we'll do," said Dr. Kissingernow, "is tell one great big whopper instead."

Thus it was on that very afternoon that the military spokesman displayed at a press briefing the old, familiar map of Vhtnnng — only it was upside down.

★ ★ ★

On the upside-down map, therefore, the rapid invasion of West Vhtnnng from the east became the rapid invasion of East Vhtnnng from the west. Nor, as Vhtnnng looked much the same either side up, did anyone notice.

So the military spokesmen talked glowingly of swift tank thrusts, ingenious river crossings and the fall of one fire base after another.

The president, himself, took to the networks to deliver a triumphant address. "This is the greatest thing since the creation," he said, "of the Macedonian Empire."

The president said the invasion proved the success of his plan to "Vhtnnngize the war."

★ ★ ★

"Many otherwise decent Americans," he said, "felt the Vhtnnngians wouldn't fight. Let me say this about that. The way they have brought off this invasion indicates conclusively, in my judgment, that they not only have learned to operate tanks and modern weaponry but have the will, rightly or wrongly, to win! That is my conclusion on that."

So the arrows continued to leap forward daily on the upside-down map until finally they encircled the dot labelled "Capital." After a bitter siege of 13 minutes, it fell. The war was over.

The president proclaimed a victory celebration and withdrew the last American troop. Prisoners were released, as prisoners are after every war, win or lose and everyone was happy.

Of course, there were newsreels of victorious Vhtnnngian troops marching in triumph through the capital of Sag On. But if they weren't Loyal Royal Army troops, no one noticed — all troops looking pretty much alike, Vhtnnngian or otherwise.

★ ★ ★

And of course, there was a small item in the press about General Thieu being replaced by General Ho Chih Whiz, whom the U.S. state department described as "an agrarian reformer." But no one had never much cared about Vhtnnngian politics anyway.

As for Dr. Kissingernow, his Teutonic sense of order was deeply gratified. "No more fitting end could be conceived than our lying our way out of this war," he said, rubbing his hands, "considering how we got into it in the first place."

Boy Meets Girl!

JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD — Barbra Streisand rejoins producer Ray Stark and Columbia Pictures for The Way We Were, based on Arthur Laurents' novel of the same name. Arthur, the noted playwright, will also write the screenplay for the movie which starts shooting this summer. It's a story about the unlikely love and marriage of two totally different people — a boy and a girl. In Hollywood nowadays, that's a switch. Sidney Pollack will direct. It was Stark who launched Barbra's career with Funny Girl both onstage and in the movies. They had a little trouble because Barbra was telling Willy Wyler how to direct and Harry Stradling how to photograph scenes. Both were multi-Oscar winners. But as it turned out, she knew what she was talking about especially when it came to what was best for Barbra Streisand. She won the best actress Oscar her first time at bat. Barbra joins Warren Beatty, Jack Nicholson, Shirley MacLaine and others of Democratic bent in promoting a concert later this month to raise funds for Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign.

★ ★ ★

The reaction to Burt Reynolds' nude centrefold in this month's Cosmopolitan has been incredible. His publicity people have been flooded with calls, many of them merchandising offers for posters, jig-saw puzzles, bed sheets with the centrefold silk screened life-size, etc. But Burt says he did it only for fun and he's for sale only as an actor. Editor Helen Gurley Brown said it was the first issue of the magazine in history to rate a 100 per cent sellout, 98 per cent the first two days. Miss Brown sent along a memo from the Hearst circulation boss which said some newsstands reported that customers used razor blades to slice the insert from the magazine. Burt's career is one of Hollywood's more amazing. He has survived a long line of flops and is now starring in four of the year's top movies. In Deliverance, he did the role that was originally set for Marlon Brando. Brando, in fact, had a six weeks stop date on The Godfather because of Deliverance. But it went to Burt instead.

★ ★ ★

Singer Jack Jones will make his first big concert tour of England where his albums have always been big. It's a sentimental journey for Jack, especially when he plays Croydon near London. Right after the Second World War, papa Allan Jones made the same tour and it was at Croydon when young Jones, then age eight, made his show-business debut by leading the donkey on stage for Papa's famous Donkey Serenade.

★ ★ ★

Lee Marvin has a theory on why director Sam Peckinpah's movies are always so violent. "He was in the Marines and never saw combat. Maybe that's his hangup."

All Change Resisted

One of the complaints — legitimate complaints — of big-city police departments is "too much paperwork." Far more time is spent by policemen filling out forms than doing the substantive job they are paid for.

Yet I am willing to bet that any serious attempt to reform this situation by replacing police officers with civilian workers in non-enforcement jobs is resisted in every department.

This has nothing to do with police as such — it merely illustrates the general proposition that all social systems have a built-in resistance to change.

★ ★ ★

In his provacative new book, Beyond the Stable State, Donald A. Schon quotes the American naval historian, S. E. Morison, on the introduction into the U.S. Navy of "continuous-aim firing" — a way of keeping guns trained on an enemy ship when both ships are moving up and down and in different directions at the same time.

★ ★ ★

At the time of Theodore Roosevelt, the navy's standard method involved a heavy set of gears and a highly trained crew directed by an officer.

Although there was a gunsight, nobody dared put his eye to it because of the recoil of the gun. The whole device was literally a "hit-or-miss" operation.

A young naval officer, Sims, devised a way of taking advantage of the inertial movement of the ship, by simplifying the gears and isolating the sight from recoil, so it was possible for an operator to keep his eye on the sight and move the gears at the same time.

★ ★ ★

He was rebuffed by naval headquarters but with the persistence of most inventors, he finally persuaded the navy to test his device. It was tested in the navy yard, and failed, because deprived of the inertial movement of the ship.

But the persistent Sims finally reached President Roosevelt directly, who "forced the device down the navy's throat," and thereby achieved a remarkable increase in firing accuracy.

Morison makes the point that the navy understandably tried to protect the "social system" of the ship. By introducing continuous-aim firing, Sims threatened a specialized, highly trained team, replacing it with an operation any recruit could easily handle.

"The example," concludes Schon, "is characteristic of social systems, whether a naval ship, an industrial firm or a community."

This resistance to change he calls a form of "dynamic conservatism" — that is, a tendency to fight to remain the same.

And the prime reason we have so much friction, tension and conflict in modern society is that the rate of change has accelerated so fast, while social systems have continued to fight as hard as they can merely to remain the same.

Quake Proof Homes Ordered

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Engineers and architects Thursday flew to the earthquake-devastated village of Kheir in Southern Iran with orders to design quake-proof dwellings for survivors.

Government sources said three teams from Pahlavi University in Shiraz, 100 miles north of Kheir, were flown by helicopter into the area in which 45 or 60 villages were virtually wiped out by an earthquake Monday.

Government officials said the death toll will be "nearly 4,000."

At least 400 survivors were receiving treatment for serious injuries.

The region in southern Iran, — from the Caspian Sea to the Persian Gulf — is notoriously vulnerable to earthquakes.

The experts are charged with finding ways in which villagers who tend the lands can live in safety. Nomads who live in tent villages survived the quake without loss of life.

This has proved an embarrassment to the government which has been trying to resettle the foraging camel-riding tribes in permanent constructions.

Officials fear that the villagers — former nomads themselves who were given land in the 1961 reform program — will return to their old way of life, disrupting the agricultural harmony the shah is trying to impose.

Government sources said the structural experts were told to work out a method of housebuilding in which the local farmers could live without the constant threat of destruction and death from earthquakes.

Several suggestions have been put forward — houses constructed on ball-bearings, spherical homes on moveable supports, buildings of flimsy telescopic constructions, that could ride out earthquakes.

Cubans Flee On Raft

MIAMI (UPI) — Six refugees who showed up off Key West Wednesday on a home-made raft were the first to cross the Florida straits from Cuba in that fashion in more than six months.

A spokesman for the Cuban Refugee Centre here said the drop in refugee arrivals by sea appears to be due to the tight control maintained over any unauthorized voyages.

"Most people believe there are no small boats available in Cuba and a very close control is maintained over truck tires and other materials for building rafts," said Jean Castle, liaison officer for the centre.

The refugees were five men and an elderly woman.

Visit Keynote Friendship

OTTAWA (CP) — A smiling President Richard Nixon opened a 40-hour state visit to Canada Thursday by saying that while there are no walls between the two countries, the United States respects Canada's "separate entity."

Both the president and Governor-General Roland Michener mentioned the differences that currently exist between the countries but emphasized the friendship.

Nixon and his wife, Pat, stepped smiling from the presidential jetliner, Air Force One, into a cold, drizzling evening and cheers from more than 300 invited guests in a VIP hanger decked with flags and bunting for the occasion.

Discards Notes

"The weather may be cool but the welcome is very warm," the president said. He discarded his notes and spoke off-the-cuff after hearing Michener's remarks.

Nixon, wearing only a suit in 34-degree weather, said it is significant the visit to Ottawa is the only one he is taking between visits to Peking earlier this year and Moscow later.

He said the U.S. is seeking a new relationship with its adversaries and realizes the need for better relations with its friends.

He recalled seeing the Great Wall of China during his Peking visit. As he went to the Soviet Union he would think of the Iron Curtain and the Berlin wall.

Canada and the U.S. shared "the longest undefended boundary in the world." But while there was no wall, this didn't mean the countries were the same.

"We have differences," Nixon said. "We are competitors economically in many areas."

But the U.S. respected Canada's separate identity.

Example for World

"The Canadian-American example is an example for all the world to see," Nixon said. He hoped his visit would contribute to the strength and vitality of relations between the countries.

Michener apparently inspired the Nixon thread of remarks. He said an almost invisible boundary "divides us as sovereign nations but not as friendly people."

The two countries are good neighbors, good friends and allies. Their purposes and goals are "broadly parallel," though disagreements occur.

The president smiled as the Governor-General asked him to "bring the message we most want to hear — that of the friendship of Americans for Canadians."

The Nixons and State Secretary William Rogers were greeted by the Micheners, Prime Minister Trudeau, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and U.S. Ambassador Adolph Schmidt.

'I Smell a Rat' Says Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday he "smells a rat" in financial plans for the 1976 Summer Olympics at Montreal.

He made the comment to reporters after reiterating in the Commons that Mayor Jean Drapeau has not requested any special federal funds for the Games.

Asked by a reporter whether he did not expect Drapeau eventually to seek federal money, the prime minister replied:

"You smell a rat and so do I. . . . I share your suspicions."

He added that he was not going to ask Montreal for a bill.

Trudeau said he would take Drapeau at his public word, and assume for now that no federal money will be needed.

The prime minister said in the Commons March 29 he had told Drapeau in a letter that "there would be no special contribution by the federal government to the Olympic Games."

"This has been agreed to by both sides."

Trudeau repeated in his corridor comments to reporters Thursday that the only federal money that might be used indirectly for the games is that to which Montreal is entitled — as is any other city — from existing transfer programs.

In the Commons March 29 Trudeau said the federal government "will at some point want to know more precisely" Montreal's plans if in fact it is counting on federal aid.

But he suggested Thursday that to seek that information now could be interpreted by Montreal as an offer of funds. To maintain his government's bargaining stance, he would assume no money will be requested, despite his "suspicious" about Drapeau's plans.

U.S. Pounds Bases Lost by South Viets

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of United States bombers carpeted the An Loc battlefield with fire and explosives Thursday, trying to blunt an offensive by North Vietnamese who captured part of the provincial capital north of Saigon. Government troops on the southern edge of the town were surrounded and in danger of being overrun.

North Vietnam threw 10,000 troops — spearheaded by about 60 tanks — into the drive to overrun South Vietnamese defenders.

President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered defenders to hold the town — which is vitally important for both military and political reasons — "at all costs."

The South Vietnamese, backed by U.S. B-52 bombers, jet fighters, helicopter gunships and computerized night-flying warplanes, earlier beat back one tank-led assault with heavy losses. However, they lost the An Loc airfield and Quan Loi, a military base only two miles away.

Communist troops and tanks braved the bombs and drove deep into the town, 60 miles north of Saigon. Field reports said they also captured a nearby airfield, making resupply and reinforcement of the 12,000 government troops, or what was left of them, extremely hazardous.

About 30,000 North Vietnamese troops are reported committed to the battle just south of the Cambodian border. Earlier, they seized two nearby district headquarters.

For the North Vietnamese, the capture of a provincial capital would be the high point so far in their 13-day old offensive. President Nguyen Van Thieu has ordered An Loc held at all costs, fearful of the effect the town's capture would have on the morale of his soldiers and civilians loyal to his regime.

Fifteen miles to the south of An Loc, a 20,000-man armor and infantry rescue force has been stalled by enemy fire for three days.

Field reports said the enemy assault waves were led by tanks and armored vehicles, 34 of which the South Vietnamese said had been destroyed.

A government ranger force was locked in battle with the enemy to the east of An Loc, apparently cut off from the main body of defenders.

As the situation deteriorated hourly, some quarters in Saigon said the senior U.S. adviser in the region had underestimated the communists.

Senate Cuts Power To Retaliate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate passed a bill Thursday to limit the power of the president to commit U.S. armed forces to hostilities without the approval of Congress.

The vote was 68 to 16, sending the bill to an uncertain fate in the House of Representatives.

Senator Jacob Javits (Rep. — N.Y.) said the ability to retaliate is implicit in emergency authority in the bill to repel attack and forestall threat, but the word retaliate was omitted as a caution to the president that the shooting of one guard is not to be "provocation for taking a country or bombing its capital.

Eight Blasts Rock Ulster

BELFAST (AP) — Guerrilla bombers unleashed a chain of eight explosions in six cities across Northern Ireland Thursday, leaving an elderly woman dead and a trail of destruction in the biggest upsurge of violence since Britain's takeover of direct rule in the six Ulster counties.

A woman's death in the Protestant town of Ballymoney raised the fatality toll to 301 in 32 months.

Miller was hit and killed. Wagstaff, realizing what he had been shooting at, suffered a heart failure and was in hospital under $5,000 bond on a charge of murder without malice.

'TV Webs' Monopoly Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. justice department said Thursday it plans to file civil anti-trust suits against the major United States broadcasting networks.

In a brief announcement, the department said it had advised counsel for the National Broadcasting Co. Inc., American Broadcasting Company Inc., Columbia Broadcasting System Inc. and Viacom International Inc. The suits will charge that the firms monopolized and restrained trade in prime television entertainment programs.

The suits will allege the networks violated the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

Robert Wood, president of the CBS television network, said the government seeks to transfer control of programming schedules to advertising agencies and motion picture producers and to prevent the networks from producing their own programming.

'Host' Cities Reluctant To Roll Out Red Carpet

Cabinet Hungry for Invitations

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial cabinet has invited itself to dinner — more than 10 dinners, in fact — and most of its prospective hosts are less than enthusiastic.

The cabinet is planning a tour of the province later this spring, and mayors of municipalities scheduled to be visited received letters Wednesday asking them to sponsor dinners or luncheons for the ministers.

"I think we should all get them lunch buckets," said Mayor Gordon Nichol of Kamloops. "The last time they were here it cost the city $1,400 and people complained."

Mayor Pete Lester of Prince Rupert said: "Ours will probably be a no-host luncheon."

Penticton's Mayor Frank Laird was philosophical: "Well, you can't kick the gift horse in the mouth. Nor the rear end.

"They'll be handing out $1,000 bills wherever they go," Lester said. "What can you do? After all, the man's the premier of the province.

"I suppose the least we can get for a $350 lunch is between $50,000 and $100,000 — in announcements."

Lester said the letter, from Deputy Provincial Secretary Lawrie Wallace, said:

"I wonder if you and your council would like to host and honor the premier with a luncheon at 12 noon Monday, May 29. The premier will have two presentations to make to you on that date, one of historical significance."

The letter went on to ask for confirmation of the lunch and requested the complete guest list by May 5.

"I suppose they want the guest list because they can make other arrangements if they don't like who we've asked," Lester quipped.

Mayor F. E. Devito of Trail said he wouldn't mind giving the cabinet a luncheon if the announcement had come in a different form.

"The impression was that they were coming and we should do something about it. Normally one would expect we would have been asked in a discreet way whether we would like to have them."

Mayor Harold Moffat of Prince George and H. W. Buckle of Kimberley said they were in favor of the tour and didn't mind giving the cabinet a meal.

Copeland Surprised over Telepak 'Fuss'

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Reporter

Clare Copeland, key figure in the last two days of controversy over a new government advertising program and a commercial legislative news service, returned to Victoria Thursday and said he couldn't see what all the fuss was about.

In a lengthy interview, Copeland, president of radio station C-FAX which owns the news service, B. C. Radio news, made these points:

● There is no conflict of interest between his role in B.C. Radio News and the work he is doing for the new advertising program, Ask Your Provincial Government;

● B.C. Radio News is completely independent of C-FAX editorially and has nothing to do with the government program;

● The idea of Ask Your Provincial Government was conceived as a public service to give citizens better access to both the media and the government;

● Ask Your Provincial Government will result in extra publicity for the opposition as well as the government because they'll be able to answer the government's statements all week as news;

● He will not receive a commission for his work with the government on the program but will get "a nominal fee" and have his expenses paid;

● Taxpayers are not subsidizing B.C. Radio News when the service makes frequent long-distance calls on the government's free telpak lines because the government pays B.C. Telephone Company the same amount for the lines no matter how many calls are made on them;

● If the service did have to pay for all the long-distance calls it makes, it would be forced to close down immediately, leaving some small communities with no way of getting daily news from the Legislature.

Copeland is credited with being the originator of the Ask Your Provincial Government series in which cabinet ministers will answer, in one-minute spots, selected questions from listeners.

He said he and Mel Cooper, of radio station CKNW in New Westminster developed the idea from the report of the Senate committee on mass media in Canada. That report, commonly known as the Davey Report, was handed down in late 1970.

The report criticized the public's lack of access to both the media and government, and Copeland said he believed a show like Ask Your Provincial Government would increase that access.

At present the public really only has two ways of access to the media, he said — writing letters to the editor or phoning in to radio hotline shows. Ask Your Provincial Government would be a whole new way.

Idea take for report on media

If a large number of people wrote in questions about one topic, this would show the government that something needed to be done in that area, Copeland said. And all questions will be passed on to the cabinet minister involved, so they will all get an idea of what the people are thinking about.

Copeland emphasized that he was "not a political animal," that his interest was in using radio to communicate with people in the best possible way. He felt the show should continue no matter who the government was.

He felt that with government ever-increasing in complexity, it was important the citizens should be kept informed with what it was doing, and this show would also help in that effort.

He would not disclose what the projected cost to the government for the ad series during its first four month trial run would be. Previous estimates have placed it about $200,000.

CKNW would be handling the mass reproduction of tapes used in the program and their distribution to individual radio stations once the program got going, he said. But neither he nor Cooper were working as advertising agency for the government and would not be paid as such.

All their expenses would be paid, however, and in addition they would receive "a nominal fee."

Copeland said he couldn't undertand why B.C. Radio News had been dragged into the affair of the ad program, because the service had not had anything to do with Ask Your Provincial Government.

Since its inception less than a year ago, the service has expanded from 11 subscribing member stations to 28, he said. He believed this was because it was providing a badly needed service to small communities which previously had had difficulty finding out what was going on in the Legislature.

But it would be impossible to run the service without using the free long-distance service provided on the government's leased telpak lines.

Now each station pays between $100 and $150 a month to receive the news service, he said, but this would be at least doubled if they also had to pay the long-distance charges to phone each story out to them.

The current charges are almost more than some stations can afford and if the long-distance charges were to be added on he doubted if any station except C-FAX and CKNW could afford the coverage.

The government provides typewriters and paper to the legislature press gallery, he said. There is no difference in providing phone lines for radio services.

He considers it part of a government's duty to keep its citizens informed about what it is doing, and the equipment for the press is part of the cost of keeping them informed.

2,500 Buses Defective

GMC Truck and Coach Division of General Motors Corp. in Detroit Thursday began notifying the operators of about 2,500 GMC buses built in 1963 through 1965 to have their vehicles inspected for a problem that could lead to loss of power steering.

But B.C. Hydro transit operations in the Victoria area will not be affected because the buses, although made by General Motors, do not have power steering, transit manager Rowland Halls said Thursday.

The inspection of the 2,500 buses will determine if power steering booster housings need replacing, a company spokesman said. The buses are used in city and suburban transit systems.

Take Off Fat With Home Recipe Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Chevy Nova.
The reasonable alternative for small car buyers.
Here's why.

The small car is a big thing in B.C.
Yet people are starting to look for a car with the economy/handling advantages of the small car plus the stability/space advantages of the larger car.
That's what Chevy Nova is all about.

Not-too-big.
Nova is about a couple of feet longer than your average small car. Which isn't much. So you'll find Nova quite simple to wheel around and easy to park.
Nova doesn't cost that much to buy or to run. Calling it reasonable is being modest.

Not-too-small.
On the other hand, we did build Nova to offer relief from small-car cramps. Those couple of extra feet mean there's room for six adults (or two adults and a pack of children), and a trunk big enough to take all their stuff.

Out on the road, Nova sits tight on corners and holds steady in crosswinds. And on long highway runs or long hills, Nova has no problem keeping up with the big ones.

Very dependable.
Nova has an enviable reputation for dependability. And that was convincingly confirmed by a survey carried out last year among independent garage owners/managers and servicemen. These car professionals voted our Chevy Nova, "The car with the least mechanical problems."

Compare the value.
Good value is made up of many things. Proven dependability is one of them. See how it pays off at trade-in time.
But Nova's value is much more.
You have the opportunity to take the basic car (quite something as is) and add other extra-cost features to suit your own personal taste. You can get power steering if you want it. And power brakes, too. Or a sun roof on the coupe.
If you like the idea of a small car but don't like the limitations, Chevy Nova could be for you.
To be sure, see your Chevrolet dealer.

GM
Buckling seat and shoulder belts is an idea you can live with.
Some of the equipment illustrated is optional at extra cost.

Nova
The not-too-big, not-too-small Chevrolet.

Regional Transit Shift Soon

Start of construction on regional transit bus garage on Applecross Road, near the Island Highway and Hammond Bay Road between North Wellington and Lantzville, heralds gradual move to all Nanaimo Regional Board operations to that area. Regional transit operations will be moving from school board garages on Wakesiah. Region currently operates from cramped quarters in a downtown office building. Move will probably be complete within next couple of years.

Duncan Welfare Woe Worsens

DUNCAN — Instead of getting better things seem to get worse as far as welfare is concerned.

Ald. John Homer told council recently that social assistance disbursed from the city office during March totalled $18,324, as against $16,700 in the same period last year.

The March 1972 total included 68 families with 170 dependents, 20 single women, 22 single men, two boarding home cases and two transients.

In a letter to council, Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi said: "It gives me pleasure to advise you that the policies which this government instituted last year and the controls which your municipality has exercised in co-operation with use have resulted in an impressive saving in the cost of those of our programs in which you share." With the letter the city received a cheque for $10,317.

College Back, Inn Style

Qualicum Venture

QUALICUM BEACH — The doors at Qualicum College — a boys' school which is a unique part of local history — will swing open again today.

But behind the doors now is a new inn, known as Qualicum College Inn, which is under the care of Miss Wilhelmina Ross.

Mike Dyde, president of Toyoreef Company, which owns the property and is developing it, said that the hotel will have many unique features. The building and heavy furnishings are tudor style. Visitors particularly notice the large amount of wood carving.

Dyde described one specialty of the menu, a medieval meal. It will consist of modern food served in a medieval style with guests wearing napkins tied around their necks, and eating with fingers and hunting knives. Each course, or remove as they are called, will be served on a large platter in the middle of the table and the diners will help themselves. Removes include soup, seafood, meat, fresh fruit and cheeses.

There are 20 bedrooms including a honeymoon suite. Couples occupying the suite will be served champagne breakfasts.

Small groups can dine in the executive dining room. Adjoining the lounge and cocktail bar is the main dining area known as the Old Boys Dining Hall. Dyde aims to retain some of the atmosphere of the college and is keeping mementos. Miss Ross said that there will be a friendly English atmosphere.

Elmer Gill, a pianist, will entertain every evening and a grand piano has been obtained.

Ivor Knight, who built the college back in the 1930s and was headmaster, also built an open air theatre in the grounds. Dyde plans to have a Nanaimo drama group perform there.

The Qualicum Inn overlooks the sea and patrons will be able to walk down the track to the sandy beach. They will also be able to use the swimming pool that has been built in the lawn.

The basement contains a convention room, sauna, whirlpool bath and gymnasium.

In their world, we're No.1

Among fishermen, no other outboard outsells ours. Maybe that's because no other fishing outboard outperforms ours.

Take our 9½. We made it whisper quiet because you'd rather hear the sound of the outdoors than the outboard. We gave it a stylish, low silhouette so you can fish over it, not around it. We added an automatic trolling adjustment, so you can concentrate on fishing, instead of navigating. And we built in 8 separate tilt-out positions so that your outboard can take you everywhere the fish go, including the weeds and shallows.

If you take your fishing seriously, you'll appreciate what we've put into the 9½. And with speeds up to 20 mph., you'll get a lot of fun out of it too!

The Evinrude 9½ is just one of the outboards in the world's No. 1 fishing line. See it along with our 2, 4, 6 and 18 hp. models at your Evinrude dealer's.

See the complete Evinrude line, 16 models from 2 to 125 hp., at your dealer's now.

When your Mazda dealer tells you the new Mazda 808 Sedan sells for $2599, he means it.

It's $2599*. Equipped. Loaded. Fully furnished. From the four seatbelts to the locking gas cap.

From the cigarette lighter to door-to-door carpeting.

From the whitewall tires to reclining front buckets.

From the tinted glass to the rear window defroster to the variable ratio steering.

In fact the only options you can buy for your Mazda 808 are the radio and our silk-smooth 3-speed automatic with manual override. Both great buys.

Details? Maybe. But if we lavish that sort of care and attention on details, think how good we made the whole car!

Banker Back From Cuba Without Cash

MIAMI (UPI) — Wealthy Puerto Rican banker Jose Luis Carrion, kidnapped and forced to fly to Cuba by a disgruntled former church official, was permitted to return home Wednesday — but the Cuban government confiscated the $290,000 ransom he had paid.

He offered no details of his abduction or his three-day stay in Cuba.

However, a Havana radio broadcast identified Carrion's abductor as Jose Luis Lugo Rodriguez, 42. The broadcast said Lugo had been jailed and that the $290,000 Carrion paid in ransom had been confiscated.

Questioned by newsmen as he rushed to meet his plane, Carrion said: "I'm just happy to be home."

Petitioners Demand Change In Herring Waste Disposal

Le Chasseur
. . . 'crime of waste'

By BROCK KETCHAM
Colonist Reporter

A petition which calls for an end to current methods by herring roe plants of disposing of herring carcasses, is being circulated among sports and commercial fishermen in Campbell River.

Meanwhile, tourists, conservation, sports fishermen and commercial fishermen groups are in the process of forming a united front against the herring roe industry.

The petition mentions "a possible repeat performance of the fisheries department mismanagement prior to the 1967 closure (of the herring roe industry) resulting in decimation of our herring stocks.

"Only one out of six herring are utilized for roe purposes — the balance of male or immature fish being sent to reduction plants or a dump, both practices of which had been disapproved by the fisheries department," the petition said.

Campbell River fisherman Bob Ware, in an interview Thursday, said circulation of the petition began Monday. There are three herring roe plants on the Island and a total of about 11 in B.C.

Ware, who is one of the organizers against the herring roe industry, was unable to estimate how many signatures have been received by Thursday. He said the petition will be forwarded to the fisheries department.

In a separate interview, Bill Le Chasseur said he discovered a pile of herring carcasses deposited by the Campbell River-based West Island Fisheries Ltd. herring roe plant.

The carcasses, Le Chasseur said, had been dumped at an experimental farm, manned by University of British Columbia personnel, 12 miles south of Campbell River. They had been lightly covered with sawdust.

Le Chasseur said he immediately got in touch with sports and commercial fishing groups and won the joint support of both groups against the herring roe industry.

"It's the crime of the waste that I'm interested in," Le Chasseur said.

Reasons mentioned in the petition why the existing herring roe industry should be closed:

● Herring stocks are being depleted for roe purposes. The roe cannot be classified as general food because it is consumed as a luxury by gourmets in Japan.

● The herring roe industry could deplete existing coho and spring stocks in B.C. coastal waters "which has improved greatly in the past two years since the 1967 herring closure."

● Herring harvest as a "true food" would be acceptable if a select method as to maturity could take place. "Desired results, we feel, could only be obtained by the gillnet method." (Herring are currently scooped up by seiners.)

Lawrence Foort, operator of the herring roe plant in Campbell River, agreed the herring carcasses should be used as food rather than be shipped to reduction plants.

He said about 95 per cent of herring carcasses from his plant have been trucked to Tofino Marine Services reduction plant in Tofino where the carcasses are converted to such products as cattle feed and fertilizers.

Only a small portion of the 600 tons of herring handled at his plant was taken to the experimental station, which wanted to use the herring as fertilizer.

Ladysmith To Pressure Department

LADYSMITH — Representatives of the Ladysmith school board will meet with officials of the education department April 25 to press amalgamation of the district with a neighboring school district.

The decision was made at a special meeting of the board Wednesday night.

Although the question of amalgamation has been under discussion for several months, steps to speed up the process were initiated last week when it became apparent to trustees that failure of a $97,000 school operating referendum would result in serious cutbacks in instruction programs, particularly to students at the senior high school level.

A committee of education department has been studying the question for the past few months.

The Ladysmith delegation will attempt to learn the findings of the committee and will suggest that any positive recommendations be implemented in time for the beginning of the new school term in September.

The decision was taken by the board after a motion by trustee Beattie Davis, that the board await the government's report, was defeated.

It is planned the delegation will include district superintendant D. H. McKirdy, secretary treasurer R. W. Ovenden and as many of the seven trustees as possible.

Busing Policy Stays Same

LADYSMITH — The Ladysmith school board has decided to take no action to reverse policy which denies kindergarten children transportation on school district buses.

The policy was instituted recently after the $97,000 school operating referendum was defeated.

The transport issue came to a head Monday when parents of kindergarten children in the Yellow Point district, 12 miles north of the town, halted a school bus by parading in front of it, carrying protest placards.

The parents claimed that while a dozen children were kept from riding the bus, the vehicle made the trip to Ladysmith each morning with at least 12 empty seats.

At the special board meeting Wednesday, trustees said parents were not fully informed. Trustees claim that although the bus has several empty seats when it leaves the Yellow Point stop, the seats are filled before its arrival in Ladysmith.

The busing of kindergarten students was dropped because it was felt the kindergarten class was not a compulsory part of the overall education program.

For these reasons, it was decided the transportation policy will not be changed.

Village Holds Cash Line

By JOHN LANGTON
Colonist Correspondent

QUALICUM BEACH — Village council has managed to hold the line in its 1972 budget adopted recently at $330,550.

The mill rate for general purposes will be 20.8 the same as last year.

However, the Qualicum school board has not yet announced school taxes for the current fiscal year. News of the state of school costs is due next Thursday when the board publishes its budget.

The village budget includes an estimate of $166,000 for school district taxes. This will be adjusted Thursday. School taxes are levied on property and the village acts as a collection agent and turns the money over to the school board in monthly instalments. Last year the board received $147,327 from village property owners.

Last year's revenue totalled $293,212 an excess of $6,738 over expenditures.

This year one mill raises $4,850 in Qualicum Beach.

The budget for the water works is kept separate and this year is for $45,000. Last year total expenditure amounted to $40,117. Excess revenue over expenditure was $2,857.

Main sources of revenue for general purposes are taxes of $92,090 on property, and conditional transfers from the provincial government of $37,110. Last year's figures were $82,142 and $31,186 which included a centennial grant of $1,006.

General government of the village will cost an estimated $24,300, up $820 from last year. Public works, which includes street maintenance and lighting, will cost $34,000, an increase of $4,488. Capital expenditures of $3,100 for the sea wall extension, $1,500 for fire department equipment and $33,000 for roads are planned.

Recreational cultural activities have been budgeted for $15,850, a decrease of $1,174 from 1971. The anticipated cost of park maintenance is less this year because $2,200 was set aside last year for a centennial project of improving the playing field.

In 1971, Qualicum Beach contributed $5,512 to Nanaimo Regional Board. This year $6,500 has been budgeted for the contribution to the district and to other government bodies.

Alberni Ratepayers Eye More Muscle

PORT ALBERNI — The Alberni Valley Rural Ratepayers' Association will contact and attempt to affiliate with other ratepayers' groups throughout B.C.

The decision was made at a meeting of the group in Cherry Creek Hall this week after the Long Beach Ratepayers' Association delegate asked to affiliate with the Alberni Valley group.

Joe Pullen, representing ratepayers in the Parksville-Qualicum area, told the meeting the government is trying to get rural residents "under their thumb."

Problems are the same in all rural areas, the group decided, and province-wide organizations would provide "a good lever."

Originally scheduled as a nominating meeting to select persons to run for the Cherry Creek and Beaver Creek water boards, the group decided finally to let all nominees run on their own merit with no definite decision to back any specific candidates.

No One Blamed In Baby Death

LADYSMITH — No blame has been attached in the death in a house fire March 25 of an 18-month-old Ladysmith district girl.

A coroner's jury handed down this decision Thursday night after hearing evidence that the girl, Martina Melissa Bernadette Joe, was found dead in the living room of the home in which she had been staying overnight.

Four other children in the house at the time of the fire escaped unhurt.

There were no adults in the home at the time.

The owner of the house, Alfred Louie suffered burns on his hands and arm as he attempted to rescue the child from the inferno.

The house was completely destroyed.

The jury's findings were that the girl had died in the fire, the origin of which is not known and that blame could not be attached to anyone.

The inquest was held before district Coroner C. F. Newcombe of Nanaimo.

Drug Battle Focus Planned

NANAIMO — The newly appointed drug co-ordinator of the province, Peter Battison, will be guest speaker at a meeting of Nanaimo's drug committee May 3.

Mayor Frank Ney said Thursday Battison wil speak to the meeting on the work he is doing in the fight against drug abuse and the ways in which his department can help local committees. It is also planned that Battison will show the most recent government-produced film dealing with heroin addiction.

The Nanaimo drug committee was formed abut two years ago. Initiated by the local Council of Women, it now boasts representation from more than 40 local clubs and oranizations.

To date, its main function has consisted of dissemination of information and literature in a campaign to stem the increase in the number of peope involved with illicit and dangerous drugs.

The public will be invited to attend the meeting free of charge. It will be held at the Nanaimo and District Credit Union auditorium.

Swans Flutter Back at Point Holmes

COMOX — Despite a late fall of snow which whitened the Comox Valley this week, spring must surely be on the way.

The swans have returned to Bert Marriott's bird sanctuary at Point Holmes.

Last winter, when it appeared severe freezing conditions would prevail during the mating season, a pair of swans which Marriott had carefully tended, were removed to Stanley Park.

Because swans have difficulty in even identifying their own sex, it seemed extremely unlikely the same pair would return to Comox and be identified.

But when a pair of swans recently returned to Comox, the two seemed more than likely to be the original pair. Marriott called to them and the birds immediately responded.

The birds are now surveying the pond for likely places to build their nest and took an interest in the site of last year's nest. Marriott says there is every indication that his original pair are home again.

The sanctuary has a new guardian in the person of Grant Keanne, who is on duty at the pond to keep dogs and other predators from the swans.

When he is not swan-sitting, Keanne is clearing brush in the quiet sanctuary.

Visit Keynote Friendship

OTTAWA (CP) — A smiling President Richard Nixon opened a 40-hour state visit to Canada Thursday by saying that while there are no walls between the two countries, the United States respects Canada's "separate entity."

Both the president and Governor-General Roland Michener mentioned the differences that currently exist between the countries but emphasized the friendship.

Nixon and his wife, Pat, stepped smiling from the presidential jetliner, Air Force One, into a cold, drizzling evening and cheers from more than 300 invited guests in a VIP hanger decked with flags and bunting for the occasion.

Discards Notes

"The weather may be cool but the welcome is very warm," the president said. He discarded his notes and spoke off-the-cuff after hearing Michener's remarks.

Nixon, wearing only a suit in 34-degree weather, said it is significant the visit to Ottawa is the only one he is taking between visits to Peking earlier this year and Moscow later.

He said the U.S. is seeking a new relationship with its adversaries and realizes the need for better relations with its friends.

He recalled seeing the Great Wall of China during his Peking visit. As he went to the Soviet Union he would think of the Iron Curtain and the Berlin wall.

Canada and the U.S. shared "the longest undefended boundary in the world." But while there was no wall, this didn't mean the countries were the same.

"We have differences," Nixon said. "We are competitors economically in many areas."

But the U.S. respected Canada's separate identity.

Example for World

"The Canadian-American example is an example for all the world to see," Nixon said. He hoped his visit would contribute to the strength and vitality of relations between the countries.

Michener apparently inspired the Nixon thread of remarks. He said an almost invisible boundary "divides us as sovereign nations but not as friendly people."

The two countries are good neighbors, good friends and allies. Their purposes and goals are "broadly parallel," though disagreements occur.

The president smiled as the Governor-General asked him to "bring the message we most want to hear — that of the friendship of Americans for Canadians."

The Nixons and State Secretary William Rogers were greeted by the Micheners, Prime Minister Trudeau, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and U.S. Ambassador Adolph Schmidt.

Red Tanks Smash Into An Loc Again

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist tanks for the second time in 36 hours smashed their way into An Loc today in the see-saw battle for control of the provincial capital only 60 miles from Saigon.

Field reports said that three North Vietnamese tanks had entered the town and the battle to drive them out was underway. On Thursday a communist tank force made it to within 100 yards of the provincial hall before being driven back by the South Vietnamese defenders.

Six waves of heavy B-52 bombers struck at communist positions within a mile of An Loc while other allied aircraft helped fight off the assault by 10,000 communist troops backed with an estimated 60 tanks.

Allied reports from the front had said earlier that 34 North Vietnamese tanks had been knocked out of action, but the South Vietnamese command in Saigon said only 18 tanks were destroyed. The command also said 169 communists were killed and two captured in Thursday's fighting, while 23 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed, 55 were wounded and six were missing.

In another battle area far to the north, UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported from Phu Bai that U.S. infantrymen fought two skirmishes Thursday night and early today and captured a wounded North Vietnamese soldier in a third incident at dawn today. No U.S. casualties were reported.

The first skirmish came just after nightfall when the GIs tripped a communist-laid flare and the Americans and communists shot at each other for half an hour before the small North Vietnamese force disappeared.

In the second incident a communist mortar squad tripped a U.S. mine and GIs opened fire on them for half an hour. A patrol sent into the area later found one body wearing a North Vietnamese uniform.

The patrol sighted another man moving in the grass and shot him and a helicopter, with Kellerman aboard, picked him up. The man, shot in the chest and his legs injured by the mine explosion, later died in the U.S. military dispensary at Phu Bai.

About 2,000 Americans are stationed at Phu Bai, most of them army communications specialists. The base is the American outpost farthest to the north in South Vietnam.

'I Smell a Rat' Says Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday he "smells a rat" in financial plans for the 1976 Summer Olympics at Montreal.

He made the comment to reporters after reiterating in the Commons that Mayor Jean Drapeau has not requested any special federal funds for the Games.

Asked by a reporter whether he did not expect Drapeau eventually to seek federal money, the prime minister replied:

"You smell a rat, and so do I. . . . I share your suspicions."

He added that he was not going to ask Montreal for a bill.

Trudeau said he would take Drapeau at his public word, and assume for now that no federal money will be needed.

The prime minister said in the Commons March 29 he had told Drapeau in a letter that "there would be no special contribution by the federal government to the Olympic Games."

"This has been agreed to by both sides."

Trudeau repeated in his corridor comments to reporters Thursday that the only federal money that might be used indirectly for the games is that to which Montreal is entitled — as is any other city — from existing transfer programs.

In the Commons March 29 Trudeau said the federal government "will at some point want to know more precisely" Montreal's plans if in fact it is counting on federal aid.

But he suggested Thursday that to seek that information now could be interpreted by Montreal as an offer of funds. To maintain his government's bargaining stance, he would assume no money will be requested, despite his "suspicious" about Drapeau's plans.

TV Webs' Monopoly Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. justice department said Thursday it plans to file civil anti-trust suits against the major United States broadcasting networks.

In a brief announcement, the department said it had advised counsel for the National Broadcasting Co. Inc., American Broadcasting Company Inc., Columbia Broadcasting System Inc. and Viacom International Inc. The suits will charge that the firms monopolized and restrained trade in prime television entertainment programs.

The suits will allege the networks violated the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

Robert Wood, president of the CBS television network, said the government seeks to transfer control of programming schedules to advertising agencies and motion picture producers and to prevent the networks from producing their own programming.

'Host' Cities Reluctant To Roll Out Red Carpet

Cabinet Hungry for Invitations

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial cabinet has invited itself to dinner — more than 10 dinners, in fact — and most of its prospective hosts are less than enthusiastic.

The cabinet is planning a tour of the province later this spring, and mayors of municipalities scheduled to be visited received letters Wednesday asking them to sponsor dinners or luncheons for the ministers.

"I think we should all get them lunch buckets," said Mayor Gordon Nichol of Kamloops. "The last time they were here it cost the city $1,400 and people complained."

Mayor Pete Lester of Prince Rupert said: "Ours will probably be a no-host luncheon."

Penticton's Mayor Frank Laird was philosophical: "Well, you can't kick the gift horse in the mouth. Nor the rear end.

"They'll be handing out $1,000 bills wherever they go," Lester said. "What can you do? After all, the man's the premier of the province.

"I suppose the least we can get for a $350 lunch is between $50,000 and $100,000 — in announcements."

Lester said the letter, from Deputy Provincial Secretary Lawrie Wallace, said:

"I wonder if you and your council would like to host and honor the premier with a luncheon at 12 noon Monday, May 29. The premier will have two presentations to make to you on that date, one of historical significance."

The letter went on to ask for confirmation of the lunch and requested the complete guest list by May 5.

"I suppose they want the guest list because they can make other arrangements if they don't like who we've asked," Lester quipped.

Mayor F. E. Devito of Trail said he wouldn't mind giving the cabinet a luncheon if the announcement had come in a different form.

"The impression was that they were coming and we should do something about it. Normally one would expect we would have been asked in a discreet way whether we would like to have them."

Mayor Harold Moffat of Prince George and H. W. Buckle of Kimberley said they were in favor of the tour and didn't mind giving the cabinet a meal.
